January 12, 1987

GW Report

(460)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Dan Moshavi, assistant editor

MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR. MEDALS TO BE PRESENTED AT JANUARY 19 CONVOCATION

The University will hold its annual Martin Luther King, Jr. Convocation on Monday, January 19, at 5:30 pm in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre.

The newly established Martin Luther King, Jr. Medals will be presented for the first time. The awards, to be presented annually, will go to a GW student and to an off-campus individual, both of whom have shown a dedication to the ideals for which Dr. King lived and died. These ideals are seen as commitment, personal integrity, ethical and religious reflection, community service, integration, peace and non-violence.

The Honorable Roy A. West, Mayor of Richmond, Virginia, and a University alumnus (Ed.D. 1976), will receive the first annual Martin Luther King, Jr. Medal, President Lloyd H. Elliott has announced. The name of the first George Washington student to receive the award will be announced at the January 19 ceremony. The awards will be specially commissioned bronze medals.

A dedicated educator and elected city official, Dr. West is now completing his third term as mayor of Richmond. Elected as the Third District City Councilman in 1982, Dr. West was also chosen to be mayor of the city the same year. As an education administrator in the Richmond Public Schools System, West is currently the principal of the Albert H. Hill Middle School.

In recent years, Mayor West has received numerous honors, recognizing his efforts to build understanding and cooperation among people while emphasizing the rights and obligations of citizenship. Among these honors have been the Outstanding Leadership Award from the Greater Richmond Chapter of the American Society of Training and Development, the Liberty Bell Award from the Richmond Bar Association, and the Community Service Award from the Metro Richmond Chamber of Commerce.

In addition to the medal presentations, the January 19 convocation will also include a historical discussion of the American Civil rights struggle and comments on the human rights struggle today in America and elsewhere.

A refreshment break will follow and there will be time for viewing an Exhibit of Enlightenment in the Marvin Center, featuring campus groups providing information and suggesting ways for personal involvement in human rights issues.

At 7:30 pm, in Lisner Auditorium,, there will be a music festival of community choirs. Six area choirs will sing spiritual and gospel music, interspersed with selected readings of the writings of Dr. King. The invited choirs will include those of the Asbury United Methodist Church; the Canaan Baptist Church; the First Baptist Church; the Ward A.M.E. Church; the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church; and the Creativve Music Experience Theatre of the D.C. Public Schools.

Admission is free to all events and the public is invited. For more information, call Ext. 8716.

MFA THESIS CANDIDATE SHOW IN DIMOCK GALLERY

Works by GW students who are candidates for the Master of Fine Arts degree will be on view in the Dimock Gallery from Thursday, January 15 to Thursday, January 29.

The show will include works from the disciplines of ceramics, painting, photography, sculpture and visual communications. The student artists whose work will appear in the show are Katayoon Ansari, Dana Bedini, Edith Margit Berne-Morton, Hussein M. Elhwegi, Jan Erlich-Moss, David Rogers and Pearl Zaltzman.

Gallery hours are 10 am to 5 pm, Tuesday through Friday, and noon to 5 pm, Saturday.

ABC NEWS White House correspondent Sam Donaldson answered questions and signed autographs following a discussion of "Bashing: The Press and the Presidency" on ABC's "Viewpoint" which was telecast live from the Marvin Theatre on December 17. Other panelists were UPI's Helen Thomas, Bill Plante of CBS News and Chris Wallace of NBC News. Ted Koppel was the moderator.

IN GOOD COMPANY, a Portraits in Motion Program of the National Portrait Gallery, was presented by GW's Master of Fine Arts in Theatre Program for three performances in the gallery in December. Historical figures and the students who portrayed them were, L to R: Marian Anderson (Katrinka Stringfield); Clifford Odetts (David Stone); Mary Todd Lincoln (Shiela McKenna); Hilda Doolitte (Jill Brewer); John Reed (Mark Katic); and Josephine Baker (Nia Love). The program was conceived and directed by Leslie B. Jacobson, assistant professor of communication and theatre.

GELMAN LIBRARY OPEN HOUSE FOR FACULTY AND GRADUATE STUDENTS JANUARY 15

The Gelman Library will host its third annual open house on Thursday, January 15, from 3 to 7 pm. This year, faculty members and graduate students are invited to learn about new reference sources and services supporting research at GW.

The open house will feature displays and demonstrations of the latest CD-ROM technology - ERIC and PSYCHLIT databases and the automated serials system - FAXON/LINX - SC10. There will be an opportunity to learn about the newest Interlibrary Loan Service available through the British Library Lending Division.

The Department of Special Collections will make available for viewing, portions of several manuscript and archival collections acquired or processed during the calendar year 1986, together with their finding aids, where available. These collections support the study of Washington, DC, and the University itself.

Among these collections are the archives of the Greater Washington Board of Trade, The Committee of 100 on the Federal City, the Jewish Community Council of Greater Washington, the Washington Theater Club, the papers of retired District of Columbia Council member Polly Shackleton, former GW faculty members Elmer Louis Kayser, Wood Gray, and Lester Frank Ward, as well as examples of early 19th-century District of Columbia property transfers.

The professional staff will be on hand to discuss the many types of instructional and research support available through the Gelman Library. Faculty members are invited to meet Virginia MacEwen, the new Science Subject Specialist in the areas of biochemistry, chemistry, forensic sciences, mathematics, pharmacology, physics, and statistics/computer and information systems.

Refreshments will be served during the open house. For further information, call Ext. 6455.

AFRO-AMERICAN ART IN COLONNADE GALLERY

"African-American Art, Now" is the title of the Colonnade Gallery's January/February exhibition. In celebration of Black History Month, the gallery will be showing works by recognized Washington-based Afro-American artists. Guest Curator for this exhibit is Kenneth Victor Young, senior designer, Office of Exhibits Central, The Smithsonian Institution. According to Young, "This show is an effort to make each individual unite and evaluate his aesthetic and cultural footsteps."

The artists whose works will be shown include Denise Ward Brown, Lilian Burwell, Yvonne Carter, William Harris, Winston Kennedy, Ed Love, Percy Martin, Michael Platt, Frank Smith, Sylvia Snowden and Lou Stovall.

Sponsored by the Governing Board of the Cloyd Heck Marvin Center and the University Committee on Historical Observances, the exhibition may be seen in the Colonnade Gallery beginning Wednesday, January 14. It will run through Thursday, February 19.

The University community is invited to a reception in the gallery on Wednesday, January 21, from 5 to 7 pm.

LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES PROGRAM UPCOMING EVENTS

Luis Gonzalez Posada, Peruvian Ambassador to the Organization of American States, will speak on "Peru and Drug Trafficking in Latin America," Wednesday, January 14, at 4:30 pm in Marvin Center, Room 402-404. A reception will follow in the Alumni House, beginning at 6 pm.

U.S. policy in Nicaragua will be debated on Wednesday, January 21, by William G. Walker, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs and Lt. Col. Edward King of the U.S. Commission on Central American Negotiations, U.S. Senate. The debate will be held in Corcoran Hall 101, from 7 to 9 pm.

On Thursday, January 22, Fernando Lopez-Alves, a U.C.L.A. graduate student, will speak on "Uruguay: Democracies and Guerillas," at 2 pm, in Marvin Center, Room 406.

All events are sponsored by the Latin American Studies Program and are free and open to the GW community.

ARTHUR E. BURNS DIES

Professor Emeritus of Economics Arthur E. Burns, former dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, died December 15, in The George Washington University Hospital. He was 78.

Dean Burns, who served the University for 40 years, was appointed instructor in economics in 1934. He moved through the academic ranks to become professor of economics in 1945.

His academic career combined teaching, research in international and financial problems, and administration. From 1949 to 1957, he served as dean of the School of Government. During the next 10 years, he was dean of the then Graduate Council, and from 1967 until his retirement in 1974, dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. In the year following his retirement, he undertook, for the Consortium of Universities, an academic planning project which received funding from the Meyer Foundation.

Born in Oakland, California, September 3, 1908, he received his undergraduate degree in 1931 from the University of California at Berkeley. He received his Master of Arts in economics in 1934 from the same institution and his doctorate from The George Washington University in 1935. He was co-author (with D.S. Watson) of the book Government Spending and Economic Expansion (1940) and (with Neal and D.S. Watson) of the textbook Modern Economics (1948) as well as the author of monographs and articles for professional journals.

Beginning with the relief and work agencies in the 1930s, he served as a consultant to government agencies including the Office of Price Administration and the War Food Administration during World War II as well as to the White House during the Eisenhower administration. Later he was a consultant to the Renegotiation Board and to several business firms on profit renegotiation problems.

He is survived by his wife, Marcella, of Washington, DC, and a son, Robert, of California.

AWARD -- GW's Vance Hicks, supervisor of transportation, right, is shown receiving a District of Columbia Government 1986 Environmental Improvement Award for the Physical Plant Department's work in litter and solid waste reduction. Presenting the award at a December 12 ceremony at the Convention Center was City Councilman John Wilson.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR JOHN G. ALLEE JANUARY 23

There will be a memorial service Friday, January 23, at noon, in the Marvin Theatre, for the late John Gage Allee Jr., professor emeritus of English, who died at The George Washington University Hospital January 1. He was 68 at the time of his death.

Born In Helena, Montana, February 28, 1918, Professor Allee was a George Washington alumnus (B.A. 1939, M.A. 1940). He received his doctorate in 1955 from The Johns Hopkins University in the area of English philology. Before coming to the University in 1949 as assistant professor of English, he taught four years at Johns Hopkins. During World War II, he served in the Army in Europe.

From 1962 until 1979, he was dean of the Division of University Students (students at GW not seeking degrees). He retired in 1985 at the end of the year and was awarded emeritus status. He taught continually during his years at the University.

A linguist and a specialist in early English and Northern European languages, he wrote extensively about the history of place names. His research on place names in Iceland was supported by a Fulbright Grant in 1961 and an Evening Star Grant in 1964. At the University, he served as president of Friends of the Libraries. The General Alumni Association honored him in 1974 with an award in recognition of 25 years service as a member of the faculty. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, he was active in the George Washington chapter.

His memberships included the New Chaucer Society, the Society for the Advancement of Scandinavian Studies, the American Icelandic Society, and the Tudor and Stuart Club. He had lectured at the Foreign Service Institute and at the Smithsonian.

Survivors include his wife, Frances; two sons, John Gage III, of Silver Spring, and Stephen Dole, of Washington; a sister Elizabeth Hoffmann of Indianapolis, and three grandchildren.

GW Music

NEIL TILKENS IN CONCERT

Neil Tilkens, associate professor of music, will appear in a faculty concert on Monday, January 26, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. He will perform works by Beethoven, Liszt and Schumann on a restored 1854 Broadwood grand piano.

Admission is $4 for general admission, $2 for faculty and staff and $1 for students and senior citizens. For more information, call Ext. 46245.

---

CHANGE OF COMMAND -- Bill O'Brien, a Georgetown University junior is the new GW NROTC batallion commander. He succeeded Catherine Cook, an SPIA senior, in a December ceremony. The GW Naval ROTC program is open to all DC area Consortium schools.

KENNEDY CENTER PARKING TO BE CURTAILED ON THREE FRIDAYS

The parking management at the Kennedy Center has notified the University that special events will be held during the daytime on three Fridays - January 16, February 27 and March 13. Because of the special events, GW vehicles will not be admitted to the Kennedy Center garage between the hours of 8 am and 2 pm on those days.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

RCLF H. CLARK, professor of engineering and applied science, was invited by the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress to talk, December 12, about his experience with the Resource Dynamics model, which he created as part of research done at GW for the Office of Naval Research.

JONATHAN D. FIFE, professor of education, served as a discussion leader on the topic of "Developing Critical Issues and Conceptual Models for Research on Improving Teaching and Learning" at the National Center for Research to Improve Postsecondary Teaching and Learning (NCRIPTAL) Research Forum, November 16-18, at the University of Michigan.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Department of Anatomy. (Individual to assist in the conduct of research on regeneration of the central nervous system. Duties will include preparation of materials and specimens for both light and electron microscopy, such as tissue embedding and sectioning, slide preparation and chemical preparation, as well as photography, and computer-assisted data analysis. The individual will also be responsible for the general daily routines and maintenance of the laboratory. Experience in general laboratory procedures and microscopy desirable. Required: bachelor's degree in a biologically-related field. Available immediately.) Send resume to Dr. Ronald C. Bohn, Department of Anatomy, GWUMC, 2300 I Street, NW, Washington, DC 20037.

The following three positions are available with the Intergovernmental Health Policy Project. Candidates should send resumes to Richard E. Merritt, Director, Intergovernmental Health Policy Project, 2100 Pennsylvania, Avenue, NW, Suite 616, Washington, DC 20037. Application deadline is Tuesday, January 20.

RESEARCH ASSISTANTS (2), full-time. (Persons to assist the research associates in fulfilling their primary research functions. This includes data gathering, survey work and monitoring and summarizing legislation. The assistants will also be expected to respond to the specific information needs of the project's constituents. They will also be responsible for preparing brief summaries of recent trends in state legislation with respect to at least two important health policy topics. Required: a B.A. or B.S. with some course work related to general health policy issues or enrollment in an M.A. program in public health or health care administration. Some research experience or prior work within a state government or the federal government is helpful.)

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, full-time. (Individual for broad range of responsibilities including monitoring important health legislation and maintaining ongoing contact with several key health policy makers in approximately 10 states, conducting at least two primary and several secondary research projects during the year, and responding to particular information and technical assistance needs of the project's constituents. Required: a master's degree in health care administration, public health, economics, political science or public policy and two years of health policy experience. Candidates must have excellent research, writing and verbal skills, as well as familiarity with general health policy issues and problems. A good working knowledge of federal and state Medicaid policies and general health care financing issues is desirable.)

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

January 26, 1987

GW Report

(461)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Dan Moshavi, assistant editor

MAYOR ROY A. WEST OF RICHMOND SPEAKS AT MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR. CONVOCATION

MEDALISTS -- Keith Pettigrew, left, and Mayor Roy A. West of Richmond, right, with President Lloyd H. Elliott.

"The theme of Dr. King's life had one commonality, embodied in a statement which he made --'we must learn to live together as brothers or perish as fools,' " said Richmond Mayor Roy A. West of Richmond at the University's second annual Martin Luther King Convocation January 19 in the Marvin Theatre.

West was the first recipient of George Washington's newly established Martin Luther King Award, along with GW student Keith Pettigrew, a Columbian College senior, majoring in criminal justice.

"The building of bridges between all segments of our society became the corner stone in implementing this laudable mission of mankind," Mayor West continued. "While all of us may consider ourselves as builders of one kind or another, it was Dr. King's belief that 'the conscience of the majority is the greatest weapon of the minorities.' Partnerships and bridges, then, are critical in this process of moralizing our society's responsibilities to all citizens."

The mayor noted, that in building bridges, "Dr. King would be the first to tell us that in doing so, you must be prepared to be walked upon. For he was called a communist, a radical, a troublemaker, etcetera. I, too, know the sting of such accusations," he went on, referring to his experiences when he was elected mayor in 1982.

He said he vowed that all citizens and members on the city council would be both counted on and counted in the process of developing good government and that for this he was labelled an Uncle Tom by some blacks and called narrow minded by some whites for his stand in supporting sanctions against South Africa.

"But like Dr. King, I will not be deterred," he declared, "for, I, too, believe that 'this may well be mankind's last chance to choose between chaos and community.' Let us, in full measure, remain dedicated to the unfinished work of Dr. King. ... May I say that this award places upon me a self-imposed obligation to leave you my parting words, which I hope will invoke a daily resolve: to turn to people and not on people."

Mayor West offered counsel to both blacks and whites. To blacks, he said, "Don't be bitter, be better," and quoting Dr. King, " 'Do your work so well that no one could do it better.' Don't be victimized by the malaise suffered by blacks that blacks are the only citizens in this country expected not to disagree with one another. ... If black progress is to come from within, we must have the courage to discuss new views and ideas and listen to new voices."

To whites, he said, "Do not promote, perpetuate the moral erosiveness embodied in the misconception held by many blacks -- illusion of inclusion. Do not allow the sacrifices made in the name of freedom and equality to go unsustained by any action, attitudes, or practice which would maintain the inequality of sacrifices suffered too long by too many." He closed with a quotation from Dr. King, who believed it was not too late and said, "We still have a choice today."

Keith Pettigrew, in accepting the award, said he wanted to thank four individuals: his mother, Mrs. Vonneva Pettigrew; Miss Valerie Epps, director of GW's Educational Opportunity Program, who nominated him for the award; Miss Helen Cannaday, GW admissions representative, who encouraged him to come to George Washington; and Dr. King, "whose work and leadership made it possible for me to be here today."

The awards were presented by President Lloyd H. Elliott

(continued on page 2)

ANTHONY COATES TO GIVE FIRST WEDNESDAY LECTURE

Anthony G. Coates, professor of geology, will speak on "The Theory of Evolution: A Perennial Issue in Science and Society," Wednesday, February 4, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. The event, sponsored by Alumni Relations, is part of the First Wednesday Series. Admission is free, but call Ext. 6435 for reservations.

Dinner, for both members and non-members of the GW University Club, will be served beforehand, beginning at 6:30 pm. Call Ext. 6610 for dinner reservations.

CARL ABBOTT HOLDS BANNEKER VISITING PROFESSORSHIP, 1987

Carl Abbott, professor and chairman of the Department of Urban Studies and Planning, Portland State University, is Banneker Visiting Professor of Washington Area Studies for Spring Semester, 1987.

An honor graduate of Swarthmore College and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, he did his graduate work at the University of Chicago over a five-year period. For both the M.A. and Ph.D, his major field was urban history and his minor field urban/transportation geography. He pursued further studies at the University of Michigan's Inter-University Consortium for Political and Social Research.

Dr. Abbott first became associated with Portland State University in 1979 as visiting associate professor of history and associate director of its Graduate Program in Public History. In the spring of 1985, he was Aspinall Lecturer in History, Political Science and Public Affairs at Mesa College. He has also taught at the University of Denver, Old Dominion University, and Willamette University.

A prolific author, both of books and articles, Dr. Abbott has an extensive record of scholarly research on urban history. His most recent book, Urban America in the Modern Age, 1920-1980, is soon to be published by Harlan Davidson, Inc. of Chicago.

The course he is teaching this semester is "American Main Streets: Commercial Districts in Urban Development."

Carl Abbott

Abbott is the sixth individual to hold the Banneker Professorship under the sponsorship of the University's Center for Washington Area Studies, an interdisciplinary program in the School of Public and International Affairs. The professorship is named after Benjamin Banneker, the first surveyor in the City of Washington.

CAREER WEEK '87

Working professionals participating in almost 50 panels will offer career insights and strategies for success at GW's Career Week '87, from 12 noon to 8 pm, Monday, February 2, through Thursday, February 5, in the Marvin Center.

Sponsored by GW's Career Services Center, all events are free of charge and open to the GW community.

Organized into three tracks, "Choosing a Career," "Landing a Job" and "Moving Up," Career Week '87 will provide an opportunity for participants at any career stage to learn more about specific fields, to ask questions about job search strategies and to network with experienced professionals.

"Choosing a Career" will provide an introduction to career fields and is directed toward those exploring career options. "Landing a Job" will examine methods of obtaining employment, from the application process to identifying sources. "Moving Up" will provide information about current issues, employers, and strategies for success.

Among the programs offering particular insight into certain fields are: Careers in Telecommunications, Fedral Government Careers for Liberal Arts Graduates, Public Relations Careers, Opportunities in Health Care Administration, Non-Athletic Careers in Sports, Urban Planning in the '80s, and many more.

For more information, contact the Career Services Center, Ext. 46495.

NEW PHONE SYSTEM UPDATE

The Telecommunications Office reports that some people from off-campus have had difficulty in dialing into GW's new 994- telephone exchange. The reason is that some companies that own a telecommunications switch (as GW does) are not aware that the new 994- exchange exists, and they have not programmed this new exchange into their communications systems.

If someone tells you that he or she called you or your department on the 994- exchange and could not get through, please find out the first three digits of the number they are calling from and the area code (if it's a long-distance call). Report this to Customer Service in GW's Telecommunications Systems Department, Ext. 45530.

Until the problem is corrected, ask callers to dial 676-6000, which will connect them with the University operator who can route their call to the proper person or department.

GW and C&P Telephone Co. are working to track down and inform all companies that need to program 994- into their systems. The Telecommunications Office appreciates everyone's assistance in helping to identify which company systems are having trouble dialing into the University's new exchange.

1986 FEDERAL TAX WITHHOLDING EXEMPT STATUS EXPIRES FEB 15

All 1986 exemptions from withholding authorized by Federal Tax Forms W-4 currently on file in the University Payroll Services Office will expire on February 15.

Employees (usually students) who are eligible to continue their 1986 exemption from tax withholding in 1987 must submit a 1987 Form W-4 by February 15, 1987. Failure to recertify by that date will result in the withholding of federal taxes as though the employee has one withholding allowance.

Note: The Tax Reform Act of 1986 has changed the eligibility criteria for claiming exemption from withholding and it is advised that any employee claiming exemption from withholding carefully read the form W-4 instruction before certifying the "exempt" status.

Forms W-4 are available at the Records and Benefits Office of Personnel Services, Building GG, 2125 G Street, NW, or at the University Payroll Services Office, first floor, Rome Hall, Academic Center.

WELLNESS RESOURCE CENTER PROGRAMS

The Wellness Resource Center is offering a four-session stress management workshop to all members of the University community. The workshop will be given from 5 to 6 pm on February 10, 12, 17 and 19 in the Marvin Center. To pre-register, stop by the Wellness Center at 817 23rd Street, or call Ext. 6927.

In addition, the center offers two ongoing services. "Health Risk Appraisal" shows how your individual lifestyle affects your chances of avoiding the most common causes of death for a person of your age, race and sex. "Diet Analysis" provides an analysis of your daily food intake to ascertain what you need to add to or delete from your diet for a balanced, healthy program. Call Ext. 6927 for an appointment.

PERUVIAN AMBASSADOR to the Organization of American States Luis Gonzales Posada, answered questions following his discussion of "Peru and Drug Trafficking in Latin America," January 14, at the Marvin Center. The event was sponsored by the Latin American Studies Program.

INTERDEPENDENCE IS THEME OF GW FORUM SPRING ISSUE

The editors of GW Forum invite writers to submit their own Declarations of Interdependence in the form of a 1,000 to 2,000 word personal essay by Friday, February 20.

Recognizing that independence is impossible in our complex world and that dependence can lead to too great a reliance on others, the editors offer their definition of interdependence. They say it is the acceptance of the fact that our actions do affect and should be affected by those of others, and that we can best live within these limitations and opportunities.

Writers are invited to examine interdependence in their private lives, in the University's increasingly international orientation, in interdisciplinary studies, in the creative arts, in athletics or in any way they may choose.

Typed, double spaced manuscripts should be sent to Professor A.E. Claeyssens, Department of English, Stuart Hall, Room 407. For more information, call Ext. 7355 or 6180.

UNIVERSITY SMOKING POLICY

(Editor's Note: For the convenience of the University community, GW Report gives the following information on the University Smoking Policy.)

Recognizing that the inhalation of tobacco smoke is hazardous to health, the University has taken positive steps toward providing a more smoke-free environment for students, faculty and staff. The University policy went into effect March 17, 1986.

GW sponsors ongoing programs which are intended to foster an understanding of the policy and to encourage compliance. The medical staff has adopted policies governing smoking in the University hospital. These policies are incorporated in the University policy by reference.

The general policy is that smoking is prohibited in all University buildings and facilities except in areas which are specifically designated as "Smoking Permitted."

There are certain exceptions to the general policy. This policy dose not cover investment properties. In private offices, smoking may be permitted but smokers must be aware of, and make necessary adjustments to, situations in which their smoking may have adverse effects on adjacent areas or visiting nonsmokers. In addition, smokers might close their office doors when they smoke. In shared offices, smoking is prohibited unless nonsmokers specifically agree to permit it.

Smoking is permitted in residence hall rooms due to the fact that the Office of Housing and Residence Life attempts to assign students to rooms according to smoking preferences. However, smokers must be aware of, and make adjustments for, situations where smoking may have an unfavorable effect on roommates.

All George Washington University faculty, staff, students and visitors are required to comply with this policy.

It is the intent of the policy that smoking be prohibited in all public areas except those where it is specifically permitted. These areas have been marked by signs. Signs reading "Thank you for not smoking here" and "Smoking Permitted Here" are available from University Stores for use on desk and table tops.

The Provost has overall responsibility for implementing this policy. Officers, chairs and managers are responsible for implementing the policy in their units. Questions on the policy or its implementation may be referred to the Provost, the appropriate Vice President, the Dean for Administrative Affairs of the Medical Center, the Director of Personnel or Directors of Safety for the University and the Medical Center.

BRIEFLY...

Lisner Auditorium "Trash or Treasure" Sale -- On Wednesday, January 28, Lisner Auditorium will be holding a "Trash or Treasure" sale to help raise money for its 40th birthday party concert. Donations such as books, jewelry, clothing accessories, small appliances and kitchen utensils are requested. For more information call Ext. 6800.

U.S. Ambassador James Goodby to Speak -- Ambassador James Goodby, U.S. Department of State, will speak on "Arms Control: The European Perspective," Tuesday, February 3, from 2 to 4 pm, in Marvin Center, Room 501. The event is sponsored by the School of Public and International Affairs and the Security Policy Studies Program. Admission is free.

Moral Issues in Accounting -- Norman Bowie, professor of philosophy and director of the Center for the Study of Values at the University of Delaware, will speak on "Codes of Ethics: The Professional Catch 22," Monday, January 26, from 4 to 6 pm, in Marvin Center, Rooms 413-414. Lynn Sharp Paine, assistant professor, Georgetown University School of Business Administration, will comment on Professor Bowie's presentation. The event is part of a seminar series on "Moral Issues in Accounting" and is sponsored by the Department of Philosophy and Columbian College in conjunction with the Department of Accountancy and SGBA.

MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR. CONVOCATION

(continued from front)

In the citation for Dr. West, who holds his doctorate in education from the University, Dr. Elliott said in part, "For your unswerving 'fair but firm' service to young people, for your bridge-building between civic factions, for your determination that cities can work and that life there can be one, The George Washington University proudly confers upon you the Martin Luther King, Jr. Award."

Of Keith Pettigrew, President Elliott said, "You have had the vision to see that shortcuts to happiness can be destructive of human life, and it is our hope that age will not dim your vision of that humane life that is marked by kindness, tenderness, mercy and civil and refined consideration of others. Martin Luther King, Jr., himself would have been pleased that you have devoted your talents to saving your peers from self-ruin."

Pettigrew has been working, since the age of 13, for the prevention of teenage drug abuse. At 15, Keith and his mother formed a group called Parents and Youth Against Drug Abuse (PAYDA) to provide drug education in schools, identification of youth leaders and organization of parents and youth. In the years since 1980, the group has continued and broadened its work.

Keith has spoken widely at workshops and institutes and served as co-organizer of PAYDA's 1985 and 1986 "Just Say No" city-wide rallies. He was a founder and president of GW Myth Men, a brotherhood established to dispel negative myths concerning black men and to instill positive beliefs and attitudes. Keith had leading roles in two University Theatre musicals, "The Sorcerer" and "Anything Goes."

JEAN McGARRY IN READING

Jean McGarry, assistant professor of English, will read from her works Thursday, January 29, at 8 pm, in Room B-120 of the Academic Center. She is the author of a collection of short fiction, Air of Providence (Johns Hopkins University Press, 1985) and soon-to-be-published The Very Rich Hours. The recipient of the 1985 Southern Review/LSU Short Fiction Prize, she is currently teaching creative writing at the University.

The reading is part of the Jenny McKean Moore Spring Reading Series sponsored by GW's Jenny McKean Moore Fund for Writers. The event is free and open to the public. For more information, call the English Department at Ext. 6180.

M. ELIZABETH TIDBALL, professor of physiology, discussed "Baccalaureate Origins of Scientists and Physicians" with an attentive audience as January's First Wednesday Lecturer.

DANCE PROGRAM MOVES TO COLUMBIAN COLLEGE

By vote of the faculty of the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences on January 5, the University's degree program in dance and the University's Dance Production Group will be incorporated in a new department of theatre and dance, effective July 1.

At the January 5 meeting, dance faculty members Maida Withers and Nancy Johnson were welcomed by Dean Clara M. Lovett who noted that Columbian College looks forward to very close cooperation between the theatre and dance faculties in high-level artistic productions.

The Dance Program, prior to this time, has resided organizationally in the School of Education and Human Development. Instruction in dance has a long history at the University. The program of study leading to the Bachelor of Arts in Education with a teaching field in dance was established in 1964. The program leading to the degree of Master of Arts in Education in the field of physical education with a specialization in dance was instituted in 1968.

PROFESSOR DIVITA TO SPEAK AT LIBRARIES FRIENDS FORUM

Salvatore F. Divita, professor of business administration, will speak at the Friends Forum of the Friends of the Libraries on Wednesday, February 4, at 6:30 pm in the Presidents Room of the GW University Club.

His presentation, "Back to the Future: Through the Library," will give his listeners the opportunity to learn about his popular approach to career planning.

In Dr. Divita's course, Marketing Strategy, students are required to complete a term project which includes learning how to market themselves and planning a career that will be personally satisfying. Students are asked to determine the exact job position they wish to retire from and then map out the prerequisite positions needed to reach that goal. Professor Divita's main objective is to assist people in finding the career options appropriate to their makeup, thus giving purposeful directions to their lives.

The Friends Forum is open to all members of the University community.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

JAMES R. BARTH, professor of economics, moderated a debate on "The Federal Budget and Economic Growth" between William Niskanen, chairman, Cato Institute, and Edward Gramlich, deputy director, Congressional Budget Office, that was telecast on C-SPAN on December 15. He also gave an extensive interview on the current problems of savings and loan associations and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation that was published in the American Banker on December 29.

STUDENT BOOK COLLECTORS' CONTEST DEADLINE IS FEB 13

The 1987 Friends of the Libraries Student Book Collectors' Contest activities will take place during February and March. Currently enrolled students are encouraged to participate. The purpose of the contest is to stimulate an interest in books, book collecting and the building of a personal library.

Each collection entered must have a unifying theme and a demonstrated bibliographic awareness. A short written description of the collection submitted and an annotated bibliography is required from each contestant. The finalists must provide representative titles for judging.

Cash prizes in the amounts of $300, $200 and $100 will be awarded to the first, second and third place winners at the annual meeting of the Friends of the Libraries on May 14. The winning collections will be shown in the Department of Special Collections from April 9 through May 15.

Deadline for submitting entries is Friday, February 13, at 4 pm. The entry form, descriptive essay and bibliography should be submitted to Special Collections, Gelman Library, Room 207.

For more information and entry forms, contact Special Collections Ext. 7497 or Joan Hill, Ext. 6455.

---

CHARLENE BICKFORD, director of the First Federal Congress Project, was interviewed by ABC Radio News Congressional correspondent, Vic Ratner, for a series on the hourly news comparing the First and 100th Congresses, aired on January 3 and 4. She was also interviewed for a New York Times article, "Congress: The First and the 100th," which appeared on January 5.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

ALEX ANCKONIE III, associate professor of business administration, co-authored, with Gregory Schultz, a paper entitled "A Proposal to Reduce the Costs of Traded Goods and Services by Pricing in a Minimum Variance Pseudocurrency and Covering Foreign Exchange Risk Using Options on the Pseudocurrency." The paper was presented by the authors at the Annual Meeting of the Academy of International Business, November 21-23, in London, England.

JAMES R. BARTH, professor of economics, presented a paper, "Thrift-Institution Failures: Estimating the Regulator's Closure Rule," at the Southern Economic Association Meetings, November 25, in New Orleans, Louisiana. He also chaired a session at the conference. In addition, he co-authored a paper, "The Scale of Government and Economic Activity," which was presented at the American Economic Association Meetings, December 28, in New Orleans.

MFA CANDIDATE Katayoon Ansari is shown with her painting "X, 1986," oil on canvas, 40" x 50," one of 42 works in the Dimock Gallery's MFA Thesis Candidate Show, Winter 1987, which runs through January 29.

---

MICHAEL BRADLEY, assistant professor of economics, presented a paper, "Price Rules, Wage Indexing and Optimal Monetary Policy," at the Southern Economic Association Meetings in New Orleans, Louisiana. He also served as a discussant in a session on monetary theory and policy.

Members of the Department of Business Administration participated in the 1986 Annual Meeting of the Academy of International Business in London, November 20-23. ALEX ANCKONIE III, associate professor of business administration, presented a paper entitled, "A Proposal to Reduce the Cost of Traded Goods and Services by Pricing in a Minimum Variance Pseudo Currency and Converting Foreign Exchange Risk Using Options on the Pseudo Currency;" MARILYN LIEBRENZ-HIMES, associate professor of business administration, served as a discussant for the panel on Marketing and Exports; and PHILLIP D. GRUB, Aryamehr Professor of Multinational Management, presented a paper entitled, "Foreign Investment in China: An Analysis of Factors Influencing U.S. Firms Investment Decisions." GW was also represented by MELANIE TREVINIO (D.B.A. 1986), who presented a paper entitled, "Licensing Behavior in Response to Technology Transfer Regulation in Mexico;" FARIBORZ GHADAR, professor of business administration; BRYAN SUDWEEKS, lecturer in business administration and Ph.D candidate; and GREGORY SHULTZ (B.B.A. 1986), an investment analyst with the firm of Dickinson, Wright, Moon, Van, Dusen & Freeman.

ALI BULENT CAMBEL, professor of engineering and applied science, has been elected chairman of the Engineering and Public Policy Division of the American Society for Engineering Education.

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, gave seminars and lectures on Anglo-American history and culture at Edinburgh University, the Free University of Berlin, and at the Universities of Venice, Rome, and Palermo while he was on sabbatical leave for Fall Semester 1986. During the fall months he held honorary fellowships at the Institute of U.S. Studies, London University; and the Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities, Edinburgh, Scotland.

DONALD W. DEW, research professor of education and human development, was recently honored by the National Council on Rehabilitation Education at its annual meeting in Washington, DC. He was recognized for "his service and leadership towards the advancement of rehabilitation counselor education."

JOHN EFTIS, professor of engineering and applied science, presented an invited lecture, "The Effects of Load Biaxiality for Elastic Fracture: A Synthesis of Recent Developments," December 15, as part of the Seminars in Mechanics at McGill University, Montreal.

JAMES E. FALK, professor of operations research, has received a Fulbright Award to the State University of Kiev, U.S.S.R. He will visit the university in March for one month, during a portion of his sabbatical leave. He has also been invited by the Chinese government to spend a month in Shanghai and Beijing, China, to lecture there after he leaves Russia.

JOSEPH L GASTWIRTH, professor of statistics and economics, delivered a talk, "Efficiency Robust Procedures for Combining Contingency Tables and Survival Analyses," December 15, at Columbia University. He represented the GW Statistics Department at a special seminar and reception at Harvard University in honor of the impending retirement of Professor Frederick Mosteller, a member of the National Academy of Sciences.

DAVID GRIER, assistant professor of statistics, gave two invited papers: "Performance Trackers: New Techniques for Performance Evaluation," at the Cooperating Users of Burrough's Equipment (CUBE), October 15, in Washington, DC; and "A System for Monte Carlo Experimentation," at the Winter Simulation Conference, December 8, in Arlington, Virginia.

DENNIS HOLMES, professor of education, has received a grant from the Mun'gyong Educational Foundation of Korea to conduct a cross-cultural study of the teacher selection and certification policies of the United States and Korea. The study will focus on the projected effects of enrollment changes and the supply of teachers on the policies of the United States and Korea. The results will be published in English and Korean by the Korean Educational Development Institute. He will be working with Dr. Hun Park of the Sung Kyun Kwan University in Seoul. They will participate in in an East Asian Conference on Teacher Selection Policies to be held in Seoul in March, 1987.

(continued on back)

JAMES O. HORTON, associate professor of American civilization and history, is serving as the historical advisor this season for the ABC-News history magazine, "Our World," which airs on Thursdays at 8 pm. He has been appointed to the advisory board for "Legacies: An Audio Introduction to the History of Women and the Family in America: 1607-1870," a National Public Radio series due to air this spring. He will narrate the segment on "Black Families in Freedom."

JOHN KENDRICK, professor of economics, gave the keynote address at a conference on "Improving Productivity," November 2 to 5 in El Jubail, Saudi Arabia. On December 5, he spoke on "The International Productivity Outlook" at an economic outlook conference in Washington, DC, sponsored by the National Economists Club.

JAMES C. KING, professor of German, spoke on "Pre-Christian, Germanic Elements in Our Celebration of Christmas," December 18, at the National Museum of American History at the opening of the 10th annual exhibition "Trees of Christmas." The trees were decorated by the Office of Horticulture, Smithsonian Institution. The lecture was co-sponsored by the German Heritage Society of the Greater Washington, DC, Area.

JOHN M. LACHIN, professor of statistics, participated as a member of the Consensus Panel for the National Institutes of Health Consensus Development Conference on Diet and Exercise in Noninsulin-Dependent Diabetes Mellitus, December 8-10, at the NIH. The conference was sponsored by the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases and the Office of Medical Applications Research of the NIH, in collaboration with the Institut National de la Sante et de la Recherche Medicale, France. Based upon the research results presented by investigators from the U.S. and Europe, the panel prepared a consensus report on the role of diet and exercise in the treatment and prevention of noninsulin-dependent diabetes. The report will be published in the Journal of the American Medical Association. The conference will also be the subject of a documentary to be aired over the Hospital Satellite Network.

MARIE C. MALARO, visiting professor of museum studies, gave a presentation on "Donations, Appraisals and Legal Obligations" at the annual meeting of the Southeastern Museums Conference, Louisville, Kentucky, on October 14. On December 4, she was the featured speaker at the Ohio Museums Association's seminar on "Legal Aspects of Museum Administration."

BERNARD MERGEN, professor of American civilization, an article, "Travel as Play," in a book, Cultural Dimensions of Play, Games and Sport) Champaign, Illinois: Human Kinetics Publishers) edited by him and containing chapter introductions by LINDA J. BRANDT, associate professor of psychology; ROBERT L. HUMPHREY, professor of anthropology, and Wilcomb Washburn.

NEW STUDENTS RECEPTION -- L to R, Transfer students Ellen Rosen, Jody Patton, Amy Morris and Jodi Tinker begin their first semester at GW.

---

RALPH OLMO, comptroller, has been appointed as an incorporator of the College Construction Loan Insurance Association by Secretary of Education William J. Bennett.

MARGARET RAPP, assistant professor of English, gave a paper entitled, "Moral Madness: The Female Offender in Nineteenth Century Criminology," at the annual Modern Language Association meeting, December 28, in New York City. The paper presented the view that the neo-Darwinian interpretation of the prostitute provided scientific justification for regulationism. Werner Gundersheimer, director of the Folger Library, was the respondent.

JOSEPH PELZMAN, professor of economics, presented a paper on "The U.S. - Israel Free Trade Area Agreement and Israeli Textile Exports to the United States" at the conference on Israel - American Trade, November 16-20, in Tel Aviv, Israel, one year after the Free Trade Area Agreement. At the conference, he led a round-table discussion on "U.S. Trade Restrictions in a Free Trade Environment." On November 25, he presented a paper entitled, "The Tariff Equivalents of the Existing Quotas Under the Multifiber Arrangement," at the Southern Economic Association meetings, November 25, in New Orleans.

STEPHEN C. SMITH, assistant professor of economics, was a visiting scholar at the National Institute of Public Finance and Policy, New Delhi, between semesters. He followed up on his research into India's textile and sugar cooperatives; entered into long-term collaborative research projects at the institute on liberalization and multinational firms; and presented seminars on his earlier research.

NEIL A. TILKENS, associate professor of music, gave a lecture/recital on the subject, "Piano Music of Two 20th Century Romantics: Poulenc and De Falla," November 21, at Western Maryland College, Westminster, under the auspices of the Carroll County Music Teachers Association. Earlier in the month, he participated in a panel discussion on Baltimore radio station WCVT on the topic, "Is America Passing Through a Musical Crisis?"

STUART A. UMPLEBY, associate professor of management science, was one of five lecturers for a one-day seminar on computer-aided communication entitled, "Can Electronic Networking Improve Education, Research and Decision Making?" The seminar, held in the Marvin Center on December 6, addressed the use of computer conferencing by universities.

PUBLICATIONS

JOSEPH ASCHHEIM, professor of economics, an essay, "Dollar Variability, the New Protectionism, Trade and Financial Performance," co-authored with Martin J. Bailey (Department of State) and George S. Tavlas (IMF), in The New Protectionist Threat to World Welfare, edited by Dominick R. Salvatore North Holland, New York, 1987. The book addresses perhaps the single most important issue of current U.S. international economic policy, American trade protectionism. Aschheim, Bailey, and Tavlas state that floating exchange rates have enhanced international trade and economic recovery, contrary to the claims of proponents of protectionism.

BRYAN L. BOULIER, associate professor of economics, an article "An Econometric Investigation of the Easterlin Synthesis Framework: The Philippines and the United States," co-authored with N. Gregory Mankiw of Harvard University, in Population Studies, Vol. 40, November 1986, pp. 473- 486.

ALF HILTEBEITEL, professor of religion, an article, "On the Handling of the Meat, and Related Matters, in Two South Indian Buffalo Sacrifices," in Divisione delle carni: Dinamica Sociale e Organizzazione del Cosmo, special edition of L'Uomo, Christiano Grottanelli, ed., Vol. 9, Nos. 1/2, 1985, pp. 171-200 (released in November, 1986).

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history, "Compositional Types in American Commercial Architecture," in Perspectives in Vernacular Architecture, II, Camille Wells, ed., Columbia: University of Missouri Press, 1986, pp. 12-23; and Julia Morgan, Architect, Berkeley: Berkeley Architectural Heritage Association, reprint ed., 1986.

CLARA LOVETT, professor of history, an essay in Regionalismo e centralizzazione nella storia di Italia e Stati Uniti (Florence, Olschki, 1986).

LEONARD NADLER, professor of education, one of eight co-authors of the book Management Consulting: A Guide to the Profession, Geneva, Switzerland: International Labour Office 1986.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

PSYCHOLOGIST, full-time, 12 months, Counseling Center. (Person to provide short-term individual therapy, group therapy, and consultation/ outreach and programming for minority students. Will supervise doctoral-level interns along with other administrative duties. Required: Ph.D. in clinical/ counseling psychology, internship, experience with minority populations. Eligibility for DC licensure and counseling center experience preferred. Position available July 1. Application deadline March 20, 1987.) Submit letter of interest and description of relevant skills, resume, three letters of recommendation and salary expectations to: Dr. Diane DePalma, Counseling Center, The George Washington University, Washington, DC 20052.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Department of Physiology. (Person to assist in cellular physiology laboratory. Duties include performing carbon isotope tracer experiments and biochemical metabolite assays. B.S. degree in science required.) Send resume to: Joanne K. Kelleher, Ph.D., Department of Physiology, GWUMC, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Washington, DC 20037.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Division of Infectious Diseases. (Individual to study pathogenesis of intestinal protozoal infection. Required: B.S. degree with a background in biochemistry, immunology and bacteriology; one year experience in tissue culture, column and gel chromotography.) Contact Dr. Parenti, Ext. 5558.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE, full-time, Department of Microbiology. (Person to assist in virology laboratory. B.S. degree in science-related field and experience in research laboratory required. Available immediately.) Contact: Dr. David Kingsbury, 701 Ross Hall, Ext. 8426.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, full-time, Department of Pharmacology. (Person with substantial experience developing and using HPLC and GC for quantitative assays of drugs or biological materials. Mass spectrometry experience preferred. Must have demonstrated a substantial degree of independence along with some supervisory experience. Master's degree required.) Contact: Dr. Fred Abramson, Department of Pharmacology, GWUMC, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Washington, DC 20037.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

February 2, 1987

GW Report

(462)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Dan Moshavi, assistant editor

1987 WINTER CONVOCATION TO BE FEBRUARY 15 IN SMITH CENTER

The University's Winter Convocation will be Sunday, February 15, in the Charles E. Smith Center. Approximately 1,000 degrees in course will be conferred.

Jonathan Yardley, book critic of The Washington Post, will give the convocation address and receive a Doctor of Humane Letters as will Professor Emeritus of Classics John F. Latimer, president of the University's Society of the Emeriti. The Honorable Harry L. Carrico, chief justice of the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth of Virginia, will receive a Doctor of Laws and Wayne D. Rasmussen, agricultural historian, will be awarded a Doctor of Letters. President Lloyd H. Elliott will confer both degrees in course and the honorary degrees.

Distinguished Alumni Achievement Awards will be presented to six accomplished graduates. They are: Emily A. Black, eminent researcher in trauma and burn care (B.S. 1942, M.D. 1945); Walter J. Frost III, a major partner in Resources Management Indonesia (M.B.A. 1966); U.S. Astronaut Col. Frederick D. Gregory (M.S. in Adm. 1977); the Honorable Bruce S. Mencher, associate judge of the Superior Court, Washington, D.C. (B.A. 1957, J.D. 1960); Jeanne P. Miles, New York artist (B.A. 1931); and Charles B. Reed, chancellor of the State University System of Florida (B S. in P.E. 1963, M.A. in Ed. 1964, Ed.D. 1970).

The convocation speaker Jonathan Yardley, a native of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, was graduated in 1961 from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he was editor of the student newspaper, The Daily Tar Heel. His first job was as intern with James Reston, then Washington Bureau Chief of The New York Times. He later worked as a writer for the Times and as book editor for the Greensboro, North Carolina, Daily News, The Miami Herald and The Washington Star. He moved to his current position of book critic and columnist for The Washington Post in 1981.

Yardley studied American literature in 1968-69 as a Nieman Fellow at Harvard University. His articles and book reviews have appeared in many periodicals. He is the author of one book, Ring: A Biography of Ring Lardner, and a contributor to others. In 1981, he was awarded a Pulitzer prize for Distinguished Criticism.

Chief Justice Carrico has occupied his present post since 1981. He was graduated from the University's National Law Center in 1942. After service in the U.S. Navy during World War II, he became judge of the Trial Justice Court (now the General District Court of Fairfax County, Virginia). He subsequently went into private practice, but five years afterwards he was named Judge of the Sixteenth Judicial District of Virginia. He held that judgeship from 1956 until 1961 when he was appointed to the Virginia Supreme Court.

Carrico is a member of the Board of Directors of the Conference of Chief Justices and a member of the Judicial Council of Virginia. He has been chairman of the Judicial Council since 1981. A member of the legal fraternity Phi Delta Phi, he also holds membership in two honorary societies, the Order of the Coif and Omicron Delta Kappa.

Wayne Rasmussen has been called the "keeper of the agricultural keys" by The New York Times. He has been guarding the historical truth

(continued on back)

VISITORS -- Linda Mingo, left, project manager for the renovation in progress at United Church on 20th Street which will be GW's teaching facility for radio and television, talked with (l to r) Linda Lyons, docents and tours coordinator, National Building Museum; Edith Zober of the museum; and W.G. Dickinson, recently when a group from the museum's tour series, "Construction Watch," visited to observe the renovation as an example of adaptive use. The George Hyman Construction Company is general contractor for the renovation.

HELEN AND SERGIUS YAKOBSON SCHOLARSHIP ESTABLISHED

The Helen and Sergius Yakobson Graduate Scholarship in Russian and East European Studies has been established as a perpetual endowment at the University.

Sergius and Helen Yakobson

It is expected that the first award will be made to a graduate student in the Spring Semester of 1988. In accordance with the terms of the scholarship, recipients will be limited to Russian emigres or defectors. The scholarship is to be awarded on the basis of financial need and excellent academic achievement or potential as determined by a selection committee of faculty appointed by the dean of the School of Public and International Affairs.

Mrs. Yakobson, now professor emeritus of Russian, came to the University in 1951 as the first lecturer and teacher of the Russian language. In the fall of 1963, she began the Chinese program at the University. Advancing through the professorial ranks, Mrs. Yakobson was named full professor in 1966. She continued teaching at GW until her retirement in 1983. She was chairman of the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures from 1953 to 1969.

Over the years, the University community benefitted from her service on the Faculty Senate as well as on many University and faculty-student committees.

Born in St. Petersburg, Russia, she migrated with her family to China in the wake of the Russian Revolution and was educated in Tientsin and Harbin, earning a B.S. in law. She began her career as a teacher of Russian language and literature in Tientsin.

In 1938, Helen Yakobson arrived in the United States, having fled the Japanese invasion of China. She worked as a translator and tutor at Columbia University where she also co-authored the classic textbook Essentials of Russian with A. Gronicka. In the three years before she came to George Washington, 1947 to 1950, she was a writer, announcer and information specialist for the Voice of America.

Active in national teaching and language organizations, she is a past president of the American Association of Teachers of Slavic and East European Languages and of the Southern Conference on Slavic Studies. She was the recipient of a National Foreign Language Achievement Award from the National Federation of Modern Language Teachers Association. She is currently the Washington Chapter president and motivating force behind Litfund, a fund for the relief of Russian writers and scientists in exile.

Sergius Yakobson was born in Moscow, Russia, in 1901. He studied there and in Germany, where, in 1926, he received a doctorate in history from the University of Berlin. Escaping the Nazis, he fled to England where he worked as librarian and honorary lecturer in Russian history at the University of London School of Slavonic and East European Studies from 1934 to 1940.

Dr. Yakobson came to the United States in 1941 on a grant from the Rockefeller Research Foundation to join the staff of the Library of Congress as a Fellow in Slavic History. In 1947 he became an analyst in foreign affairs in the library's Legislative Reference Service and two years later was named chief of the Foreign Affairs Division. In 1950, he became senior specialist in Russian

(continued on back)

FINE ARTS FACULTY WORKS IN DIMOCK GALLERY

Works by the University's full-time and part-time fine arts faculty members will be on exhibition in the Dimock Gallery from Thursday, February 5, through Thursday, February 26. Many of our faculty members are well-known Washington artists whose works have been exhibited widely in the Washington metropolitan area.

There will be approximately 25 artists represented in the exhibition, which will include painting, sculpture, photographs, prints, drawings, artists' books, ceramics, mixed-media collages and design. Some of the works will be for sale.

Full-time fine arts faculty members are: Constance Costigan, H. I. Gates, Fuller Griffith, Jerry Lake, Samuel Molina, Turker Ozdogan, Arthur Hall Smith, Jeffrey Stephanic, Douglas H Teller, William Woodward and Frank Wright.

Part-time fine arts faculty members are: Scip Barnhart, Michael Dennis, Jo Harrop, Donald Lyn, Lenore Miller, Karen Montgomery, John Paradiso, Richard Rodriguez, Rosalind Schanzer, Claudia Smigrod, Clarice Smith, Bradley Stevens and Carrie Turrell.

Gallery hours are: 10 am to 5 pm, Tuesday through Friday; noon to 5 pm, Saturday; closed to the public on Monday.

1987 WINTER CONVOCATION

(continued from front)

for the U.S. Department of Agriculture since the days of President Roosevelt.

A native of Ryegate, Montana, he left farming behind and came to Washington in 1937 after his graduation from the University of Montana. He enrolled in George Washington and received an M.A. in 1939, and a doctorate in 1950. Rasmussen never moved too far away from agriculture, serving as a federal agricultural historian from 1937 until his August, 1986 retirement from his final post as chief of USDA's agricultural history branch. Experts consider him to be the nation's foremost agricultural historian.

His institutional memory has formed the basis for advising secretaries of agriculture throughout the past nine administrations. The author of several books and articles, Rasmussen is active in many historical and agricultural organizations; he has received numerous awards and honors, including USDA's Superior Service Award.

John Francis Latimer was educated at Mississippi College, the University of Chicago and Yale University, where he received his Ph.D. in 1929. Except for five years of naval service during World War II, Dr. Latimer was an active professor at the University from 1936 until he received the status of professor emeritus of classics in May of 1973. His administrative service included periods as chairman of the Department of Classical Languages and Literatures; as assistant dean of the then College of General Studies; assistant and associate dean of faculties; and director of foreign student affairs.

His reputation has extended far beyond the GW campus, gaining him national attention for his devotion to the classical cause in America, especially in his capacity, first as president, then as executive secretary, of the American Classical League. He has had published more than 125 articles on classical subjects and has been active in numerous professional organizations, including the American Philological Association and the Archeological Institute of America.

HOMECOMING '87 IS THIS WEEKEND

"Catch the Spirit" is the theme of this year's homecoming weekend on Friday and Saturday, February 6 and 7. There will be a pep rally and party on Friday night from 9 pm to 1 am in the Continental Room at the Marvin Center.

Saturday, the men's and women's basketball teams will play back to back games against Rutgers and the University of Massachusetts in the Smith Center beginning at 1 pm. The General Alumni Association will hold a Pre-game Alumni Reception at Alumni House from 12 noon to 1 pm with an admission price of $2.00.

Festivities will culminate on Saturday night with a semi-formal dinner-dance on the first floor of the Marvin Center. Dinner will be served 8 to 10 pm with dancing until 1 am. Tickets for the dinner-dance are $12.00 per person and are available in Room 424 of the Marvin Center. For further information, call Ext. 7100.

GELMAN LIBRARY OPEN HOUSE -- Kathy Kapsak, left, a graduate student in psychology, got a quick lesson on the PSYCHLIT on-line system from Rebeccah Hersch, an independent researcher, during the library's January 15 open house for faculty and graduate students.

DIMOCK GALLERY LOAN DAYS

University offices may borrow art work from the University's permanent collection through the Dimock Gallery. There is a one-time loan charge of $15.00 per object. Works available for loan will be on display Wednesday and Thursday, February 11 and 12, from 11 am to 3 pm in Lower Lisner Auditorium just outside the gallery.

Those who wish to return a work are asked to do so on the first day (February 11) so that these pieces will be available for other offices. New works may be borrowed on either of the two designated days.

Adequate security must exist in the area in which objects are to be installed, and objects may not be moved from their designated location without first receiving approval from the gallery.

Payment for art work is made through an interdepartmental procurement. Prospective borrowers should have their billing account number on hand at the exhibit. The gallery reserves the right to recall objects at any time at the discretion of the curator and without an immediate replacement. For further information, call Ext. 7091.

COUNSELING CENTER PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT SERIES

Throughout Spring Semester, 1987, the Counseling Center will be sponsoring a Personal Development Series which offers programs ranging from "Study Skills" to "Exploring Your Image with Dance and Movement" to "Public Speaking Anxiety." Beginning this month, "Gone But Not Forgotten: A Group Dealing with Loss," is being offered along with a "Procrastination Prevention Program" and a group for "Adult Children of Parents Who Drink."

Both men and women will have a chance to participate in two new groups entitled, "Men and Masculinity: From Superman to Wimp" and "Building Self-Confidence for Women." All students are welcome to sign up either by calling Ext. 46550 or by visiting the Counseling Center at 718 21st Street, from 9 am to 5 pm, Monday through Friday. Since space is limited, students should register as early as possible.

The beginnings of several of the Personal Development Series groups have been delayed due to the recent weather problems. Interested students should call the center to find out which groups have been rescheduled.

HELEN AND SERGIUS YAKOBSON

(continued from front)

affairs and, a year later, assumed additional responsibilities as chief of the newly created Slavic and Central European Division. He served in this dual capacity until his retirement in 1971.

Dr. Yakobson, who died in November, 1979, gained an international reputation for his pioneering efforts in developing the collections of Slavic materials, both in the Library of Congress and at many major American universities. Lecturing widely and publishing a number of scholarly articles, he had a principal role in broadening the horizons of scholarship in the Slavic and East European fields.

GW

CAREER WEEK '87 PANELISTS

The Career Service Center's "Career Week '87" will run from 12 noon to 8 pm, Tuesday, February 3 through Thursday, February 5, at the Marvin Center, fourth floor.

Some of the featured speakers participating in 50 career panels will be: Adrian Wainwright, former personnel director and vice-president for administration for the Export-Import Bank; GW Trustee and management consultant Hazel Hanback; Charles Cammack, an IBM recruiting professional; former Washington Redskin and sports consultant Brig Owens; and Frank Rothschild of the Earle Palmer Brown Companies.

Among members of the University community participating will be : Anthony Yezer, professor of economics; Jay Shotel, professor of special education, and Bruce Kramer, professor of engineering and applied science.

For more information, call Ext. 46495.

BRIEFLY...

Asian Affairs Upcoming Lectures -- "High Level Manpower Needs of Asian Countries," will be discussed today, February 2, by Charles Stewart, a GW professor of economics. "Political Developments in the Philippines" will be the topic addressed by Ulric Straus, Department of State, retired, Monday, February 9.

Both events are sponsored by the Sino-Soviet Institute and are to be held in Gelman Library, Room 729, from 2 to 4 pm. For further information and invitation, call Ext. 6340.

RECORDS AND BENEFITS NOTE ON AGE DISCRIMINATION

In an amendment to the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA), the federal government has eliminated mandatory retirement at any age as of January 1, 1987. Tenured faculty at colleges and universities are included among the exceptions and may be retired at age 70 until January 1, 1994, unless state law prohibits it. Compulsory retirement also continues to be permitted for certain executive employees.

Beginning January 1, 1988, Wayne Collins, manager of Records and Benefits, informs us, employers will be required to continue to make contributions to pension plans for all regular employees, regardless of their ages.

There have been changes in the rules concerning distributions from retirement plans and taxes on these distributions. Participants in the University's Retirement Plan should be sure to read TIAA/CREF's January, 1987, issue of "The Participant" which explains these changes.

Thanks are extended to all employees who contacted their senators and representatives to urge their support in retaining certain favorable retirement provisions of the law. The response did have a positive effect on the outcome of the legislation, particularly in maintaining TIAA/CREF's tax-exempt status.

SATELLITE TELECONFERENCE WITH DR. PETER F. DRUCKER

There will be a live satellite teleconference with Dr. Peter F. Drucker on Thursday, February 5, originating from GWTV.

Topics of discussion will be innovation and entrepreneurship; how fundamental changes in economy and society affect your business; and your effectiveness as an executive.

The teleconference is sponsored by the University's Continuing Engineering Education Program. There is a charge and a special lower student rate. For more information, call J. Brock at Ext. 7103.

---

Communications Technology Lecture -- Robert W. Lucky, executive director of research, Communications Sciences Division of AT&T Bell Laboratories, will lecture on "Communications Technology: Problems and Promises for the Information Age," Wednesday, February 4, at 4 pm in the Marvin Theatre. The lecture is part of the Distinguished Colloquia Series sponsored by the Department of Electrical Engineering and Computer Science and is open to the GW community.

DR. PAUL CALIBRISI DIES

Dr. Paul Calibrisi, professor emeritus of anatomy, died December 19, 1986, while attending an event in honor of his services to the medical school at the University of Puerto Rico. He was 79.

Dr. Calibrisi had been associated with the School of Medicine since 1938. He was appointed to the faculty after serving as a fellow in anatomy. During the course of his career at George Washington, his activities and honors were many. One of his greatest honors came from medical students, faculty and the Medical Alumni Association when he was selected as the first Medical Alumni Professor in 1966.

For nearly 20 years, Dr. Calibrisi served as chairman of the admissions committee of the School of Medicine, and in the early 1970s, he was the school's acting director of admissions and consultant to the dean of admissions. After his retirement from GW, Dr. Calibrisi joined the faculty of the University of Puerto Rico School of Medicine.

February 9, 1987

GW Report

(463)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Dan Moshavi, assistant editor

President Lloyd H. Elliott

PRESIDENT ELLIOTT TO RETIRE IN 1988

President Lloyd H. Elliott is today announcing his retirement as president of the University, effective at the end of the 1987-88 academic year, on June 30, 1988.

One of the most respected leaders in American education, Dr. Elliott came to George Washington in 1965, and at the time of his retirement will have presided over the University for 23 years, a time of unparalleled academic growth. During this same period, there has been an exponential rise in the University's endowment from under $8 million to more than $200 million.

In announcing plans for a presidential search, which will begin in early spring of this year, Board of Trustees Chairman Everett W. Bellows said, "Lloyd Elliott has placed this University near the top of American higher education, and we intend to build on this foundation in seeking a successor."

In reflecting further on President Elliott's long tenure, and speaking for the Board of Trustees, Chairman Bellows said, "Dr. Elliott has taken advantage of our superb location in the heart of Washington, has substantially upgraded our faculty, has built an outstanding library, and provided a legacy of which we are all very proud. The Elliott era has been one of unparalleled academic growth and achievement and we are now enjoying the fruits of years of diligence and hard work by the President and his associates."

In announcing his plans to retire, Dr. Elliott says, "I am proud of the academic expansion that has taken place over the past quarter of a century and am ready to give someone else a chance to bring new vision and fresh perspectives to this outstanding university. I will miss the daily challenges and gratifications of this office, but I look forward to welcoming my successor to one of the world's best assignments."

Speaking of the University's ongoing fund-raising campaign with its $75 million goal, the president says, "I will be devoting substantial time to ensure that the fund drive is a success."

Lloyd Hartman Elliott came to the University after serving, for seven years, as president of the University of Maine. He earned his doctorate in education at the University of Colorado; he later served as executive assistant to the president of Cornell University and was director of summer sessions and professor of education there.

Having also worked as an elementary and high school teacher, school principal, assistant superintendent and college teacher, Dr. Elliott has a total of more than 50 years of experience in education.

A native of West Virginia, Dr. Elliott and his wife Betty have a son, Eugene, and a daughter, Patricia, and two grandchildren. The holder of eight honorary degrees, President Elliott is a member of many local and national boards and commissions.

VICE PRESIDENT FRENCH OUTLINES COMING CHANGES IN INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

In a speech at a faculty meeting of the School of Public and International Affairs on Friday, February 6, Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French outlined the changes that are expected to be made in the next several years with regard to the school's name and faculty and spoke of the process that has led to the changes.

The vice president expressed his appreciation to a five-member review committee, chaired by Anthony G. Coates, assistant vice president for academic affairs, which had been directed to the part of the report of the Commission for the Year 2000 which proposed that "the School of Public and International Affairs be reorganized as the School for International Affairs and established as the focal point and coordinating unit for all international programs" at the University.

ELLIOTT ENDORSES CHANGE

With regard to the School of Public and International Affairs and the Coates Review Committee report, President Lloyd H. Elliott has said, "We have hidden our light under a basket -- a very good program in International Affairs has not been . . . allowed reasonable visibility. . . . It is already late for the proposed reorganization -- but better late than never!"

Copies of the committee's report were distributed to SPIA faculty at the end of the meeting along with an implementation memorandum addressed to Dr. French from SPIA Dean Maurice A. East. Dr. French stated that not all the recommendations of the committee would be implemented by the administration.

Referring to the decision taken by the SPIA faculty to terminate its programs in urban affairs and public affairs, the vice president discussed the reconstitution of a faculty sufficient for a reorganized School of International Affairs (SIA). He said that in addition to the 14 "stipendiary " faculty presently assigned to the school, the budget lines for eight to 12 members currently budgeted to Columbian Colleege would be shifted to SIA. The entire group would remain full members of their departments, of Columbian College, and the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

There will be new faculty positions, probably two a year for each of the next three years. The positions will be defined to meet programmatic and curricular needs in SIA but those occupying them will be recruited as members of their respective departments and will hold membership in other appropriate schools.

This process will create a faculty of 25 to 30 full-time members for SIA. This group, following guidelines to be developed by the Deans' Council, will then elect, as affiliated members, faculty from any other school of the University whose teaching and research make such an affiliation appropriate.

Describing this as a relatively small change, Vice President French commented, "Small changes sometimes have large consequences."

French enumerated a number of positive results which he sees as coming with this change. The University's academic administration will be in a position to consider the resource needs of three clearly related schools -- Columbian College, the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and the School of

(continued on back)

GW AWARDS NOMINATIONS DUE FEBRUARY 27

The Joint Committee of Faculty and Students is seeking nominations for the 11th annual George Washington Awards, to be presented at the spring commencements.

The awards were established in 1976 to give special recognition to members of the GW community whose accomplishments have had a broad impact and whose service has been above and beyond that which is usual or expected.

All students, faculty, administrators and staff of the University may submit nominations or be nominated. Guidelines and forms for nominations can be obtained from the Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs, Rice Hall, Room 403.

Deadline for nominations is Friday, February 27th at 5 pm. Up to 10 awards will be presented at the spring commencements. For more information, contact the Office of Student Affairs, 994-7210.

DEAN KELLY TO RETURN TO FULL-TIME TEACHING

At a meeting of the faculty of the School of Education and Human Development on January 21 Dean Eugene W. Kelly Jr. announced his intention to resign as dean at the end of the current academic year in order to return to full-time teaching. He has been dean of the school since 1979.

In his remarks to the faculty, Dean Kelly said that the school "has made substantial progress toward goals of excellence in the George Washington University of the future as envisioned by the Commission for the Year 2000. This progress builds on SEHD's long record of achievement and continuing self-improvement. I am grateful that I could serve as your dean and make a contribution during this significant period in the School's development."

Assistant Dean Jay R. Shotel has accepted appointment as Acting Dean as of July 1, 1987, and continuing until a new dean has been selected.

In accepting Dean Kelly's resignation, President Lloyd H. Elliott said, "I commend Dean Kelly for his tireless efforts on behalf of the School and the entire University. In a period of serious challenge, he has strengthened the programs of the School in many ways. We are all pleased that Dr. Kelly will continue to serve the University as he moves to full-time work in the faculty."

FRENCH OUTLINES COMING CHANGES

(continued from front)
International Affairs -- in a fully coordinated and long-term manner. For those key departments supporting the instruction programs and research agendas of all three schools, he said, the change will formalize the process of a balanced and coordinated response to the sometimes conflicting demands of the three schools and their deans.

"As I see it," Dr. French remarked, "the implementation of the proposed changes will have a modest and gradual impact on the capacity of the affected departments (associated with Columbian College) to continue to serve the needs of the two other schools. There will be some impact as a result of the realignment of energies and duties of those faculty whose primary responsibility will now be directed to SIA."

He told the faculty that, to monitor this, he will ask Deans Lovett, Solomon and East to report to him at the end of the first and second years any specific negative impacts on the abilities of the departments to serve the needs of Columbian College or the Graduate School. "None of us is so wrong-headed as to wish to build up one unit of the University in a way that would weaken other units," he commented.

For individual faculty, the vice president said, "There will be a new clarity as to the University's expectations with respect to professional development and to distribution of effort in fulfillment of professional responsibilities." He acknowledged that there will be conflicts, but encouraged individual faculty members to see this arrangement as one of "shared, distributed loyalties."

Curriculum changes will be made through the Deans' Council and other appropriate committees, on the basis of SIA faculty's own evaluations, Dr. French said.

In response to the rhetorical question, 'When and how is all this to be carried out?' Dr. French said, "The answer is: as broadly and as expeditiously as it is responsibly possible to do."

Noting that discussion is going forward on several fronts, Vice President French said there have been two meetings of the Deans' Council and that more will follow as well as a future special meeting of the SPIA faculty. He said he has been meeting with Deans Lovett and Solomon.

Vice President French said he had met with the Faculty Senate Education and Admissions Policy Committee as well as the Senate's Executive Committee and that the latter committee is now determining how the Senate will go about preparing comments on the planned changes, in accordance with the Faculty Code.

Prior to the Board of Trustees March meeting, Dr. French will give a full report of current progress to the Board's Academic Affairs Committee. At the May meeting, he hopes to inform the full Board of the major aspects of the reconstitution of the school. He stated that a change in the name of the school will need to be approved by the Board.

Dr. French noted that this sequence provides a full three months "during which we can de-bug and demystify these developmenmts."

In concluding, Dr. French said, "I believe all of us see a distinctive niche for a School of International Affairs quite different in its philosophy of the curriculum, in the research interests of its faculty, and in the career orientations of its students from any other in this metropolitan area. . . . We owe it to the one thousand students who have come to study international affairs with us, we owe it to our University, we owe it, indeed, to our country to go forward to create the kind of school of which we have a vision. . . . I commend the Coates report to you for your study, and I look forward to our discussion of its implementation. Beyond that I look forward to the evolution of a high-profile, high-morale, high-quality School of International Affairs that will make a powerful and distinctive contribution to the new GW for which we all are working."

(COPIES of the Coates Review Committee Report are available from the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs.)

BRIEFLY...

Moral Issues in Accounting -- John Kultgen, professor of philosophy at the University of Missouri, will speak on "The Moral Limits of Professionalism," Monday, February 23, from 4 to 6 pm, in the Marvin Center, Rooms 413-414. The event is part of a seminar series on "Moral Issues in Accounting" and is sponsored by the Department of Philosophy and Columbian College in conjunction with the Department of Accountancy and SGBA.

International Activities Tea -- The Office of International Activities, School of Education and Human Development, is sponsoring a "Get Acquainted Tea" welcoming the international students and honoring the Fulbright Scholars. The tea will be held on Thursday, February 12, from 4 to 6 pm, in the Presidents's Room of the University Club. For reservations, contact Dr. Dorothy A. Moore, Ext. 7138.

Arms Control Lecture -- Dr. A.R. Turrentine, former assistant director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, will speak on "Arms Control Issues After Reykjavik," on Tuesday, February 10, from 2 to 4 pm at the Marvin Center, Rooms 404-406. The event is sponsored by the School of Public and International Affairs and the Security Policy Studies Program. Admission is free.

GW Club Breakfast -- The GW University Club will host breakfast with Elizabeth Burtner, professor emeritus of physical education, on Wednesday, February 11, at 8 am. For reservations and further information, call Ext. 6610.

Counseling Center Reschedules Group -- The Counseling Center has rescheduled the start of the personal development group "Building Self Confidence for Women" due to snow-related delays. The group will begin Monday, February 23, from 4 to 5:30 pm.

AUTOGRAPH -- Kenneth Victor Young, left, senior designer, Office of Exhibits Central, The Smithsonian Institution, guest curator for the Colonnade Gallery's current exhibition "African-American Art, Now," signed an exhibition catalogue for an art enthusiast at the opening of the exhibition, which will run through February 19.

ORAL PROFICIENCY TESTER-TRAINING WORKSHOP

Columbian College, in coordination with the Slavic Department, is hosting an oral proficiency tester-training workshop, to be conducted by the American Council for the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL), February 18-21.

More than 70 participants attending the workshop will become eligible for ACTFL certification as testers of language speaking proficiency in French, Spanish, Portuguese, Russian, Japanese, and English as a Second Language. The ACTFL guidelines have become the standard measure of language proficiency for U.S. academic institutions and U.S. government agencies, according to Richard Robin, assistant professor of Russian.

Irene Thompson, associate professor of Russian, was instrumental in developing the ACTFL guidelines. She and Professor Robin are GW's two currently certified testers.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP, full-time, Department of Pathology, position for recent Ph.D. preferably in nucleic acid biochemistry to investigate mechanism of tryptophan action. Project involves mRNA isolation, in vitro translation, eukaryotic DNA cloning and related techniques. Send curriculum vitae and names of three references to: Dr. H. Sidransky, Department of Pathology, GWUMC, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Washington DC 20037.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Cancer Research Laboratories, Division of Hematology/Oncology, position available immediately for an individual with a strong background in tissue culture and various assays of the immune function, including mixed lymphocyte reactions, proliferative response to mitogens and antigens, etc. Training in the operation of flow cytometers and/or molecular biology techniques is desirable. A bachelor's degree in immunology, microbiology or related field is required. Salary based on background and experience. Contact: Dr. Marcelo B. Sztein, the Cancer Research Laboratories, Division of Hematology/Oncology, Department of Medicine, Ross Hall Rm. 705, Ext. 8290.

ROBERT MONTGOMERY TO READ

Robert Montgomery, who teaches script-writing at Columbia University, will read from his works on Thursday, February 19, at 8 pm in Room B-120 of the Academic Center. He is the author of numerous musicals and plays including the musicals "Subject to Fits" and "Lotta" which were produced by Joseph Papp at New York's Public Theater.

Montgomery received a Drama Desk award as Most Promising Playwright of 1971, and has been a Guggenheim and National Endowment for the Arts Fellow. The reading, to be followed by a reception, is open to the public. For further information, call Ext. 6180.

GEORGE M. KOEHL DIES

George M. Koehl, professor emeritus of physics and former associate dean of Columbian College, died January 14 at his son Robert's home in Silver Spring. He was 77.

Koehl was born in College Point, New York. He graduated from the University of North Carolina and later earned a master's degree in physics at GW.

He joined the GW faculty when he moved here in 1937. During World War II, he worked at the Carnegie Institute in Washington and for this he received the Naval Ordnance Development Award.

At the University, Koehl was the dean of the then junior college from 1953 to 1962 and associate dean of Columbian College from 1962 to 1971. He retired with the rank of professor emeritus in 1975.

Koehl received an award from the Washington Academy of Science for distinguished service in the teaching of physics.

His wife of 49 years, Alma M. Koehl, died in 1985. He is survived by two children, Robert Koehl and Mimi Koehl, and two grandchildren.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, available immediately in the Cancer Research Laboratories, Division of Hematology/Oncology. Experience in performing tissue culture and various assays of the immune function and a commitment to learn and operate a FACS IV flow cytometer are required. A master's or equivalent degree in biochemistry, immunology, or related field is required. Contact: Dr. Marcelo B. Sztein, Ross Hall Rm. 705, Department of Medicine, Ext. 8290.

SENIOR SCIENTIST, full-time, Radiologic Sciences and Technology, Senior Scientist in Medicinal Chemistry group. Ph.D. chemist with experience in design and synthesis of receptor ligands and enzyme inhibitors directed toward neuroreceptor quantification. Opportunity for similar type studies with steroid hormones. Send resume to: Geri Rosen, Grants Manager, Radiologic Sciences & Technology, GWUMC, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Rm. 708, Washington, DC 20037.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

February 23, 1987

GW Report

(464)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

MARTIN ROUDABUSH RECEIVES GIFTS, GOOD WISHES

Martin M. Roudabush, senior resident consulting engineer, who will complete nearly 37 years service to the University when he retires at the end of this month, received congratulations and good wishes from a large number of his friends from across the University community at a February 2 reception in the GW Club.

Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl spoke of him as a person "who has real insights into mechanical and electrical systems, who understood the occult art of meeting heating and cooling needs in all kinds of different spaces."

Robert F. Dickman, assistant treasurer for facilities design and construction, said, in presenting Mr. Roudabush a certificate of appreciation, "I can't tell you how much I think of this man. I've really grown to admire him. He is Mr. Dependable and he has been some kind of help to the University and to me."

In presenting Martin a George Washington rocking chair, Roger Lyons, director of facility planning, said that as a former member of the armed Merchant Marine during World War II, "Martin has brought an authentic seagoing flair to the operation, and he also knows a lot about coffee." He was asked to take a "ceremonial rock" in his gold and black chair. Mrs. Roudabush, Betty, said she had always wanted such a chair and that she plans to enjoy it too.

The members of the Art Department, with whom the honoree has had a special friendship both because of his extraordinary service to the department during the construction of its Smith Hall facilities and because of his great interest in photography, selected the color processing system Martin was presented on behalf of all nis friends at the University. In making the presentation, Jerry Lake, associate professor of photography, noted that Roudabush can now develop color film at home. Lake jokingly asked him to come to a make-up photography lab the following Thursday, since two recent absences had been noticed.

Roudabush, who is proficient in handling sophisticated cameras and equipment, also received a gift certificate from his friends and was told it was "so you can always run down to a camera shop and buy a Polaroid."

Physical Plant Director Robert F. Burch said, "Martin is merely the best engineer I've ever met. He is an able, able professional." PPD's gift to him was a photo album filled with views of the University.

Mr. Roudabush, who came to the University in November, 1950, said in an informal response, "I've been in the labor market 50 years. I decided it was time to leave at least temporarily. I'll probably be so bored, I'll be looking for something to do. I'm looking forward to expanding my picture taking ability. I've learned a little from the Photography Department over the last 10 or 12 years. It's been a pleasure."

RECEPTION -- Mr. and Mrs. Martin M. Roudabush talked with Mrs. Ethel Bothuel, director, Office of Equal Employment Activities, right, at the February 2 reception.

BLACK HISTORY MONTH SYMPOSIUM IS FEBRUARY 25

The University's Committee on Historical Observances (COHO) will sponsor a symposium in observance of Black History Month on Wednesday, February 25, in the President's Room of the GW University Club at 12 noon.

The symposium, on the theme of "Afro-Americans and the Constitution: Colonial Times to the Present," will be moderated by James O. Horton, associate professor of history and American civilization. Panel members will be: C. Thomas Dienes, professor of law, and Carroll Robinson, chairman of the Black Law Students Association.

B.J. Gillespie, executive director of the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History, will trace the origins of Black History Month. Vice President for Academic Affairs, Roderick S. French, will present awards to black students with outstanding academic records.

A reception will follow the program. Everyone is welcome to attend. For further information, call Ext. 6048.

JONATHAN YARDLEY SPEAKS AT WINTER CONVOCATION

BANNERS of the University's schools and colleges added color to the Winter Convocation. Nancy Ryan, center, co-president of the fourth year class in the School of Medicine and Health Sciences, carried her school's flag.

"This is my hope for you: do well, but do good too," Washington Post book critic and columnist Jonathan Yardley told some 700 graduates at the February 15 Winter Convocation in the Smith Center. Yardley gave the principal address and received the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.

Referring to the widely held concept expressed in the phrase "You can have it all," Yardley called this point of view "the ultimate expression of the contemporary American appetite for self-indulgence." He continued, "Life is not a process of limitless triumphs and acquisition, but one of compromise and accommodation. . . . The sooner you come to terms with this inescapable reality, the happier and more productive you will be. . . . There is a crucial difference between 'having it all' and making the most of yourselves. . . . If 'You can have it all' is a pernicious slogan, then 'Be all that you can be' is a responsible one, for it says that all of us benefit when each of us seeks genuine self-fulfillment -- that the general good is served when people try to make as much of themselves as they can. . . . We seem in danger of forgetting that we are at once individuals and members of a community. . . . what we too often forget these days is that it is possible to be fulfilled individually while still contributing, in one way or another, to the general welfare. We seem to have lost sight of this dual obligation."

Yardley told the graduates, "College may be over, but education has only just begun." He noted that some of his listeners might know precisely what they would be doing, while others might know nothing at all but that in making their way through the future they "will learn more than the classroom could ever teach." The speaker declared that "the satisfactions of adult growth and maturation are vastly more rewarding than those of youthful experimentation and training." He advised, "Keep yourself open to possibility: to growth, to learning, to surprise. . . . You may not be able to control your life's course," he said, "but you can determine its quality."

At the beginning of his remarks, Yardley paid marked tribute to President Lloyd H. Elliott, noting that a week before Dr. Elliott had announced his retirement in 1988. He called this "a time in which a landmark in the history of George Washiyngton University has been passed" and commented on the University's "extraordinary progress" in the past 23 years. "By common agreement, a very large share of the credit for these steps forward belongs to Lloyd Elliott," he said, continuing, "What I should like to say is that President Elliott stands out among university presidents not merely for the depth and breadth of his accomplishments, and for his longevity in office, but for the selflessness with which he has served. ... President Elliott has served the institution rather than the man -- which is precisely why his service has been so effective."

President Elliott, in his traditional charge to the

(continued on back)

OPPORTUNITY TO PURCHASE ACADEMIC REGALIA

Faculty members interested in the purchase of academic regalia are invited to talk with a representative of Collegiate Cap and Gown Company on Monday, March 2. The representative will be in Marvin Center, Room 418, from 10 am to 3 pm. Regalia ordered at this time will arrive for use at our May graduation ceremonies. Full-time faculty members are eligible for a partial reimbursement for any purchase made. Contact the Business Affairs Office (994-6400) for details.

WINTER CONVOCATION

(continued from front)

graduates, said, "If you have obtained some skills while here at George Washington, you now have something which the business world calls 'capital.' You may hold that capital close to your chest, you may market it widely, but the chances are that you will improve your lot in life by using it. . . . I hope you will agree with our speaker today, that your education does not stop there. Your economic well-being is but a vehicle in which you may yourself be or become a truly responsible member of the human community. . . . You will move about in an ever-shrinking world. If you fulfill the opportunities you meet, you will leave each stop along life's highway just a little better than you found it. In so doing you will also demonstrate that man's humanity to man has also been a part of your education at this University. As the good wishes of your alma mater accompany you, may they also be a constant reminder of both those opportunities and those obligations."

EVERETT H. JOHNSON DIES

Everett H. Johnson, professor emeritus of statistics and former chairman of GW's Statistics Department, died January 17, at Shady Grove Adventist Hospital. He was 83.

Johnson taught at GW for 22 years before retiring in 1969. A native of Indiana, he was a graduate of DePauw University. He received a master's degree in statistics at Lehigh University and a doctorate in statistics at the University of Michigan.

Before moving to the D.C. area in the mid-1940s, he taught at the University of Detroit, New York University, and the University of Minnesota. he was a senior accountant with the Office of Price Administration during World War II.

His wife, Dorothy Crosby Johnson, died in 1978. He leaves no immediate survivors.

JOHN F. McCARTHY DIES

John F. McCarthy Jr., associate professor emeritus of business administration, died January 17. He was 72.

McCarthy came to the University in 1964, after serving 23 years a regular officer in the U.S. Air Force. He held a bachelor's degree from Duquesne University and a master's degree in industrial management from the University of Pittsburgh. He was also a graduate of several U.S. Air Force officer schools and pursued advanced studies at the Harvard Graduate School of Business, Alabama University, and the University of Maryland in Fontainbleau, France.

He was responsible for developing the first data processing program in SGBA. As chair of the Management Science Department, he helped develop fields of instruction in Information Systems, Behavioral Sciences, Research and Development Management, Quantitative Methods and General Systems Theory.

His professional affiliations included the American Management Association, American Military Comptrollers, Society for the Advancement of Management, Alpha Kappa Psi and the Armed Forces Management Association.

KAREN MONTGOMERY, assistant professorial lecturer in art, posed with her sculpture "Flower Lady" at the opening of the Dimock Gallery's Fine Arts Faculty Exhibition which runs through February 26.

CERAMICS AND SCULPTURE IN COLONNADE GALLERY

The exhibition "G.W.U. Ceramics Program: Annual Student Show" scheduled for the Colonnade Gallery from Wednesday, February 25, through Thursday, April 2, will feature works by ceramics and sculpture undergraduate majors and graduate degree candidates.

The student artists whose works will be shown are: Faika Atallah, Edith Margit Berne-Morton, Ralph Bucci, Leslie Burka, Beverly Carpenter, Vivian Davis, Darrell Dean, Mutaz El-Dajani, Hussein M. Elhwegi, Stephen Henderson, Andrea Lukowsky, Lauri McMichael, Lucrecia Palza, Jerry Paxton and Pearl Zaltzman.

Sponsors are the Department of Art and the Governing Board of the Marvin Center. Hours for the Colonnade Gallery, on the third floor of Marvin Center, are 10 am to 7 pm daily.

Members of the University community are invited to an opening reception February 25 in the gallery from 5 to 7 pm.

NEW RECORDS AND BENEFITS MANAGER IS WAYNE COLLINS

James E. Clifford, director of personnel services, announces the appointment of Wayne Collins as the new manager of records and benefits. Collins has over 17 years of personnel management experience, including positions in compensation, benefits, employee relations. He has also served as a congressional aide. Collins has completed his bachelor's and master's degrees and the Certified Employee Benefits Specialist Program through the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania.

Sue Bilsky, previously acting manager of records and benefits, has returned to her position as personnel projects specialist.

USIA GRANT OPPORTUNITY

The U.S. Information Agency has announced its International Educational/Cultural Exchange Program for 1987-88. Applications are being accepted for projects beginning after May 1, 1987. Contact Helen Spencer, Office of Sponsored Research, Ext. 46255 for guidelines.

INTERNATIONAL LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE TO BE FEBRUARY 26

A conference on the topic "U.S. International Leadership for the 21st Century: Building a National Foreign Affairs Constituency" will be held on Thursday, February 26, from 5:30 to 7 pm in the Marvin Theatre.

The conference will address the question, Is it possible to develop a national foreign affairs constituency to support and encourage an adequate investment in U.S. foreign relations? A recently released policy paper of the Atlantic Council of the United States and the Citizens' Network for Foreign Affairs is said to define the problem of declining resources at a time when the United States' foreign affairs agenda is increasingly complex and difficult. The paper suggests a method of organizing a nationwide constituency to deal with this.

SPIA Dean Maurice A. East will host the conference and introduce panelists. They are: Deputy Secretary of State John C. Whitehead; J. Allan Hovey Jr., author of the joint policy paper; John H. Costello, executive vice president, Citizens' Network for Foreign Affairs; and George M. Seignious II, president of the Atlantic Council, who will also serve as panel moderator. Following their presentations, panel members will respond to questions and comments from the floor.

The conference is sponsored by SPIA, the Atlantic Council of the United States, and the Citizens' Network for Foreign Affairs. For further information and an invitation, call Barbara Balaj, 676-6624 or 676-6240.

ANTHONY G. COATES, professor of geology and assistant vice president for academic affairs, answered questions thoughtfully after his February First Wednesday Lecture on the theory of evolution.

SCHOLARSHIPS AVAILABLE FOR CHINESE STUDENTS

The University's Council on International Programs announces the availability of 10 scholarships for Chinese students from the People's Republic of China. These scholarships cover full tuition, laboratory and University Center fees. Living and other expenses are not provided. Scholarships will be awarded to highly qualified students in graduate degree programs.

The application deadline is Wednesday, April 15. For applications and information, write to Dr. C.W. Shih, Chairman, Chinese Scholarship Committee, Gelman Library, Room 616.

BRIEFLY...

Engineers' Ball -- The Engineers' Council of SEAS will sponsor the 57th Annual Engineers' Ball on Saturday, February 28, from 6:30 pm to 1 am, at the Crystal Gateway Marriott Hotel in Arlington. For reservations and information, call Ext. 6744.

Excursion to Maryland State Archives -- The Friends of the Libraries at GW will tour the Maryland State Archives in Annapolis on Thursday, February 26. Following the tour, Dr. Edward C. Papenfuse, State Archivist and Commissioner of Land Patents, will discuss the adventures of planning, building, and operating the new Archives. A chartered bus will depart from Gelman Library at 12:30 pm and return by 5 pm. For reservations and further information, call Joan Hill at Ext. 6455.

Tennis Fund-raiser -- The GW Men's Tennis Team will hold a tennis party and fund-raiser on Saturday, February 28, from 8 pm to midnight at the Arlington Y Tennis and Squash Club. All tennis players, GW Alumni, students, faculty, and staff are invited to attend. There is a general fee and a reduced fee for high school and college students. Proceeds will benefit the GW Men's Tennis Team. For reservations and further information, call Ed McKee at Ext. 6650.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Department of Biochemistry. (Individual to study lipoprotein metabolism in experimental diabetes. Required: B.S. degree in science; experience in protein purification and isolation hepatocytes desirable). Send resume to: Dr. Patricia O'Looney, Department of Biochemistry, GWUMC, 2300 Eye Street, NW Washington, DC 20037.

RESEARCH SCIENTIST, full-time, Division of Nuclear Medicine, (Individual with Ph.D. in biochemistry with experience in cell culture, cell binding assay, hybridoma technology, animal biodistribution, biolabeling, molecular immunology. Contact Dr. Richard C. Reba, GWUMC Ext. 3786.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

SEYYED H. NASR, university professor of Islamic studies, lectured on "Man and the Sacred," November 15, at the Temenos Conference at Dartington Hall, South Devon, Great Britain. He gave a series of lectures on Islamic science, education and art at the University of Malaysia, the Science University in Penang and the National Archives, November 17-26.

TAPAN K. NAYAK, assistant professor of statistics, presented a paper entitled, "Testing Equality of Conditionally Independent Exponential Distributions," December 6, at Probability-Statistics Day in Catonsville, Maryland.

March 2, 1987 (465)

GW Report

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

PRESIDENTIAL SEARCH COMMITTEE ANNOUNCED

The appointment of a Presidential Search Committee is being announced today by Board of Trustees Chairman Everett Bellows. In making this announcement, Chairman Bellows says, "The most important responsibility for the Board of Trustees of The George Washington University in the next several months will be to select an outstanding academic leader and administrator to succeed Lloyd Elliott. Accordingly the Board had approved the composition of a Presidential Search Committee to conduct a national search for the next president of the University.

"Because the Board is committed to the appropriate involvement of key constituencies of the University in the search, I am pleased to announce the membership of a broadly based committee:

Trustee L. Stanley Crane, Chairman
Trustee Oliver T. Carr Jr.
Trustee Lyn H. Clark
Trustee Nancy B. Dudley
Trustee Thaddeus A. Lindner
Trustee John T. Sapienza
Trustee Robert H. Smith
Professor of Engineering and Applied Science Walter K. Kahn
Professor of Medicine and of Pathology Lawrence S. Lessin
Professor of Law Peter Raven-Hansen and Mr. Thomas V. Lydon, Vice President of the General Alumni Association.

"In addition, the George Washington University Student Association has been asked to nominate a GW student to serve on the Search Committee. The Chairman of the Board will serve ex officio. I am grateful to these individuals for their willingness to serve in this very important capacity."

To ensure that this critical and delicate task is conducted with maximum effectiveness, the Board of Trustees has invited the Presidential Search Consultation Service (PSCS) of the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges to serve as consultants to the Committee and to the Board. Members of the staff of the PSCS have wide experience in higher education and have served as consultants in many searches. They have already been quite helpful in the preliminary planning for this search. Members of the PSCS staff will visit the campus just prior to the Spring Recess to meet with representatives of our various constituencies to enable the PSCS staff to become very familiar with the University in preparation for their relationship with the Search Committee.

In addition to these interviews, which will be arranged by specific invitation, there will be an open meeting, at which PSCS staff members will be present to hear from any member of the University community who wishes to comment on the criteria for selecting a new president and on what that new president's agenda should encompass for the next decade. This will be an opportunity to reach the full University community -- students, faculty, staff, administrative personnel, and Medical Center professional and staff personnel, who might otherwise not be heard. This open meeting will be held in the Marvin Theatre on Wednesday, March 11 at 4:30 p.m.

While the Presidential Search Committee will have the principal responsibility for the recruitment of a president, there will be future occasions during the search when others at the University may be called upon to assist in this effort which is pre-eminently important to the future of The George Washington University.

In conclusion, Chairman Bellows says: "Although it will be essential to protect the identity of candidates in the search process, I know that Chairman Crane will issue brief, periodic reports to keep the University community informed about the process itself. The Committee will begin to function in mid-April."

MECHELECIV AWARD -- SEAS Dean Harold Liebowitz, left, congratulates MechelecIv Editor-in-Chief Dan Briller on the Medalist Award for All-Around Excellence presented to MechelecIv, the student magazine of SEAS, by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association at its 63rd Awards Ceremony. Briller is a senior in mechanical engineering.

JOSEPH CORDES IS FIRST WEDNESDAY LECTURER

Joseph J. Cordes, professor of economics, will speak on "Tax Reform, the Economy, and You," on Thursday, March 5, at 8 pm in the Continental Room of the Marvin Center.

Cordes was an Economic Policy Fellow at the Brookings Institution, and served as a contributor to Treasury I which laid the groundwork for the present tax bill. The event, sponsored by Alumni Relations, is part of the First Wednesday Lecture Series. The lecture has been scheduled for March 5 because March 4 is Ash Wednesday. Admission is free, but call Ext. 6435 to reserve seating.

Dinner, for both members and non-members of the GW University Club will be served beforehand, beginning at 6:30 pm. Call Ext. 6610 for dinner reservations.

GW ACTIVELY PARTICIPATES IN THE FULBRIGHT PROGRAM

"George Washington's participation in and benefits from the Fulbright Program are a very valuable part of our role as an international university," says Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French.

Dr. Dorothy Moore, left, with Fulbright scholar Elizabeth Lopez from Costa Rica.

The purpose of the program, now in its 41st year, as set forth in the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 is "to enable the Government of the United States to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries." Fulbright scholar awards for university teaching and postdoctoral research are funded and administered by the United States Information Agency.

Cassandra A. Pyle, executive director of the Council for Exchange of Scholars, the organization responsible for direct administration of the program, says, "The participation of your institution in educational exchange is a valuable contribution to international scholarly communication."

This year, 1986-87, the University has three American Fulbright Scholars and four Visiting Fulbright Scholars. In addition, there are three graduate students from Latin America who are here with the support of Fulbright Awards.

Our American Fulbright Scholars are: James E. Falk, professor of operations research, who is lecturing on optimization methods and applications at Kiev State University in the U.S.S.R. for the year; Joseph A Greenberg, professor of education, who developed a faculty development model for higher education at the Federal University of Santa Catarina, Florianopolis, Brazil, in March of 1986; and Robert H. Walker, professor of American civilization, who is lecturing on American literature and society at the University of Uppsala, Sweden, for six months (September 1986-June 1987).

1986-87 Visiting Fulbright Scholars at George Washington have included: Aurora Carbonell Catilo, assistant professor, College of Public Administration, University of the Philippines, Manila, who will be conducting research in legislative survival strategies in the United States as lessons for the Philippine Legislature, in association with the Department of Political Science, through May of this year; Jorge D. Jimenez-Garcia, lecturer, Department of Geology and Mining, Universidad Catolica Madre y Maestra, Santiago, Dominican Republic, who pursued research in geochemistry of the Tireo Formation through the Department of Geology from September through December 1986; Ran-soo Kim, professor, Department of Education, Yonsei University, Seoul, Korea, who will be studying the comparative education policies of the United States and Korea through GW's Department of Education through August of this year; and Jong Yil Ra, professor, Department of Political Science, Kyunghee University, Seoul, Korea, whose research topic was "Actors in the Korean War: A Comparative Study in the Perceptions and Attitudes of the Peoples of Three Countries (R.O.K, U.S.A., U.K.) in the Korean War, 1950-53," in association with the Department of Political Science.

The Fulbright scholars in SEHD were introduced at a recent tea at the GW Club, sponsored by the school's

(continued on back)

CBS NEWS' NEWSMARK WILL BE HERE TONIGHT

CBS Radio News will tape a question and answer discussion between the GW community and a panel of CBS network correspondents on the topic "Iran: The Presidency and the Press" here at the University this evening, March 2.

The taping is scheduled for 8:30 pm in Room 108 of Funger Hall, 2201 G Street, NW. The event is free of charge and the public is invited.

The program will be distributed nationwide through CBS Radio news stations for broadcast.

The format will be audience participation -- with audience members asking the panelists questions on the chosen topic. The four correspondents will be: Bill Plante, White House correspondent, who will serve as moderator; Fred Graham, law; Rita Braver, Department of Justice; and Eric Engberg, general assignment, currently covering the Iran controversy.

CBS anticipates obtaining sufficient material from the one evening's taping to provide material for two separate broadcasts. The schedule calls for taping approximately 50 minutes of questions and answers, a short break and a second period of 50 minutes of taping questions and answers.

The CBS network welcomes serious and substantive questions about media coverage of the presidency and of the current Iran controversy.

Seating will be on a first-come, first-served basis. After the taping begins, it is expected that no one will be seated until the first break. Those who wish to come should arrive before 8:15 pm.

Locally, CBS News' Newsmark can be heard on WTOP Radio at 11:06 on Sunday nights. The broadcast dates for these tapings are tentatively scheduled for March 8 and March 15.

For more information, call the Journalism Department, 676-6225, or News and Public Affairs, 676-6460.

FULBRIGHT SCHOLARS

(continued from front)

Office of International Activities, which is directed by Professor of Education Dorothy A. Moore.

Alejandra Miranda-Naon from Argentina and Dora Sequeira from Costa Rica are both enrolled in GW's Museum Education Program. Both came to the program with what Carol B. Stapp, program director, called "outstanding museum experience." Alejandra, who is interning with the Coordinator for Special Education for the Smithsonian Institution, said, "This is my fourth university and I have never enjoyed one so much as this one... In the program we are all the time redefining and playing with concepts."

Dora Sequeira, is doing her internship at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, preparing interpretive materials for the gallery's exhibition, "Hispanic Art in the United States," scheduled for next October. She commented, "I feel privileged to be associated with the whole museum community in Washington."

Elizabeth Lopez from San Jose, Costa Rica, is enrolled in the doctoral program in counseling, and is a child clinical psychologist and school administrator. She described GW's professional guidance as "warm and helpful," adding, "The level of academic excellence at which I'm being taught and asked to perform makes this a very profound experience." She said she is sure the Fulbright Program will lead to a better world.

COSTIGAN AND MOLINA WORKS IN DIMOCK GALLERY

The Dimock Gallery will feature Constance Costigan's pastel drawings and Sam Molina's color photographs from Thursday, March 5, through Wednesday, April 1.

Constance Costigan, associate professor of design, works in what has been described as "an enigmatic style." Forms emerge from dense layers of hatched strokes and invite the viewer to linger and discern the shapes. A work is completed only after hours of careful layering and adjusting of tones.

Costigan's works appear in the permanent collections of the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, the Phillips Collection, the University of Iowa Museum, The George Washington University and numerous private collections here and abroad. She has received fellowships form the Ossabaw Island Project, the MacDowell Colony and the Hereward Lester Cooke Foundation.

Sam Molina, associate professor of art, photographs cities and sites around the world, from Big Sur to Lahore. He chooses exotic places and unusual textures so that his photographs offer fresh insights on the scenes presented.

Professor Molina's dual expertise in photography and graphic arts has won him many honors. His work is part of many international collections, both corporate and private. An active member of the Art Directors Club of Washington and coordinator of many graphic design seminars here, he has also conducted photography and graphic design seminars in the Philippines.

The Dimock Gallery exhibition will present approximately 30 works by the two artists. Gallery hours are Tuesday through Friday, 10 am to 5 pm; Saturday, noon to 5 pm; closed Mondays.

C.A.S.T. AWARD -- L to R, Alan Wade, chair of the Department of Communication and Theatre; Mrs. William M. Reynolds; and Chauncey M. DePew Professor of Public Speaking William M. Reynolds are shown at the reception following the opening of University Theatre's "The Adventures of Jonathan Corncob" when Professor and Mrs. Reynolds received an award from C.A.S.T. in recognition of their continuing support for the University Theatre. (C.A.S.T. stands for Contributing Associates in Support of the Theatre.)

GW Music

UPCOMING CONCERTS

The Music Department will present two concerts next Sunday and Monday. March 8, the GW Community Orchestra, conducted by William Wright, will perform symphonic works by Schubert and Beethoven. Soloists Henry Wixon, baritone, and Karen Campbell, contralto, will sing arias by Gounod and Bizet. The concert, which is free, begins at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre.

March 9, "Hersperus," an early music ensemble, will perform works from the libraries of three presidents: Washington, Jefferson and Madison, featuring the music of J.C. Bach, Guami, and Carr. Ensemble members are: Scott Reiss on recorders and hammered dulcimer; Tina Chancey on viola da gamba and fiddle; Mark Cudek on cittern and baroque guitar; and Peter Marshall performing on the harpsichord.

The March 9 concert will be in Room B-120 of the Academic Center at 8 pm. Tickets are $5.00, general admission; $3.00, faculty, staff, and alumni; and $1.00 for senior citizens and students. For further information and reservations, call Ext. 6245.

MILTON C. DEVOLITES DIES

Milton C. Devolites, professor emeritus of health services and administration since 1981, died December 17, at his home in Arlington. He was 71.

Devolites, a retired Army colonel, came to GW in 1972 after serving 32 years in the Medical Services Corps and the Army Medical Department. He received two Legion of Merit medals and two Army Commendation medals. He was responsible for developing the Health Services Administration Department's case study course. In recognition of his administrative capabilities, the American College of Hospital Administrators made him a Fellow in 1973. In 1974, he was named a Fellow of the Royal Society of Health of England.

Born in Eptahorion, Greece, Devolites emigrated to New Hampshire when he was 13. He was graduated from Harvard University and received his master's degree in hospital administration at Baylor University.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

E. DONALD DRIVER, director of International Student Services, was recently chosen for the Board of Directors of the Foreign Student Service Council of Washington, D.C., and will serve on the Executive Committee. The Council is a private non-profit organization assisting students from around the world attending colleges and schools in the Metropolitan D.C. area to develop a deeper understanding and appreciation of Americans.

JOHN D. HUNT, professor of travel and tourism, participated in a symposium on Film/Theater and Society. He spoke on "Tourism and the Arts" on January 10, in Aspen, Colorado. On January 15 and 19, he conducted Tourism Development and Marketing Needs Assessment and Strategy Development Workshops for the Idaho Travel Council in Boise and the North Dakota Division of Tourism Promotion in Minot. He also presented the keynote address, "Trends in Tourism Development and Marketing," at the North Dakota Tourism Conference and led a day-long needs assessment workshop.

EDWIN P. KULAWIEC, professor of education, presented a lecture, "The Underground Opposition in Poland Today," at the end-of-semester colloquium of the Political Science Department, University of New Hampshire, December 15.

CLARA M. LOVETT, professor of history, spoke at a symposium on intellectual relations between the Italian states and the American Republic, ca. 1780-1800, held in Florence, Italy, November 28-30. She lectured in Rome under USIA auspices, December 1-2. On December 12, she served on an Institute for International Education panel in New York. On December 15 and 16, she participated in the annual meeting of the Advisory Board, European Institute, The Wilson Center. December 28, she conducted a workshop for history department chairpersons at the annual meeting of the American Historical Association, in Chicago.

DORN C. McGRATH Jr., professor of urban and regional planning, attended an invitational symposium on "Large-Scale Collaborative Planning: Issues and Opportunities in Community and Economic Development," December 14-16, in Cambridge, Massachusetts. The symposium was sponsored by the International Downtown Association, Lincoln Institute of Land Policy, Interaction Associates, National Institute for Dispute Resolution and the Prudential Insurance Company.

PUBLICATIONS

JAMES R. BARTH, professor of economics, three articles: "A Time Series Analysis of the Relationship Between the Capital Stock and Federal Debt," co-authored, in Journal of Money, Credit and Banking, November 1986; "Benefits and Costs of Legal Restrictions on Personal Loan Markets," co-authored with Joseph Cordes and Anthony Yezer, professors of economics, in Journal of Law and Economics, October 1986; and "Government Debt, Government Spending, and Private Sector Behavior: Comment," co-authored, in American Economic Review, December 1986.

CHARLENE BICKFORD, director of the First Federal Congress Project, an article on the project in the fall issue of Prologue, the Journal of the National Archives. This issue focuses on four historical editing projects relating to the ratification of the U.S. Constitution and the early years of the U.S. government and was planned as part of the National Archives' observance of the U.S. Constitution Bicentennial.

HERBERT J. DAVIS, associate professor of business administration, a co-authored article, "A Comparative Study of the Managerial Values of Anglo-Americans and Mexican Nationals: Implications for Transnational Corporations," in Journal of Social Psychology, Vol. 126, No. 5, October, 1986, pp. 675-677.

PETER F. KLAREN, professor of history, contributed a chapter on "The Origins of Modern Peru, 1880-1930," to The Cambridge History of Latin America volume V, pp. 587- 640 (CUP, 1986).

NADINE NATOV, professor of Russian, an article, "The Problem of Guilt in the Works of Mikhail Bulgakov," in Proceedings of the International Symposium in Italy: Atti del convegno "Mikhail Bulgakov," Universita degle Studi di Milano, Milan, 1986.

PERSONNEL NOTICE

RESEARCH SCIENTISTS, two full-time, Department of Biochemistry. (Individuals with skills in organic synthesis of antiviral drugs. Requires a related doctoral degree. Must be able to assume responsibility for planning and supervising research and must have two to five years of research and/or college-level teaching in a related field. A master's degree plus five years of increasingly responsible experience may be accepted in lieu of a doctoral degree.) Contact: Dr. Martyn Bailey, Ross Hall, Room 540, Ext. 3518.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

March 9, 1987

GW Report

(466)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

BLACK HISTORY SYMPOSIUM TRACES CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS

Black History Month concluded at GW with a symposium on the theme "The Afro-American and the Constitution: Colonial Times to Present," February 25, in the President's Room in the GW Club.

"Part of what we are celebrating here today is evidence of the ability of humans to redefine possibilities and to realize possibilities that could not have been predicted in earlier times," said Roderick French, vice president for academic affairs, who, before the symposium, awarded five black students with certificates of academic achievement. Those honored were: Robert M. Dagaillard, Michele Stevens, Deidre Patterson, Bethany Green, and Erin Austin.

This point was further discussed by panelists C. Thomas Dienes, professor of law, and Carroll Robinson, chairperson of the Black Law Student Association, as they examined the evolution of constitutional and civil rights for Afro-Americans. James O. Horton, professor of history and American civilization, moderated the discussion which was attended by a large lunchtime audience.

Three stages of constitutional development were traced by Dienes: the nation's founding, the reconstruction (the period shortly after the Civil War), and what he called the second reconstruction (the 1950s and '60's civil rights movement).

Although constitutional rights for blacks have progressed considerably from the time when the founding fathers considered blacks personal property, the Constitution still has two major limitations, according to Dienes. First, equal protection guarantees can be violated only by purposeful action, and Dienes noted "it is extremely hard for lawyers to prove intent to discriminate." Second, the state has to be made a partner in racial discrimination which gives private discrimination some immunity from the law, he said.

Both panelists agreed that concern over racial equality has waned during the Reagan years and that more stringent enforcement of the civil rights laws is necessary.

B.J. Gillespie, executive director of the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History, gave a brief overview of Black History Month which began in 1926 as Black History Week. Gillespie said, Carter Woodson, who initiated the idea, intended Black History Week to be a celebration of the contribution blacks have made throughout the history of civilization.

ACHIEVERS -- L to R, Deidre Patterson, Bethany Green and Erin Austin with the certificates for high academic achievement they received at the Black History Month symposium.

MARDI GRAS AT THE PHONATHON -- L to R, University Trustee Hazel S. Hanback, General Alumni Association President John R. Manning, and Columbian College Alumni Association President John Chaney, donned a mask and hats just before the beginning of the March 3 Columbian College Night telephoning which brought in a total of $19,081 for the University's Annual Fund. The Phonathon volunteer telephoning will continue through April 2. To join in, call Ext. 6414.

SURVEYS FIND FEARS OF "AMERIKA" UNFOUNDED

ABC's mini-series "Amerika" had no measurable effect on attitudes toward the Soviet Union, the United Nations or U.S.-Soviet relations, according to before and after national surveys directed by Professor of Public Administration William C. Adams. "The critics of both the left and the right were wrong," Adams says. "It takes more than a television mini-series to shift longstanding opinions on fundamental issues."

Among U.S. adults who watched at least six hours of "Amerika," there were no statistically significant changes in their opinions of Soviet motives, of the likelihood and severity of a Soviet occupation, or of their willingness to fight a war rather than accept Soviet rule.

Viewers were divided as to whether the ABC series was too harsh or too kind in depicting a Soviet occupation. Nearly half of the viewers surveyed (45 percent) said the ABC portrayal was "accurate." One-fourth (25 percent) said ABC made life under Soviet domination look better than it really would be, while another one-fourth (25 percent) said ABC made it look worse.

These findings are from a national survey of 1,110 people, done five days before the "Amerika" series began, and reinterviews with 798 people in the five days following the conclusion of the series.

PRESTIGIOUS PANEL DISCUSSES FOREIGN POLICY CONSTITUENCY

There exists in the American public a constituency for the foreign affairs needs of the United States and this needs to be further identified in the view of J. Allan Hovey Jr., international relations specialist, U.S. General Accounting Office and former vice president of Radio Free Europe. "We say that the constituency is there but remains to be organized," he said at a February 26 conference here at the University.

The conference on the topic "U.S. International Leadership for the 21st Century: Building a National Foreign Affairs Constituency" was held in the Marvin Theatre. A recently released policy paper of the Atlantic Council of the United States and the Citizens Network for Foreign Affairs on building a national foreign affairs constituency provided a basis for discussion. Dr. Hovey was the author of the joint policy paper.

In a panel discussion at the conference, Dr. Hovey appeared with Deputy Secretary of State John C. Whitehead; John H. Costello, executive vice president, Citizens Network for Foreign Affairs; George M. Seignious, president of the Atlantic Council; and Andrew J. Goodpaster, chairman of the Atlantic Council.

Secretary Whitehead said, "Precisely because foreign affairs issues do not lend themselves to quick fixes, Americans have to be prepared to tackle them on a steady, long-term basis. Yet just as we should be consolidating and building upon our recent gains, we stand on the threshold of a major reversal brought about by penny-wise, pound-foolish budget decisions . . . These cuts threaten our vital interests not just in one or two regions, but around the globe."

He listed a number of areas in which U.S. vital interests are already threatened because of the severe cuts in appropriations. Among them are: U.S. commitments to countries in NATO; U.S. economic aid to the fledgling democracies of Jamaica and the Dominican Republic; the U.S. cooperative relationship with Colombia in combatting narcotics traffic and terrorism; funding for the multilateral development banks; support for State Department staffing needs and overseas posts; embassy security programs and the campaign against international terrorism.

(continued on back)

OPEN MEETING ON UNIVERSITY PRESIDENCY IS MARCH 11

There will be an open meeting, sponsored by the Presidential Search Committee, on Wednesday, March 11, at 4:30 pm in the Marvin Theatre where staff members of the PSCS (Presidential Search Consultation Service) will be present to hear from any member of the University community.

Staff members of the Presidential Search Consultation Service (PSCS) of the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges are serving as consultants to the University's Presidential Search Committee.

This meeting has been arranged so that students, faculty, staff, administrative personnel, and Medical Center professional and staff personnel may comment on the criteria for selecting a new president and on what that new president's agenda should encompass for the next decade. The meeting is designed to obtain the views of those who might otherwise not be heard.

DEAN EAST SPEAKS TO GREEKS ON DEANS' LISTS

"It's important that the Greek system be noticed, recognized and applauded for its academic pursuits," SPIA Dean Maurice A. East told those attending a February 20 reception in honor of members of sororities and fraternities at GW who have made the Dean's List in their schools.

The event was sponsored by the Student Activities Office, the Panhellenic Council and the Inter-Fraternity Forum.

The dean referred to his own experience as a member of Phi Delta Theta and said that he had enjoyed working with the Greek system for 12 years at the University of Kentucky.

"A fraternity and sorority system provides ways of developing leadership and ways to get experience in taking responsibilities," he observed. "I think that's the most important contribution the fraternity system can make. The system offers a multiplied number of leadership opportunities that you would not get in any other environment."

Dean East stated he believes it to be important to maintain ties between the Greek system and the faculty and offered those present an idea related to his own area. "I suggest you try an adopt-a-country approach," he said. "Take a country for a year, plan your social events around it, try to get to know students and faculty from that country. This might be the sort of thing you would want to think about."

Returning to the theme of the day, he concluded, "This academic honor is something I'm glad to be part of. All of you have something to be proud of."

In introducing Dean East, Keith Robbins, Student Activities Office Greek affairs coordinator, announced that 120 members of the Greek system, out of a total membership of approximately 1,000, had made the Deans' Lists in the Fall Semester.

BRIEFLY...

Neil Tilkens in Concert -- Neil Tilkens, associate professor of music, will appear in a faculty concert on Tuesday, March 10, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. He will perform works by Beethoven, Liszt, and R. Schumann. Admission is $4 general public; $3 for faculty, staff, and alumni; and $1 for seniors citizens and students. For more information, call 994-6245.

Soviet Viewpoint -- Sergey M. Rogov, first secretary of the Soviet Embassy and representative to the USA-Canada Institute, will speak on "Strategic Stability and Crisis Stability: The Soviet Perspective," Tuesday, March 10, from 2 to 4 pm in Corcoran Hall, Room 104. The event is sponsored by SPIA and the Security Policy Studies Program. For further information, call Ext. 6240.

University Club Breakfast -- Jerry B. Harvey, professor of management science, will speak on"Encouraging Students to Cheat: An Ethical Requirement for Competent Professing," at a March 11 Breakfast, at 8 am in the GW University Club. For reservations, call Ext. 6610.

AUTHOR JEAN McGARRY, left, assistant professor of English, talked with Philip Raush, Columbian College sophomore, at a recent booksigning session for her volume of poetry "Airs of Providence" at GW Bookstore.

FOREIGN POLICY CONSTITUENCY

(continued from front)

John H. Costello of the Citizens Network for Foreign Affairs, speaking as one who has accepted the task of working directly for the building of a visible and effective constituency for foreign affairs in this country, outlined the initial steps he envisions to begin to bring this about.

He emphasized the need to "educate Americans" and said, "It's going to take a considerable amount of time and effort to address the lack of understanding which has existed for decades . . . Initially our aim is to engage the institutions -- corporations, universities, labor, trade associations, local and regional business councils, world affairs councils, etc. -- which have a clear constituency and a capacity to communicate with that constituency. We are initiating a limited series of 'sub networks' in agriculture, international trade/export and international finance."

Costello said that he and those working with him see as a priority the establishment of two-way communications so that those interested in foreign affairs can have the opportunity to voice their views to key policy makers in the administration and the Congress on local, regional and national levels.

The question and answer period with the invited audience showed both a range of opinion about U.S. foreign policy and a disposition to support it in general.

The event was sponsored by SPIA, the Atlantic Council of the United States and the Citizens Network for Foreign Affairs. SPIA Dean Maurice A. East welcomed those attending and introduced the panel.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

CHARLES BINGMAN, distinguished visiting professor of public administration, was the keynote speaker for the annual training conference for mid-level managers for the Central Intelligence Agency in December, 1986, and spoke on "The Future of Management."

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor, addressed the 1987 Annual Meeting of the Association of American Colleges on the subject of "Socio-Economics." He has also accepted an invitation to become a member of the editorial board of Transaction/SOCIETY.

JAMES O. HORTON, associate professor of American history and civilization, delivered a lecture at New York City's Fraunces Tavern Museum on February 12 on "Blacks and the Constitution." On February 13 he spoke at Brandeis University on the subject, "Black Women, Family and Community During Slavery." Horton is the director of the Afro-American Communities Project of the National Museum of American History, Archives Center, a sponsored project of GW.

ARTHUR D. KIRSCH, professor of statistics and of psychology, was an Honorary Research Fellow, October and November, in the department of statistics University College London, where he gave a paper, "Improving Reliability Estimates by Improving Expert Judgments."

JONATHAN D. MORENO, associate professor of philosophy and health care sciences, presented an overview of principles of biomedical ethics for the Nursing Leadership Conference at Children's Hospital National Medical Center, January 14.

NADINE NATOV, professor of Russian, chaired a session of the North American Dostoevsky Society at the Annual Meeting of the American Association of Teachers of Slavic and East European Languages in New York, December, 28, 1986. In her capacity as the Executive Secretary of the International Dostoevsky Society, she presented a report on the Sixth International Dostoevsky Symposium held in England, in August. In November, she participated in the conference of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies held in New Orleans; in the session "Witnesses of Their Times" she presented a paper, "Natalie Herzen's Diary, Memoirs, and Letters."

CHRISTOPHER STEN, associate professor of English, chaired a program on "Melville and the Arts" in connection with the Melville Society's annual meeting at the Modern Language Association Convention in New York on December 28.

PUBLICATIONS

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, an article, "Moral Action in the Poetry of Wu Chia-chi (1618-84)," in Harvard Journal of Asiatic Studies, Vol. 46, No. 2 (Dec. 1986), pp. 387-469.

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, two essays and two reviews: an essay on general aspects of American reactions to the outside world in American Character and Foreign Policy, Michael P. Hamilton, ed., Grand Rapids, Michigan, William B. Eerdmans Publishing Co., 1986, pp. 1-13; an essay on "The Two Georges: The President and the King," in American Studies International 24, October 1986, pp. 53-73; a review of Bertram Wyatt-Brown's Yankee Saints and Southern Sinners, in Journal of the Early Republic 6, Fall 1986, pp. 328-29; and a review of Bernard Bailyn's The Peopling of British North America and Voyagers to the West: A Passage in the Peopling of America on the Eve of the Revolution, in Boston Sunday Globe, November 30, 1986, pp. B.35-36.

JAMES WILLIS ROBB, professor of Romance languages, an article, "La cena de Alfonso Reyes, cuento onirico," in M.H. Forster/J. Ortega (eds.), De la Cronica a la Nueva Narrativa Mexicana, Mexico: Ed. Oasis, 1986, pp. 115-125.

KLAUS THOENELT, professor of German, a chapter, "Heinrich Mann Als Exil-Autor in Frankreich: Moralismus-Darstellung und Moralistischer Darstellungsmodus in Den Henri Quatre-Romanen" in Helmut F. Pfanner, (ed.) Kulturelle Wechselbeziehungen im Exil-Exile across Cultures, Bonn: Bouvier Verlag Herbert Grundmann, 1986.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

MASS SPECTROSCOPIST, full-time, Department of Pharmacology. (Recent postdoctoral or other experienced person to supervise mass spectrometry research laboratory. No routine samples. Experience in quantitative analysis of drugs preferred. May be eligible for Research Faculty appointment.) Send resume and three references to : Dr. Fred Abramson, Department of Pharmacology, GW School of Medicine, Washington, DC 20037.

RESEARCH ASSISTANTS, full-time, the Biostatistics Center, (Individuals to assist statisticians with data management and analysis for medical research studies. Minimum requirements: B.A. or B.S. degree and SAS programming experience. Experience with IBM PC compatibles, dBase III, Paradox and Crosstalk desirable. Multiple positions at various levels. Send resume to Joan Young, GW Biostatistics Center, 6110 Executive Blvd., Rockville, MD 20852. No phone calls please.

RESEARCH SCIENTIST, full-time, Division of Nuclear Medicine, (Individual with Ph.D. in biochemistry with experience in cell culture, cell binding assay, hybridoma technology, animal biodistribution, biolabeling, molecular immunology). Contact: Dr. Richard Reba, Ext. 3371.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

March 23, 1987

GW Report

(467)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

DISCUSSIONS UNDERWAY FOR POSSIBLE MERGER OF BENJAMIN FRANKLIN UNIVERSITY INTO GW

Officials of The George Washington University and of Benjamin Franklin University have announced that discussions have begun between the two institutions regarding the possible merger of Benjamin Franklin University (BFU), a Washington, D.C., school of accountancy and financial management, into The George Washington University (GW).

Officers from the two universities have signed a non-binding memorandum of intent to serve as the basis for further exploration of the feasibility of this proposed transaction in terms of its academic, financial and legal aspects.

"This potential merger appears to be advantageous to both institutions and to the currently enrolled students of Benjamin Franklin University," said President Lloyd H. Elliott. "GW would be offering an opportunity for qualified BFU students to continue and enhance their education."

The Board of Trustees of each university has authorized the continuation of talks between the two institutions.

If the discussions are successful, Benjamin Franklin would transfer all or part of its assets to George Washington, and qualified BFU undergraduate and graduate students would be admitted to GW and enrolled in the School of Government and Business Administration. Subject to further curriculum evaluation by GW, BFU students would be eligible to receive transfer credits for the satisfactory completion of comparable courses from BFU.

Recognizing the discrepancy between tuition at the two universities, GW would provide assistance to defray in part the additional tuition expense of students who transfer from BFU to GW. After provision is made for BFU liabilities and tuition assistance, any remaining assets would be used to establish a permanent Benjamin Franklin endowment fund for purposes to be determined by GW.

Founded in 1925 by the late John Thomas Kennedy, a law graduate of The George Washington University, Benjamin Franklin University has a current enrollment of

(continued on back)

GW COOPERATES WITH D.C. RIDES

The University is cooperating with the Government of the District of Columbia's Rideshare Program, D.C. RIDES, in providing free computerized matching assistance for both cars and vans.

Rideshare is seen as helping reduce traffic congestion, decreasing air pollution and saving energy. Faculty, staff and students are encouraged to complete an application and return it directly to D.C. RIDES for processing.

The information a potential car or van pooler gives is confidential and will only be used for rideshare matching. The information on individual commuting schedules will be entered into a computer database to be matched with approximately 10,000 commuters in this region who are also interested in carpooling or in using public transit to get to and from work or school.

Participants will be mailed a current list of names, telephone numbers and work hours of other employees and students who live in the same area and who have indicated an interest in sharing the ride. Home addresses will not appear on anyone's matchlist and there is no obligation to form or join a pool arrangement.

To obtain an application, contact the Parking Services Office, 2211 H Street, NW, or call 994-PARK, or contact D.C. RIDES at 939-8014 or 332-RIDE.

"BROWN BAG" DAY IN SUBSTANCE ABUSE CAMPAIGN

The George Washington University Medical Center is participating with WTOP Radio, WUSA-TV9 and the D.C. Hospital Association in a current campaign against substance abuse.

A "Brown Bag Day" is scheduled for Wednesday, March 25, from 10 am to 7 pm in the GW Hospital lobby. Members of the public are invited to bring in all of their prescription and over-the-counter medications (in a brown bag) to be analyzed by the hospital's registered pharmacists. They will review the medications for safety and will answer questions about medication use. The University Hospital's pharmacists are members of the D.C. Society of Registered Hospital Pharmacists.

There will be forums on the general topic "Drug and Alcohol Abuse in the Workplace" in the GW Medical School's auditorium in April which will be open to the public. Details will be announced.

FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARIES FORUM IS MARCH 25

John Broderick, assistant librarian for research services at the Library of Congress, will speak on "Why Libraries Need Friends," Wednesday, March 25, at 4 pm in Gelman Library Room 202. Dr. Broderick will share insights gained from years of experience as a scholarly user of libraries and an administrator of library services. He is the author of a critical biography of Walt Whitman and editor of the ongoing multi-volume publication The Journal of Henry D. Thoreau.

The lecture, sponsored by the Friends of the Libraries Forum, will be followed by a reception and is open to the public. For reservations, call Joan Hill at Ext. 6455.

FACULTY ARTISTS Constance Costigan, left, and Sam Molina are shown in the Dimock Gallery where the exhibition of their works continues through April 1.

OPEN MEETING ON PRESIDENCY BRINGS OUT VARIED COMMENTS

A variety of opinions regarding both the qualifications and the agenda of the University's next president were expressed at the March 11 open meeting sponsored by the Presidential Search Committee and held in the Marvin Theatre. The discussion, which lasted for better than an hour, was guided by Dr. Ronald Stead of the Presidential Search Consultation Service (PSCS).

"We need somebody who can help us develop into our world-wide role and protect and enhance our graduate programs. The president has to be very good at dealing with the community and needs to be a mediator between the various schools," said a faculty member. "The 21st century is going to be very important from a technological point of view. I'd like to have somebody who has an understanding of that," he said.

In response to the question, "To what extent should the Report of the Commission for the Year 2000 be a road map for the next president?" a young alumnus commented. "As important as the report was," he said, "I didn't see that there was enough emphasis on the undergraduate programs. I don't think the idea of capping the undergraduate population at 5,000 or 6,000 is a good idea. I think we should have more dormitories and place greater emphasis on the undergraduate population."

A student commented that he would like to see a president "who recognizes the positive things that fraternities do. A little more recognition would do a lot." He said that fraternities can inspire loyalty and bring alumni back on campus.

A staff member said, "We need a forceful leader in the Consortium of Universities. We're facing some crucial issues in the city and I'm concerned for the libraries. In the consortium environment we are dealing with some rivalries."

Another staff member declared, "I'm interested in a president who can manage different constituencies. I'd like to see more addressing of students' needs. Students have personal needs, growth needs. I'd like a leader who would see that we have special services for health, for counseling, for career development."

Asked how they would feel about a president coming from a situation other than academic, several members of the group said they felt such a person "would have a terribly long learning period." A faculty member said he thought it would be ideal to have as president some one who has presided at or near the top of a private university in some kind of urban setting and some one who has worked to build up academic programs. The view was expressed that an exceptional person from outside would not have academic experience.

A faculty member pointed out that the Washington area

(continued on back)

NEW PRE-PRINTED PROCUREMENT FORMS

The Procurement and Supply Department has devised pre-printed order forms to be used when ordering items from University Stores. It is hoped the new forms will reduce ordering errors. Stores items are broken down into six categories, with an order form or forms for each. Details on procedures for procuring the new forms are being sent to all deans, department chairmen, department heads and officers.

Procurement and Supply will honor orders received on the old forms through Friday, April 3. Orders received on, or after, Monday, April 5, that are not on the new forms will be returned to the ordering department.

If there are questions about procuring the new forms, call James Walker at 994-7203.

GW RED CROSS BLOOD DRIVE IS MARCH 31 AND APRIL 1

The University's biannual Red Cross Blood Drive is scheduled for Tuesday, March 31, and Wednesday, April 1, in the Marvin Center Ballroom between 11 am and 5 pm. The goal for the drive is 120 pints.

An appointment system will be used to keep processing time to about an hour. The number to call for a donor appointment is 994-6555.

The Student Activities Office is coordinating the drive and asks everyone's cooperation in giving or helping with planning and encouraging others to donate. Those who are able to volunteer time should call Kathy Kigin at 994-6555.

Questions about donor eligibility (such as illness, medication, travel) may be directed to Alice Tyler of the Red Cross Nursing Office at 728-6520. The Red Cross has issued a reminder that there is no way anyone can get AIDS from donating blood.

In a letter to the members of the University community, President Lloyd H. Elliott has said, "I urge each of you to take this opportunity to make a truly individual contribution by participating in the blood drive on March 31 and April 1."

BRIEFLY...

Law Alumni Luncheon -- Martin Mendelsohn, J.D. 1966, will speak on "Nazis in America -- Recent Developments" at the National Lawyers Club, 1815 H Street, NW, on Thursday, March 26, at 12 noon. He is counsel to Simon Wiesenthal, and former Deputy Director of the office of Special Investigations of the U.S. Department of Justice. The event is sponsored by the Law Alumni Association. For reservations, call Ext. 6420.

Moral Issues in Accounting Series -- Michael Barrett, professor of accounting at University of Illinois, chicago, will speak on "Accountants as Superhumans and Auditors as Humans," Monday, March 30, 4-6 pm, in the Marvin Center, Room 402-404. For more information, call Ext. 6265.

Quit Smoking Clinic -- The Wellness Resource Center is sponsoring a quit smoking clinic which will meet on March 30, April 1, 3, 6, and 8 from 12 to 1 pm in Building K, Room 105. For more information, call Ext 6927.

Spring Dinner Dance -- The Tin Pan Alley Band will perform at this year's Spring Dinner Dance on Saturday, March 28, in the GW University Club. Dinner is a 7 pm and dancing will start at 8:30 pm. For reservations, call 4-6610.

JOSEPH J. CORDES, professor of economics, shed light on the many possible effects of the coming tax changes in his March 5 First Wednesday Lecture, sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office.

SYMPOSIUM ON INSIDER TRADING

GW's Financial Management Association will sponsor a symposium on insider trading on Wall Street, Monday, March 30, at 8 pm in the Letterman's Lounge of the Smith Center.

The symposium will feature experts from the public and private sectors who will suggest public policy, regulatory and industry responses which they deem necessary in light of the recent insider trading scandal on Wall Street.

The speakers will be: Cecilia Strodes, legislative affairs director of the Securities and Exchange Commission; Consuela Washington, counsel to the House Committee on Energy and Commerce; and Agnes Gautier, vice president of market surveillance for the New York Stock Exchange. There will be a question and answer period following the presentations. For more information, call 4-5769.

DAVID ST. JOHN TO READ MARCH 26

David St. John, author of three volumes of poetry -- Hush, The Shore, and No Heaven -- will read from his works on Thursday, March 26, at 8 pm in the Academic Center, Room B-120.

St. John, who teaches at the Johns Hopkins University, was awarded the Rome Fellowship by the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters in 1984. He has also received fellowships from the Guggenheim Foundation and the National Endowment for the Arts. He is a frequent contributor to The New Yorker, Poetry, and other literary magazines.

The reading, which is part of the English Department's Jenny McKean Moore series, is free and open to the public. For more information, call Ext. 6180.

UPCOMING SPIA LECTURES

Howard University Professor Nikolaos Stavrou will speak on "Bulgarian Nationalism and Security," Tuesday, March 24, between 2 and 4 pm, in Gelman Library, Room 729. The event, sponsored by the Institute for Sino-Soviet Studies, is by invitation only. Call Ext. 6340.

MIT Professor Rudi Dornbusch will present the keynote address at a panel on "The U.S. Trade Problem: Wons, Yens, and Pesos," Monday, March 30, from 3 to 5 pm, in the Continental Room, third floor, Marvin Center. The panelists will be Robert M. Dunn, professor of economics, Michael Mussa from the Council of Economic Advisors, and Joseph Pelzman, professor of economics.

The event is co-sponsored by SPIA and the Department of Economics. For more information, call Betty at Ext. 6150.

MEETING ON PRESIDENCY

(continued from front)

universities labor to some extent under a national image, expressed in the statement, "It's Washington, it's got to be political." He said that this view persists and commented, "Maybe we have to bend over a little bit to show that we are first and foremost an academic institution."

There was a brief discussion of whether it is better for administrative power to be centralized or decentralized. One faculty member said, "The answer is both. I think there's that kind of ambivalence among most people here. I've never felt it was too centralized. Centralized administrators are at times insensitive. There is a need for mitigating misunderstandings."

A faculty member introduced "the question of what we might call 'charisma,' of being visible," as possibly desirable in a president, and went on to describe this as "a form of leadership, a way of bringing consensus, of reducing feelings of difference, someone who has some kind of conviviality."

The subject of a new president's attitude on intercollegiate athletics was introduced. Those present did not seem to have strong feelings on the subject. One faculty member commented, "I don't see much to be gained by more sports emphasis. I do think there's something to be said for the opportunity to participate in sports. Some of the finest undergraduate institutions have rich intramural programs."

There were comments on the importance of a president's encouraging more faculty research; on the need for a president who is perceived to be accessible, to be concerned about the individual; and the need for a president who is aware of economic realities.

At the end of the discussion, Dr. Ronald Stead of PSCS, said to those present, "Really think about this and be prepared to suggest at least one person, perhaps by May, one really outstanding person that you think sounds right."

MERGER

(continued from front)

more than 300 students in its graduate and undergraduate programs. BFU currently offers Associate of Arts degrees in accounting and business management; Bachelor of Science degrees in internal auditing, management information systems, managerial accounting and public accounting; and Master of Science degrees in financial management and taxation. Since 1938, the school has been located at 1100 16th Street, NW.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

EDWARD F. KRIEG, executive-in-residence, delivered a lecture on February 2 on "Managing Corporate Culture Through Executive Education" as part of an executive roundtable on The Role of Executive Education in the New Information Industry. The roundtable was conducted by the Center for Telecommunications Management, Graduate School of Business Administration, University of Southern California.

DORN C. McGRATH JR., professor of urban and regional planning, chaired a panel presentation on airports and community development throughout the U.S. at the 66th Annual Meeting of the Transportation Research Board (TRB), January 12-15, in Washington. The panel was organized by McGrath as an extension of research being conducted by the National Research Council's TRB Committee on Airport Landside Capacity, on which he has served for the past year. He also lectured on "Ports, Politics, and Pirates in the Caribbean and the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts" while touring aboard the S.S. Royal Viking Sky during the holiday recess.

CYNTHIA McSWAIN, associate professor of Public Administration, did a program on Conflict Resolution and Negotiation for Prince Georges County, Maryland, Department of Parks and Recreation and Planning, November 9-11. In addition, she held a seminar on Oral and Written Communications for the University of North Carolina's MPA program on December 11 and 12.

RAYMOND L. PICKHOLTZ, professor of engineering and applied science was invited to give the Edwin Armstrong Lecture at the State University of New York (SUNY) at Stony Brook on February 6. The title of his talk was "Protocols for Key Management and Authentication in Telecommunications Networks." Professor Edwin Armstrong was the inventor of Frequency Modulation (FM) and at one time held most of the fundamental patents that made modern radio and television possible.

GARLAND K. WIGGS, professor of education, received the 1986 Gordon Lippitt Memorial Award of the Washington, DC, Chapter, American Society for Training and Development (ASTD) for 20 years of outstanding service to the Human Resource Development Profession, December 9, in Crystal City, Virgina.

PIEDMONT CEO TO BE HONORED BY SGBA ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

William R. Howard, president and chief executive officer of Piedmont Airlines, has been named "1987 CEO of the Year" by the SGBA Alumni Association.

Howard, who is the first GW alumnus to be chosen for the award, will be the guest speaker at the 5th annual CEO of the Year Recognition Luncheon, Wednesday, March 25, in the GW University Club, third floor, Marvin Center. He will talk about the Piedmont success story and the survival of the airline in a deregulated environment.

Howard earned an A.B. in 1953 and an LL.B. in 1956 from GW. He has been president and chief executive officer of Piedmont Aviation, Inc. since May 1983 and was elected chairman of the board of the company in December 1986.

The SGBA CEO of the Year award is presented annually to an outstanding American business leader who has advanced the success of his or her company through innovation and leadership. For reservations, call Ext. 7423.

March 30, 1987

GW Report

(468)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

A CERTIFICATE OF APPRECIATION was presented recently to Myron Friend, manager, computer operations, at the University's Center for Academic and Administrative Computing (CAAC), second from left, by Major Christopher Aiken on behalf of The National Committee for Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve, for Friend's assistance in facilitating leave from the computer center for Sergeant Stuart Simpson (a CAAC computer operator) so that he can serve his required period of six months active duty with the U.S. Army. F. William Rambo, CAAC director, is at the left.

DORN McGRATH IS CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE OF 100

Dorn C. McGrath Jr., professor of urban and regional planning has been elected chairman of the Committee of 100 on the Federal City.

Professor McGrath says, "Broadly, the purpose of the committee is to serve, in the National Capital area, the field of civic conscience and guardianship which falls in the void between parochial self-interest and national politics. It helps to fill the continuing need for a resident organization focusing on capital city problems, which can rally national, regional, and local organizations with similar interests."

Over the years, the Committee of 100 has been instrumental in the establishment of the National Capital Planning Commission; conservation of natural resources and areas including public acquisition of parklands along the Potomac River, Anacostia River, Rock Creek and other stream valleys to preserve them for future generations, and endorsement of measures to combat air and water pollution; preservation of numerous historic buildings, including the Old Patent Office, Old Corcoran Gallery and Old Stone House in Georgetown; protection of historic areas such as Lafayette Square, Georgetown and Capital Hill from incompatible encroachments; elimination of plans for disruptive freeways through areas such as Glover Archbold Park, Rock Creek Park and the Mall; and the adoption of plans for a subway rapid transit system.

The committee actively pursues protection of the integrity of the L'Enfant Plan, the Potomac River gorge and related scenic and historic features, maintenance of the present building height limitation in the District of Columbia, strengthening of the comprehensive and related planning functions in the city and the region and the improvement of the quality of life in the city and the metropolitan area.

In support of the committee's beliefs, members appear before public bodies concerned with land use planning and other aspects of urban development.

MARILYN LIEBRENZ-HIMES TO SPEAK ON TIME MANAGEMENT

Marilyn L. Liebrenz-Himes, associate professor of business administration, will speak on "Time Management Revisited," in the First Wednesday Lecture on April 1, at 8 pm in the Marvin Center, Rooms 413-414. The event is sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office. Admission is free but call 4-6435 for reservations.

Dinner will be served beforehand at the GW University Club for both members and non-members, beginning at 6:30 pm. Call 4-6610 for reservations.

HEALTH SCIENCES DEPARTMENT AWARDED SCHOLARSHIP

The American Academy of Health Administration (AAHA) presented its Annual Scholarship Award to the Department of Health Services and Administration at a ceremony on January 9.

The AAHA award will go to a student in recognition of outstanding work on a research paper or project in the field of health services administration. Richard F. Southby, chairman of the department, said that the department is now in the process of developing criteria for conferring the award.

In a letter accompanying the award, Marshall P. Gavin, chairman of the AAHA board of directors, stated that the GW program "is well known as being among the very finest graduate programs in health administration in the U.S." and that the AAHA "could find none more deserving than GW for this year's award."

PIEDMONT AIRLINES CEO RECEIVES SGBA HONOR

"It's an unusual merger. It will put together for the first time two strong, profitable airlines," said Piedmont Airlines president and chief executive officer William R. Howard of the coming merger of Piedmont and U.S. Air. He was the 1987 recipient of the CEO of the Year Award from the SGBA Alumni Association at a luncheon in the GW Club March 25.

"In other mergers," he continued, "it seemed there was always one strong airline and one weak one that needed to be bailed out." Howard said the company "was sold at $69 a share, all cash, all up front, the most money that was ever paid for an airline by anyone at any time." He explained, "The offer that was made was such a full offer from our stockholders point of view, we really could not turn it down. ... We have been having intensive meetings . . . The plan is to put the best pieces of both airlines together. We will run the two separately at first, then merge after a 12 month period. We are really going to have to look very carefully at what we do to be sure we don't throw anything away of what we both have that's good."

Howard, who joined Piedmont in 1983, said he will be president of the combined new airline. He traced Piedmont's continuing success since 1977-78 describing the airline's general expansion; development of the Charlotte, Dayton, and Baltimore Washington International hubs; the establishment of the Piedmont shuttle to serve intra-state travel needs in Florida; the increase in numbers of passengers and distances traveled; the favorable -- almost one to one -- compliment to complaint ratio;, and an average of 34.29 percent return to investors over the ten-year period 1977-78 to 1986-87.

The CEO of the Year gave some glimpses of the future as well. He said, "On June 15, we believe we are going to be awarded the non-stop Charlotte-London route. We are making plans to start that service." He showed pictures of two new planes the airline expects to be using, a 737-400, which he described as "brand new from Boeing with a wide, short, stubby, fat jet engine that is fuel efficient," and a wide-body B767, "the newest airplane in the sky, with a range of a little over 6,000 miles."

He said he expects all the hubs will continue, that there are heavy expansion plans for Charlotte and Baltimore; that the location of a new corporate headquarters has yet to be worked out; and that the name of the new combined airline has not been announced but "it is likely it will be U.S. Air since the name Piedmont has a more regional connotation."

SGBA Alumni Association President David Moore presided at the luncheon and made the presentation of the CEO of the Year Award to Howard who also received a black and gold alumni chair. He is a double alumnus of GW (B.A. 1953, LL.B. 1956).

LISNER AT NOON FREE CONCERT SERIES RESUMES

To celebrate 40 years of involvement in the cultural life of the Foggy Bottom community, the University's Lisner Auditorium will resume the Lisner at Noon series of free Wednesday concerts in April. The programs will last 30 minutes.

The April series will begin Wednesday, April 1, at 12:15 pm with local musician Lisa Walker, an accoustical guitarist and singer of blues and folk music, as the performing artist.

The concerts are free and open to the public. Everyone is invited to bring a brown-bag lunch and enjoy the music.

TRAVELS TO ALUMNI -- L to R, Marilynne Williams, (M.A.T. 1969); Leon Siu, Hawaiian composer and entertainer; Mrs. Lloyd H. Elliott; and President Elliott are shown at a recent reception which was part of alumni activities in Honolulu, Hawaii, first stop in a six-city alumni tour. Mrs. Williams, who is librarian at Hawaii Baptist Academy, was chairman of arrangements for the Honolulu alumni activities.

1986 MARYLAND TAX EXEMPT STATUS EXPIRES APRIL 30

All 1986 exemptions from tax withholding authorized by Maryland Tax forms MW-507 currently on file in the University Payroll Services Office will expire on April 30 of this year.

Maryland tax form MW-507, item 3, allows certain employees who reside in Maryland to claim exemption from state and county tax withholding by certifying that they "did not owe any Maryland income tax and had a right to a full refund of all income tax withheld" for the previous year and that they expect a similar situation to exist in the current year.

Employees, (usually students) who are eligible to continue their 1986 exemption from tax withholding in 1987 must submit a new form MW-507 by April 30, 1987. Failure to recertify by that date will result in the withholding of Maryland taxes as though the employee has one withholding allowance.

Forms MW-507 are available at the Records and Benefits Office of Personnel Services, Building GG, 2125 G Street, NW, or at the University Payroll Services Office, first floor, Academic Center.

BRIEFLY...

Psychology Colloquium Series -- Trey Sunderland, chief of the Unit of Geriatric Psychopharmacology, Laboratory of Clinical Science at the National Institute of Mental Health, will speak on "Cholinergic Drug Challenges in Alzeimer's Diseases," on Friday, April 3, at 12 noon in the Marvin Center, Rooms 413-313. For more information, call Ext. 6320.

Spring Fun Run -- The Cherry Tree Trot, a three-mile run, is scheduled for Saturday, April 4, beginning at 10 am at the reflecting pool near the Mall. The rain date is Sunday, April 5, at the same time. The event is cosponsored by the Wellness Resource Center and the Department of Recreation and Intramurals. Entries should be made by 5 pm, April 3, in Room 103 of the Smith Center. The first 50 entrants will receive a free race T-shirt. For more information, call Ext. 6927 or Ext. 6251.

Wellcome Lecture in the Basic Medical Sciences -- David D. Sabatini, first distinguished visiting professor in biochemistry and chairman of the department of Cell Biology at New York University Medical Center, will present three lectures on the topic "Mechanisms for the Incorporation of Proteins into Membranes and Organelles," on Monday, April 6, in Ross Hall, Room 101, and on April 7 and 8 in Ross Hall, Room 227. The Wellcome Lectures are sponsored by the Burroughs Wellcome Fund and the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology. For more information, call Dr. Jack Y. Vanderhoek at Ext. 2929.

Women's Studies Seminar -- Geeta RaoGupta of the Tata Institute of Social Science and the Woman Studies Program at the University of Bombay, India, will speak on "Role Conflict and Coping Strategies: A Study of Women in Bangalore," on Wednesday, April 1, from 4:30 to 6 pm, in Stuart 204. The event is sponsored by the GW Women's Studies Program. For more information call, Ext. 6942.

"LETTERS HOME" costume designer Cheryl Neeley, graduate student in theatre design, cuts fabric for a dress for the upcoming play.

THE TWELVE DAYS OF APRIL THEATRE, MUSIC, DANCE

The Departments of Communication and Theatre, Music and the GWU Dance Company are combining to present a festival of the performing arts, titled "The Twelve Days of April," the first 12 days of next month. All events will be in the Marvin Theatre. The festival is dedicated to Boris C. Bell, director of the Marvin Center, who will retire this year.

"Letters Home" by Rose Leiman Goldemberg will be presented by the University Theatre on April 1 and 2 at 8 pm and on April 4 at 2 and 8 pm. The play, to be directed by Leslie Jacobson, is described as a moving drama, based on letters written by poet Sylvia Plath to her mother, from the time of her college years to her suicide 10 years later.

Two one-act operas, "The Medium" by Menotti and "L'Ile de Tulipatan" by Offenbach, will be done by GWU Opera Theatre on April 3 at 8 pm and April 5 at 2 pm. The operas will be directed by Muriel Von Villas and Francis Conlon.

The University Singers, under the direction of Catherine J.Pickar, will perform Vivaldi's "Gloria" as well as various part songs for men's choir on April 9 at 8 pm. For the performance there will be a Vivaldi Orchestra with Karena Cooper on keyboard continuo. This event is open without charge.

The GW Dance Company will feature guest choreographers Victoria Marks, Buffy Price Brown, and Annetta Wade as well as student choreographers Sonja Rouillard, Regina Ward and Matthew Brown in performances April 10 and 11 at 8 pm and April 12 at 2 pm.

The box office for the festival opens today, Monday, March 30, and will be open Monday through Friday from 11 am to 1 pm and one hour before each performance. For ticket information, call 994-6178.

UNIVERSITY REGAINS FULL OWNERSHIP OF GW HEALTH PLAN

The George Washington University and American Medical International, Inc., (AMI) have signed a contract returning total ownership of The George Washington University Health Plan to the University. The change was effective as of March 1.

In June 1985, AMI, an investor-owned hospital company based in Beverly Hills, California, purchased 80 percent interest in the Health Plan which was started by GW 14 years ago and now services 24,500 members in the Washington area. At that time, the remaining 20 percent ownership was retained by the University.

AMI's withdrawal from the Health Plan is associated with a restructuring initiated last year by the company in order to refocus on its core business -- acute care hospitals. AMI has now completed the sale of virtually all of its affiliated subsidiaries.

In announcing the change, Ronald P. Kaufman, M.D., vice president for medical affairs and executive dean of the Medical Center, noted the growth of the Health Plan during the past two years, including the opening of three suburban offices -- two in Maryland, Greenbelt and Rockville; and one in Alexandria, Virginia.

"We will continue to provide a comprehensive health benefits package for our subscriber members," said Dr. Kaufman. "At this time, we do not contemplate any changes in the organizational structure."

The University will continue to provide medical care for Health Plan members using the same physicians and other health care providers. In addition, GW continues to retain responsibility for quality assurance and patient education, as well as for providing training for medical and allied health students.

INTERNATIONAL WEEK UPCOMING

International Week 1987 is being coordinated through the International Student Services Office. Events are planned for Sunday, April 5, through Saturday, April 11.

The opening event is a Festival Latino featuring a Calidad Band and dance festival in Marvin Center, Market Square, from 4 to 9 pm. A donation of $3 will be asked at the door.

Monday, April 6, Ali Mazrui, host of the PBS series "The Africans," will speak on "Africa: A View from Within" in Marvin Center, Market Square, at 8 pm. Admission is free.

Other events are planned for April 8, 10 and 11. Next week's GW Report will give further information. To learn more now, call Ext. 46860.

FELLOWSHIP INFORMATION MEETING IS APRIL 3

A fellowship information meeting will be held on Friday, April 3, at 1 pm in the Gelman Library, Room 202, for those interested in applying for graduate programs or grants to study abroad.

Avery Andrews, assistant dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, and Andrea Stewart, national fellowship coordinator, will discuss the Fulbright, Rhodes, Marshall, Luce and other grant programs. They will also review the application process and the University's assistance and nomination.

On the following two Fridays, April 10 and 24, Kim Moreland from the Writing Lab in the English Department will conduct a two-part seminar on "How to Write a Fellowship Essay." For more information, call Joan Hill at Ext. 6455.

FINANCIAL AND TAX PLANNING SEMINAR FOR GW COMMUNITY

"Financial and Tax Planning After the Tax Reform Act of 1986" is the title of a seminar being co-sponsored by the Faculty Senate Committee on Appointment, Salary and Promotion Policies (including Fringe Benefits) and the University's Development Office.

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 has been called a landmark piece of legislation, representing a major tax reform which affects every American with one or more of its provisions. The seminar is intended to provide an opportunity to learn more about this very important legislation. It is open to faculty, staff and University alumni.

The seminar will be presented from the professional perspectives of an economist, an attorney and a certified public accountant. It is scheduled for Saturday morning, May 16, from 8:30 am to 12:30 pm, in the Marvin Theatre.

"Economic and Financial Effects of Tax Reform" will be discussed by Professor of Economics Joseph J. Cordes. "Tax Planning After Tax Reform" will be the topic addressed by Philip J. Sweeney III, Esq., partner with the Washington law firm of Reasoner, Davis and Fox, and Amelia C. Walsh, CPA, principal with the Washington accounting firm of Chaconas, Wilson and Walsh, P.C.

After an 11 o'clock refreshment break, there will be a 30-minute slide presentation on "Estate Planning" by Jerry R. Anderson, GW's director of planned giving. The seminar will conclude with a question and answer period with Ms. Walsh, Mr. Sweeney and Dr. Cordes.

The deadline for registering for the seminar is Monday, April 13. There will be a $5 fee to defray partially the cost of seminar material, parking and refreshments. Faye Ansari in the Development Office is serving as seminar coordinator and is receiving the reservations forms. Flyers on the seminar, including registration forms, have been sent to full-time and part-time faculty and staff. Forms are available from the Development Office, 701 Gelman Library.

NEWSNOTE

PUBLICATION

CHING-YAO HSIEH, professor of economics, a book co-authored with Stephen L. Mangum, assistant professor at The Ohio State University, A Search For Synthesis in Economic Theory, M.E. Sharpe, Inc., New York, 1986.

PERSONNEL NOTICE

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Full-time, Lipid Research Clinic. (Individual with B.S. and laboratory experience to process and analyze blood samples for lipids and lipoproteins.) Contact: Phyllis Mitchell, Ext. 2991.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

April 6, 1987 (469)

GW Report

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

COMING DEVELOPMENTS AT GWTV

In a memorandum to vice presidents and deans in February, President Lloyd H. Elliott announced the administrative transfer of GW Television to the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs from the Division of Continuing Education, effective July 1. At the same time, he announced the creation of a new position, assistant vice president for GW television. The person selected will also carry the title of director of GWTV.

"We have created a university television station that is truly state-of-the-art in most respects," President Elliott said. "We need to re-state the mission of GWTV and to give it a more integrated place in the structure of the University.

"He announced that Lee Hunter, "who has overseen the development of our splendid facility," will stay on as general manager.

The marketing function for instructional television will be taken over by the appropriate unit in the Division of Continuing Education. "Location of GWTV in Academic Affairs should assure us that we can increase both the range of course offerings being televised off-campus and the use of the facility to enhance on-campus instruction," he commented.

A search committee for the assistant vice president for GWTV has been appointed by Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French. The committee members are: Anita K. Head, law librarian, National Law Center, chair; Robert S. Fortner, director, radio and television, Communication and Theatre Department; Arthur D. Friedman, professor, Electrical Engineering and Computer Sciences Department; Dean Carol D. Holden, Division of Continuing Education; and Frank J. Kavanaugh, executive producer, GW Television Station.

The new assistant vice president's responsibilities will include further development of campus-wide efforts in television instruction; working with academic departments in developing degree programs and continuing professional education programs for broadcast off-campus; developing video tapes for class use and for continuing professional education; expanding a program of national and international teleconferences; and managing the acquisition and maintenance of television equipment and facilities in various instructional units (excluding the Medical Center).

RED CROSS R.N. Susan Garrigan, left, assisted Christine Bandas, Columbian College freshman, one of GW's donors in the University's Blood Drive, March 31 and April 1.

INTERNATIONAL WEEK IS HERE

Ali Mazrui, host of the PBS series "The Africans" will give the keynote address for GW's International Week, (April 5-11) this evening, Monday, April 6, at 8 pm in Marvin Center's Market Square. His subject will be "Africa: A View from Within." There is no admission charge.

Market Day of International Week will be Wednesday, April 8. International student organizations will present exhibits in the Gelman Library Quad between 11 am and 3 pm.

Three events are planned for Friday, April 10. "Kayaking the Amazon White Waters," a lecture and slide show by National Geographic explorer Piotr Chmieliniski, will be given in Marvin Center 501, from 5:30 to 7:30 pm. Pankaj Udhas, a classical Indian singer, known as the King of the Ghazals, will appear in Lisner Auditorium from 8 pm to midnight. Call 241-2762 for ticket information. A Reggae Party, featuring the band Swammp, is scheduled for Marvin Center's Market Square from 9 pm to 1 am.

The International Student Society's 55th annual Embassy Dinner, featuring food, entertainment and dancing from around the world is Saturday, April 11. The place is Marvin Center, Market Square. The time is 7:30 pm to 1 am.

International Week is being coordinated by the Office of International Student Services. For more information and details of other events connected with the week, call Ann Morton at 994-6860.

PERFORMING ARTS FESTIVAL IS SINGING AND DANCING

The University's performing arts festival, The Twelve Days of April, continues this week with performances by the University Singers and the GWU Dance Company.

Antonio Vivaldi's "Gloria" plus various part songs for men's choir will be performed by the University Singers under the direction of Catherine J. Pickar on Thursday evening, April 9, in the Marvin Theatre. Admission is free.

The GWU Dance company is featuring four guest choreographers and two student choreographers in performances in the Marvin Theatre on Friday and Saturday, April 10 and 11, at 8 pm and on Sunday, April 12, at 2 pm. For ticket information, call 994-6178.

RATING YOUR GAME AT GW TENNIS MARATHON

An eight-hour tennis marathon of continuous play by the GW Women's Tennis Team will be held in the Smith Center on Sunday, April 12, from 9 am to 5 pm.

A speed serving contest, where participants can have their service speed clocked by radar, will be from 1 to 4 pm. Prizes will be awarded for the three fastest serves of the afternoon. Players may also be filmed while rallying and then review their techniques on video tape. Participant fees will be $1.00 for the speed serving contest and $2.00 for the instructional video.

The events are sponsored by the GW Women's Athletic Department and are open to the public. All funds raised will help support the GW Women's Tennis Program. For more information call, Ext. 6751.

UNIVERSITY RECEIVES GIFT OF A TAPESTRY

A tapestry depicting George Washington has been presented to the University. Edward Baxter, chairman of the Wolcott Foundation Board of Trustees, made the presentation to President Lloyd H. Elliott at the Wolcott Board's annual meeting on March 28.

The work by Eva Nisbet of Louisville, Kentucky, contains 200,000 stitches and was done to honor the service of Cecil Dunham, a member of the first board of the Wolcott Foundation, who served many years.

In the tapestry, George Washington, raising his tricorn in salute, is shown astride his horse, "Jack." In the lower right is the "G. Washington" signature he used. Incorporated into the design are his surveyor's transit, a flag with thirteen stars, his family crest, a branch of a cherry tree and his family home.

The border has the leaves and blossoms of the tobacco plant, his main crop; his astrological sign, Pisces; and the dates of his birth and death.

HONORS CONVOCATION IS SUNDAY, APRIL 12

University Professor of English Alex Zwerdling will deliver the address at the University's annual Honors Convocation on Sunday, April 12, at 1:30 pm, in Lisner Auditorium. His subject will be "The Sense of Vocation."

Board of Trustees Chairman Everett H. Bellows will bring greetings to those attending and will introduce Professor Zwerdling.

Honors recognition will follow musical selections presented by the men of the University Singers under the direction of Catherine J. Pickar.

Distinguished Scholar Awards will be presented to one student from each of the five GW schools which grant undergraduate degrees -- Columbian College, SGBA, SPIA, Engineering and Education. These awards recognize students who have distinguished themselves through exemplary academic achievement and scholarship. Sophomore, junior and senior students in the top two percent of their schools will receive Outstanding Academic Achievement Citations. Those students who were named to the deans' lists in the previous spring and fall semesters will be recognized by Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French.

Board Chairman Bellows and each recipient's dean will present the Distinguished Scholar Awards.

Robert Pierce Forbes, the Columbian College Distinguished Scholar, received his Bachelor of Arts degree summa cum laude with special honors in history. He also fulfilled the requirements for a minor in religion. For the last two years, he has served Columbian College as a peer advisor. Forbes has worked for a historical consultant firm, researching Indian water rights in the Southwest. He will be attending Yale University this coming fall to continue his study of history at the graduate level.

Marie Elena Colaianni, SGBA senior is a candidate for the Bachelor of Account-

(continued on back)

AT&T's Director of University Relations Ben Peterson, left, conferred recently with Professor of Engineering and Applied Science Oscar N. Garcia regarding a large equipment grant from AT&T to be used for the programs of the School of Engineering and Applied Science.

HONORS CONVOCATION
(continued from front)

ancy. Her name appears in "Who's Who in College Students" and "The National Dean's List." She is a member of three honor societies -- Beta Alpha Psi, Phi Eta Sigma, and Beta Gamma Sigma -- and has been commended twice for academic excellence by SGBA. The National Italian-American Foundation awarded her a scholarship on the basis of an essay competition.

Bryant Paul Lehr received the degree of Bachelor of Arts in International Affairs summa cum laude and with special honors in February. He is a member of the honorary political science society Pi Sigma Alpha. He served as chief judge on the Student Residence Hall Court and also assisted fellow SPIA students through the peer advising program. His area of concentration was in Middle Eastern studies. In 1985, he traveled to Israel, met with government officials and participated in an intensive language program at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. Currently working at a D.C. law firm, he plans to enter law school in 1988.

Danial Bin Mdnoor, a senior and candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering, was born in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. He ranked first in his class in secondary school and was awarded a scholarship by the National Electricity Board of Malaysia to pursue his current course of study at George Washington. Since entering SEAS in the fall of 1983, he has always ranked first academically in the class of 1987. He is a member of Tau Beta Pi, engineering honor society; Eta Kappa Nu, electrical engineering honor society; and the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers. After graduation, Mdnoor looks forward to a career in electrical engineering in Malaysia.

Lisa Ayn Septoff, a candidate for the Bachelor of Arts in Education, is majoring in elementary education. She has participated actively on the Dean's Undergraduate Council and has served as 1986-87 class president for elementary education majors. A member of Pi Lambda Theta, education honor society, she was involved with the organization of its 1986 reading/writing conference for District of Columbia schoolchildren. A recipient of Mildred Green, Columbian Women and Board of Trustees scholarships, she has worked as a volunteer for the Red Cross and the Arlington Hospital.

Music for the academic procession will be provided by the Potomac Brass Ensemble under the direction of Roy A. Guenther. The invocation and benediction will be given by Father Robert Keffer of the Newman Catholic Student Center. University Marshal Robert G. Jones will preside at the convocation.

All members of the University community are invited to the convocation and the reception following in Market Square, first floor, Marvin Center.

BRIEFLY...

Lisner at Noon Concert -- The GW Faculty Jazz Quartet will perform on Wednesday, April 8 at 12:15 in Lisner Auditorium. Doors will be open to the public at noon. Admission is free. For more information call, 46800.

BOOKSIGNING -- Florence Elon, left, assistant professorial lecturer in English, signed her volume of poetry, Self-Made, for Micki Sampson, Columbian College freshman, at a recent booksigning session at the GW Bookstore.

"THE AIDS MOVIE" IS APRIL 8

David Brumbach, director of HERO (The Health Education Resource Organization of Maryland) will be on campus, Wednesday, April 8, to show his nationally acclaimed film "The AIDS Movie," and to answer questions.

The recently released film is being shown on college campuses and in high schools across the country. The film presents three people who became infected with AIDS. Interspersed with their talking about themselves and how they contracted the disease, Brumbach is shown presenting information to a classroom audience about the AIDS virus, how it is transmitted, and what students can do to protect themselves. Brumbach's question and answer session following the film is described as "direct and to the point."

To accommodate as many viewers as possible, "The AIDS Movie" will be shown four times on Wednesday: from 1 to 2 pm, from 3 to 4 pm and from 5 to 6 pm in Marvin Center 405; and from 7:30 to 9 pm in Thurston Hall Piano Lounge.

The program is being sponsored by the Counseling Center, the Office of the Dean of Students, the GW Student Association, the Residence Hall Association, and the Student Health Service. For more information, call T. Thorne Wiggers, coordinator of outreach, GW Counseling Center, 994-6550.

GW Club Breakfast -- Associate Provost Marianne R. Phelps will be the speaker at the April 8 breakfast at the GW Club. Breakfast service will begin at 8 am. Call Ext. 6610 for reservations.

Chinese Art Lecture -- Thomas Lawton, an internationally renowned art historian and director of the Freer Gallery of Art, will lecture on "Western Connoisseurship of Chinese Art," on Thursday, April 9, at 6:30 pm in Gelman Library B-04. The event is sponsored by the Department of East Asian Languages and Literatures. Admission is free. For more information call, Ext. 7106.

Nobel Laureate to Speak on Universe -- William A. Fowler, Nobel Laureate and institute professor of physics emeritus at California Institute of Technology, will address the topic "How Old is the Observable Universe? A Biased Answer!", on Thursday, April 9, in Lisner Auditorium, at 4 pm. The event is cosponsored by the Division of Physics, National Science Foundation, and the GW Department of Physics. A reception will follow the lecture. For more information call, Ext. 6275.

ANNUAL AWARDS SHOW OPENS THURSDAY IN DIMOCK

Works by seniors and graduate students in art will be on exhibition in the Dimock Gallery from Thursday, April 9, through Thursday, April 30, in the gallery's Annual Awards Show, which includes the David Lloyd Kreeger Awards Competition.

Awards will be given for ceramics, sculptural ceramics, drawing, design, painting, photography, printmaking, sculpture, visual communications and papers in art history. A new prize will be offered this year in the area of aquarelle painting.

Works for the exhibition were selected By an ad hoc committee of members of the University's Art Department. Awards were designated by jurors from outside the University community.

Jurors for the fine arts were: Jean Efron, art consultant; Martina Norelli, associate curator of graphic arts at the National Museum of American Art; and Jo Tartt Jr. of the Tartt Gallery. The juror for the papers in art history was John Wilmerding, deputy director of the National Gallery of Art.

The awards have been provided by Mr. David Lloyd Kreeger; Dr. and Mrs. Jerome Canter (Morris M. Aein Memorial Prize in Drawing); Mr. Robert N. Alfandre; the late Julian H. Singman, Esq.; William D. Barbee, Esq.; and Mr. Walter J. Hunt (Cecille R. Hunt Prize).

Gallery hours are 10 to 5 Tuesday through Friday; noon to 5 on Saturday; closed to the public on Monday.

IRA H. CISIN DIES

Ira H. Cisin, professor of sociology, died on March 14. He was 69.

Professor Cisin had been associated with the University since 1952 as a member of the Human Resources Research Organization (HumRRO). When HumRRO was separated from the University, he continued at George Washington. He became professor of sociology in 1964.

A graduate of New York University (B. S. 1939), he held graduate degrees from American University (M.A. 1951 and Ph.D. 1957).

Dr. Cisin served as director of the University's Social Research Group. Among his research areas were drinking practices and drug abuse.

He was a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Statistical Association, the American Sociological Association, the American Association for Public Opinion Research, and the Institute of Mathematical Statistics.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEW

JAMES EDWIN KEE, associate professor of public administration, was interviewed by Mutual Radio on the impact of tax reform on the economy of state and local finances upon the signing of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 by President Reagan in fall 1986. In November 1986, Kee was interviewed by the General Accounting Office (GAO) and asked to give his recommendations on the methodology proposed by the Office of Management and Budget for a study the GAO is preparing for Congress on an assessment of costs and benefits of various federal loan programs.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

NIK ALEXANDRIDIS, professor of engineering and applied science, co-authored (with P.D. Tsanakas) the conference paper, "An Efficient Scheme for Exchanging Structured Pictures in Distributed Image Processing Systems," for the 8th International Conference on Pattern Recognition, October 27-31, in Paris, France. He also attended the 15th Workshop on Applied Imagery Pattern Recognition (Concurrent Processing for Vision), October 23-25, in Washington, DC. He received the "Empirikion Award" (Athens, Greece) for his research contributions to science and technology.

JAMES R. BARTH, professor of economics, presented a paper, "The Evolving Role of Regulation in the Savings and Loan Industry," at the Fifth Annual Monetary Conference sponsored by the CATO Institute, February 26, in Washington, DC. The two-day conference attracted 150 registrants to hear eleven papers presented and discussed by scholars from around the country. Barth also served as a chairperson and a discussant at the Eastern Economic Association Meetings held March 5-7 in Crystal City.

LINDA F. DePAUW, professor of American history, delivered a lecture at the Johns Hopkins University on "The Women in George Washington's Army" as part of a series of lectures commemorating the 15th anniversary of coeducation at the Hopkins undergraduate schools.

JAMES O. HORTON, associate professor of American civilization and history, participated in the National Museum of American History's conference, "Race and Revolution: African-Americans, 1770-1830," on February 6. The program, part of the Smithsonian Institution's observance of Black History Month, focused on the lives of African Americans during the early years of the republic. He spoke on the topic, "Tentative Alliance: Race and Class in the Urban North."

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, part-time (3-4 days/wk), Department of Dermatology. (Individual to assist in photobiological/photoimmunological basic research. Minimum requirements: Bachelor's degree in biology/chemistry and experience in handling mice. Some immunological background or experience (CMI) desirable as is familiarity with personal computers.) Contact: Dr. Edward De Fabo, Ross Hall, Room 101-B.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, the Biostatistics Center. (Individual to assist statisticians in management and analysis of data from major medical research projects. B.A./B.S. and experience in SAS programming required. Knowledge of statistical methods and SAS/GRAPH desirable. Salary commensurate with experience. Tuition benefits.) Send resume to Sonnia Tidwell, GW Biostatistics Center, 6110 Executive Boulevard, Rockville, MD. 20852. No phone calls.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

April 13, 1987 (470)

GW Report

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

DR. ALI MAZRUI KEYNOTES GW'S INTERNATIONAL WEEK

ALI MAZRUI, right, was surrounded by admirers after his International Week keynote speech.

"A country that has immense capacity to do harm or good has a moral obligation to understand the world," Dr. Ali Mazrui said of the United States in his keynote address for the University's International Week on Monday, April 6, in Marvin Center's Market Square.

Dr. Mazrui referred to his experience in working on the PBS series, "The Africans." He said he viewed the invitation from the BBC and WETA to "come and tell our people about your people" as an invitation to present the view from within. He thinks of the series, which took three years to complete, as an exercise in filling a gap, in rectifying previous imbalances in knowledge and understanding.

Noting that "Africa has its own character, from the most complex to the most simple," he declared that "both deserve attentiveness." He pointed out that the population of the African continent is approximately one half Muslim and said that the indigenous religions of Africa have, to some extent, lessened the tensions between Islam and Christianity.

Evidences of the influence of Western civilization in Africa are numerous, Dr. Mazrui indicated. "When we want to go Western in dress," he commented, "the relevant dress culture is the European suit. . . . Almost every culture has two forms of dress, European and its own. When we go casual in Western dress, we go American."

"In food," he went on, "if we go Western in a formal dinner, it's normally European in form, but if we want quick food, we go American. In serious music, we go European. If we go into popular music of the West, the chances are, it's American."

With regard to newspapers and magazines, he said the Africans read the European newspapers -- those from Paris, sometimes the same day -- and that very few people have ever heard of The New York Times or The Washington Post. In terms of news magazines, he told his listeners that the Time and Newsweek format has greatly influenced African magazines. He said that many bear "the unmistakable stamp" of the American format but that these magazines still have the character of the African society embedded in the text.

In education, the audience was told, "At the university level, we have the beginnings of an American system."

Of the changes as a whole, he said, "Our garments are more diverse and our Western heritage is getting more complex."

In what he called "the curse of the ancestors," Dr. Mazrui said that African culture is fighting back by a form of cultural sabotage and that "things will not work unless every project is subjected to scrutiny to ensure that it is culturally compatible with the traditions of our people."

In a discussion of women in Africa, he told the story that God had said to woman, "Thou shalt be custodian of fire, of water and of earth and I, God, shall take care of the eternal air." Under this arrangement, women became totally involved in tending fires, in carrying water and in tilling the earth and being mothers, the latter in a doctrine of dual fertility. "Our women became very important," he observed, "and then the West came and there was a movement to set women free and it seems that what women gain in mobility, they lose in participation. The mix is not yet right to combine the greater freedom of women without diminishing their role in society."

On the American political scene, he noted that African Americans have begun to capture power and said, "We are knocking on the door. We may not get in this time, but we shall continue to knock." He pointed out there are 100 million people of African ancestry in the Western world alone.

In remarks on South Africa, he stated that the black South Africans may become the Brahmins of the next generation because they will inherit their birthright as well as industrial and nuclear infrastructures created by whites.

In the question and answer period, he made a prediction

(continued on back)

FORMER AMBASSADOR TO COLOMBIA TELLS LESSONS OF TERRORISM

"Terrorism is never justified because you are targeting the innocent for a theatrical effect," said Diego C. Asencio, former U.S. ambassador to Colombia, speaking on April 7 to a large and attentive audience at the Marvin Center.

Asencio gained international recognition in 1980 when, while ambassador, he was kidnapped along with diplomats from 18 other countries by the "M-19" terrorist group. With the Mexican and Brazilian ambassadors, he participated in the negotiations that led to the safe release of all the captives after 61 days.

Asencio sparked some controversy with his remarks about terrorist motives and how the U.S. should go about combatting terrorism. He believes that fortifying U.S. embassies abroad to preserve them against hostility is "impossible." Asencio, who was attending a celebration at the Dominican Embassy when he was abducted, said the terrorists found him in a vulnerable setting where there was little he could do to defend himself.

He suspects that the Soviet and Eastern bloc diplomats, who were also in attendance and left early, were either tipped off or else the terrorists waited for their departure before taking over the Dominican Embassy.

Asencio said he was kidnapped because as U.S. ambassador he was a symbol that the terrorists could use in order to gain worldwide media attention for their cause. This, he said, is the ultimate objective of any terrorist organization.

"It is extremely rare when a terrorist attack would have any significance beyond impact on the media....It is very unlikely they will topple governments," observed Asencio. Because television is so effective a means of communicating symbols, "the TV networks," he said, "have a direct responsibility to themselves to be very careful as to what is aired."

He called terrorism the "original cheap shot...[because] in terms of cost effectiveness, in terms of rewards, the temptation is immense." For this reason he believes that Kadafi will be heard from again. He warned that the United States is "just at the beginning of the terrorist cycle" and that inevitably terrorism in one form or another will reach the U.S.

Terrorist activities in Latin America and particularly Colombia, the source of approximately 80 percent of the cocaine and marijuana smuggled into this country, are primarily drug related, he said.

Asked what he thought the U.S. policy response to

(continued on back)

ANNUAL AWARDS SHOW, TOO!

The Colonnade Gallery's exhibition "Annual Awards Show, Too!" will present artworks by seniors and graduate students in art, whose works are represented in the Annual Awards Show in the Dimock Gallery. The exhibition which opened Thursday, April 9, will continue through Sunday, May 10.

The exhibition will include ceramics, sculptural ceramics, drawing, design, painting, photography, printmaking, sculpture, visual communication and aquarelle painting. The gallery on the third floor of the Marvin Center, is open from 10 am to 7 pm daily.

MARILYN LIEBRENZ-HIMES, associate professor of business administration and this month's First Wednesday Lecturer, introduced many new ideas on time management to her April 8 audience.

SOVIET FILM SERIES BEGINS APRIL 15

Four critically acclaimed films from the Soviet Union will have their Washington premieres on Wednesday and Thursday, April 15 and 16, at Lisner Auditorium.

"Twenty Days Without War" (Aleksei Gherman, director, 1976) and "My Friend Ivan Lapshin" (Gherman, director, 1982/released 1985) will be shown on Wednesday night at 6 and 8:15 pm respectively. On Thursday, "I Remember You" (Ali Khamraev, director, 1986) and "The Journey of a Young Composer" ( Eldar Shengelaya, director, 1985) will show at 6 and 8:15 pm. There is a $3 admission charge for the film showings.

A panel discussion on Soviet Cinema will be held on Saturday, April 18, in the Marvin Center Room, 403 from 2 to 4 pm. Specialists in Soviet studies, film aesthetics, literature, political science, history, and sociology will attempt to present the public with a composite picture of the current Soviet scene through the medium of cinema. Admission is free.

There have been radical changes in the Soviet film industry over the past two years, according to Ann Lawton, the festival director. She said this festival is intended to show some of the best productions which are representative of a "new wave" in Soviet cinema.

The festival is sponsored by SPIA. For further information call, Ext. 6240.

A. JAMES CLARK PROFESSORSHIP TO BE AT GW

President Lloyd H. Elliott has announced the receipt of a major pledge from A. James Clark, president and chief executive officer of The Clark Construction Group of Bethesda, Maryland, to establish The A. James Clark Professorship of Engineering in the School of Engineering and Applied Science (SEAS).

"We are pleased to announce this generous gift to The Campaign for George Washington from Mr. Clark, a friend of the University who has significantly supported G.W. in the past," President Elliott said.

"As a fitting tribute to Mr. Clark's career, The A. James Clark Professorship of Engineering will enable this University to continue the advancement of engineering education and research and to apply their benefits to business and society," Dr. Elliott said. The Clark Construction Group, Inc. and its subsidiary companies are known for their commitment to excellence and the application of advanced engineering and managerial techniques.

Educated as an engineer, Clark has been a prominent benefactor of engineering education as well as of numerous other civic, charitable and educational undertakings. After graduating from the University of Maryland in 1950, Clark joined the George Hyman Construction Company. He was named vice president and general manager in 1960, and became president and chief executive officer in 1969.

Under his direction, the company grew dramatically and served as a catalyst for the creation of Clark Enterprises in 1972. The Clark Construction Group (CCG) was later formed to consolidate the construction related subsidiaries of Clark Enterprises, and is now the fifth largest general contracting firm in the nation.

SEAS Dean Harold Liebowitz said that "as a professional school, our teaching faculty and our ties to industry are valuable and mutually supportive resources, and Mr. Clark's generous gift will be a lasting benefit to us in both vital areas. Industry and the schools that prepare tomorrow's scientists and engineers will both reap rewards from closer cooperation in advancing and harnessing emerging technologies and in training the future work force."

With the addition of the Clark gift, The Campaign for George Washington has received to date $34.5 million towards the announced five-year goal of $75 million.

TERRORISM

(continued from front)

terrorist activities should be, he noted that with CIA cutbacks in human resources during the 1970s, the United States no longer seems able to penetrate radical organizations as it once did.

"The only way to effectively counter terrorists," he said, "is to know exactly what they are going to do because you cannot guard everything...and they can pick their targets." He predicted that if the U.S. cannot monitor what the terrorists are doing, then "we will end up waiting for them to attack."

Asencio, who with his wife has written a book entitled "Outmaneuvering the Terrorists," will next fall teach a graduate seminar at GW on terrorism.

BORIS BELL, director of the Marvin Center, left, was congratulated by Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French when the Twelve Days of April Performing Arts Festival was dedicated to him in an April 2 ceremony.

DEAN CAROL HOLDEN RECEIVES ARTS EDUCATION HONOR

Dean Carol Holden of the Division of Continuing Education received an award from the Illinois Alliance for Arts Education (IAAE) on March 24 in a ceremony in the Trustees Room at the Art Institute of Chicago.

The award was given for outstanding service to arts education in Illinois. In the presentation ceremony it was noted that Dr. Holden was the principal author of the Illinois State Plan for Arts in General Education, that she had taught aesthetic education in education teaching programs, that she had written articles and co-authored a book on historic preservation education and had organized workshops on arts education for local, state and national meetings. The Arts Education Service Award is presented annually by IAAE. Dean Holden was one of four recipients.

An address by Dr. Dorothy Magett, associate superintendent of the Illinois State Board of Education, emphasized the importance of the arts for all children as a component of general education.

BRIEFLY...

Former NBC Executive to Speak Wednesday -- "The Entertainment Business: Network TV, Cable TV & Syndication" will be discussed by Michael Weinblatt, current president of Multimedia Entertainment and past president of NBC Entertainment and Showtime/The Movie Channel, on Wednesday, April 15, from 8 to 9:30 pm in Funger Hall, Room 103. The free lecture, sponsored by the Department of Communication and Theatre, is open to all GW faculty and students. A question and answer period will follow.

Pulitzer Prize-Winner to Speak -- Rhys Isaac, professor of history, La Trobe University, Australia, will speak on "The Enlightenment on the Farm: Large Reflections on a Local Study," today, April 13, at 4 pm in Marvin Center, Room, 403. Isaac, who won a Pulitzer Prize for his book The Transformation of Virginia, 1740-1790, is presently a Woodrow Wilson Center Fellow. The event is sponsored by the Department of History and the American Studies Program.

Lisner at Noon Series -- Marina Keet and the Spanish Dance Society will perform traditional Spanish dances on Wednesday, April 15, in Lisner Auditorium at 12:15 pm. Doors are open to the public at noon and admission is free.

AMERICAN EDUCATION COUNCIL RECOGNIZES CHARLES O'REAR

Professor and Chairman of the Department of Forensic Sciences Charles E. O'Rear has been recognized by the American Council on Education (ACE) for outstanding service in his field.

O'Rear was one of 23 faculty members from across the country honored by ACE's Military Evaluations Program. He has been giving generously of his time and sharing his expertise with the program since 1978.

The Military Evaluations Program has been evaluating military training and experience in terms of academic credit since 1945. Results of these evaluations appear in the Guide to the Evaluation of Educational Experiences in the Armed Services. The guide is distributed to every college and university in the nation. Faculty members who serve on evaluation teams, are described by the ACE as "forming the backbone" of this program, which provides a means for servicemembers and veterans to gain recognition for college-level learning acquired in the armed services.

---

Friends of the Libraries Tour -- Friends of the Libraries' final tour of the academic year will be a visit to the Folger Library on Wednesday, April 22, at 1:30 pm. The featured exhibit will be "Folger's Choice: Favorites on Our 55th Anniversary." There will be tea in the Board Room at 3 pm. For more information and to register for the tour call, Ext. 6455.

DR. ALI MAZRUI

(continued from front)

regarding South Africa. "My scenario is that not all the whites will leave," he said. "At the moment, the African National Congress does not have a policy of expelling all whites. I expect upwards to a half of the white population to remain and those who do will become useful citizens and useful also as part of a wider infrastructure in society."

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, ERIC Clearinghouse on Higher Education. (Individual to assist others in using ERIC, the education information database; conduct computer searches; acquire documents; answer questions; develop customer products; lead training sessions; organize conference exhibits.) Undergraduate degree required in education, liberal arts, information science or related field. On-line computer searching skills desirable. Contact: ERIC Clearinghouse on Higher Education, 1 Dupont Circle, Suite 630, Washington DC 20036, 296-2597.

The Lipid Research Laboratory has the following, full-time, research positions available: RESEARCH ASSOCIATE. (Individual with a strong background in lipid biochemistry, preferably with a Ph. D. degree. Experience in the field of Carotenoid/Retinoids is desirable. Proficiency in enzymology, small animal surgery, gel electrophoresis and HPLC techniques will be preferred.) RESEARCH ASSISTANT. (Individual with a strong background in chemistry/biology with at least a B.S. degree. Experience in handling small animals, surgical techniques, electrophoresis, immunology and tracer techniques desirable.) Salary for both positions will be based on qualifications and experience. Contact: Dr. Raj Lakshman, Lipid Research Laboratory, V.A. Medical Center, 50 Irving Street, NW, Washington, DC 20422, 745-8330.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

STUDENT-FACULTY BASKETBALL GAME -- Edward A. Caress, professor of chemistry, a member of Lloyd's Legion, (faculty) shot a basket as opposing players from Adam's Army, (students, in dark jerseys) watched during the annual match April 1. The final score: Legion, 43; Army, 28.

April 20, 1987 (471)

GW Report

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

GW RECEIVES PAPERS OF FORMER CITY COUNCIL MEMBER POLLY SHACKELTON

L to R, Former City Council Member Polly Shackelton, Mayor Marion Barry, University Librarian Sharon J. Rogers.

"I'm very pleased that GW has all the papers," said retired City Council member Polly Shackelton at an April 9 reception honoring her in recognition of the gift of her personal papers to the Gelman Library. She represented D.C. Ward 3 on the council.

"I think the value of this really is because I happened to be around during a very important peak period in the life of the city -- the history of the city," she continued. "Because of the kinds of things that I was involved in, the papers do have some historical interest. . . . I'm hoping Mayor Barry will send his papers over here and I hope other members of the council will do the same because I think it's very important."

Mrs. Shackelton recalled it was Frederick R. Gutheim who suggested that she give her papers to GW. Gutheim, who was present, has served the University as adjunct professor of urban planning and American civilization.

D.C. Mayor Marion Barry came and spoke informally. "I really wanted to come," he said. "Anytime Polly Shackelton is doing something, I try very diligently to get by, both as mayor of our great city and also as a personal friend. As you probably know, I had the good fortune to serve with Polly Shackelton on the City Council from 1974 to 1978. She was also a member of the Finance Committee. We think we did some great things in that committee. We instituted various kinds of tax reforms, such as the homestead exemption. She and I co-sponsored dozens of pieces of legislation. She cared about this city. She believed in one Washington -- whether you were black or white, young or old, Jewish or Muslim, Protestant or Catholic -- we all were part of one Washington. I appreciate that kind of leadership.

"Polly Shackelton has never been too big or too busy to help some one along the way. She's a great person. I wouldn't let her rest so she is now a member of the Regional Airport Commission and, along with two or three others, will give the city representation in the commission as it affects National and Dulles Airports."

Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French extended the thanks of the University to Mrs. Shackelton. He noted how closely entwined the destiny of the University has been with the evolution of the city and observed that around the middle of the 20th century both the city and the university began to realize the aspirations of their founders. He spoke of the University's Center for Washington Area Studies and the Washingtoniana treasures in the library's Special Collections as evidences of this closeness. "In light of all this, it makes it both appropriate and really a fine thing for us that former council member Shackelton has agreed to the Gelman Library as the repository of her papers," he said. "As a citizen of the city and as an officer of the University, I am delighted to have the opportunity to thank Mrs. Shackelton."

As director of the Center for Washington Area Studies, Associate Professor of Urban and Regional Planning Dennis Gale expressed his gratitude as well and said that Mrs. Shackelton had brought to the City Council a background of community service, understanding of crucial issues of our history, culture, community life and particularly of neighborhood identity. He referred to her support for the neighborhood watch programs, rent control, housing for low and moderate income people and elderly people, and tax relief. "At the center, we have a number of research projects on the horizon right now that will draw substantially from Mrs. Shackelton's papers," he said.

Howard Gillette, professor of American civilization and director of the Program in American Studies, spoke of

(continued on page 3)

UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR ZWERDLING SPEAKS AT HONORS CONVOCATION

At the University's third annual Honors Convocation on Sunday, April 12, in Lisner Auditorium, those in attendance heard an address on "The Sense of Vocation" by University Professor of English Alex Zwerdling.

Opening his remarks with congratulations to all those being honored, Dr. Zwerdling observed "As we try to invent ourselves as adults, such institutional validation can be very reassuring. . . . We have been picked out. We have been chosen. But there is another kind of choosing going on. . . . It's the choice of vocation, or rather, the recognition of vocation." He described some of the patterns of thinking and traditional advice that lead to career choices.

"Some people are lucky; for them the sense of career opportunities coincides perfectly with the sense of vocation," he said. "I think of them as the once-born. . . . More often than not, something refuses to go right in this process of choosing or being chosen. For one thing, not everyone feels a sense of vocation -- the certainty that there is one particular kind of work for which they were intended. And others who discover it find it too late." He noted that others feel divided between what they want to do and what they think they should do and still others have a powerful sense of vocation but a lack of the requisite talents.

"The world is full of people who feel that they've made the wrong career choice," Professor Zwerdling stated. The advice to think about work in purely practical terms sounds more practical than it often turns out to be, he observed. "It assumes that careers can be fashioned without taking the sense of vocation into account," he went on. "It assumes that our work lives can be defined by others -- by concerned adults, by institutions, by market forces, by society. The only force that isn't consulted is our own individual identity, that strange and often inchoate receptacle of longings and needs, of feelings over which we have so little control. . . . The 'practical' choice turns out to be impractical because the rebel self won't allow us to put it into practice. . . . It can make us feel the work we're doing is frustrating, alien, boring. It refuses to listen to reason and let us get on with the job."

Dr. Zwerdling said he spoke from both personal and professional experience. He described his own vocational change from chemistry to literature and shared his experience as chairman of graduate studies in English at the University of California at Berkeley. What interested him among the 500 applications for admission to the doctoral program was how many came from people with advanced degrees in another field or from those who had been practicing some entirely unrelated profession for years.

"The problem of combining vocation and career opportunities remains," he said. "The issue of talent can't finally be evaded. But at least people who face such crises or turning points in their own lives recognize that there is an important

(continued on page 2)

HONORS CONVOCATION -- L to R, Board of Trustees Chairman Everett H. Bellows, Marie Elena Colaianni, Bryant Paul Lehr, University Professor of English Alex Zwerdling, Lisa Ayn Septoff, Danial Bin Mdnoor, and Robert Pierce Forbes

PROFESSOR GRIFFITH HONORED BY FACULTY SENATE APRIL 10

Professor of Philosophy William B. Griffith, outgoing chairman of the Executive Committee of the Faculty Senate, was cited for distinguished service by the Senate at its April 10 meeting.

The resolution of appreciation was introduced by Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French on behalf of President Lloyd H. Elliott who was out of town.

The resolution recognized Professor Griffith's contributions to the University over 23 years and noted "his thoroughness, patience, and objectivity in resolving complex issues faced by this academic community and especially his dedicated service for fourteen years on the Faculty Senate, including five years as Chairman of the Professional Ethics and Academic Freedom Committee, and three years as Chairman of the Executive Committee." The resolution was adopted by acclamation.

GW STUDENT RECEIVES MELLON FELLOWSHIP

A member of The George Washington University community, Mary F. Godfrey, has been awarded a prestigious Mellon Fellowship in the Humanities for 1987.

A native Washingtonian, Ms. Godfrey is a 1978 GW graduate (Bachelor of Arts with honors in psychology) and a 1982 graduate of Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia (Bachelor of Science in Nursing, magna cum laude). She has been employed as a registered nurse for the past five years, four of them (1982 to 1986) at The George Washington University Medical Center. From 1983 to 1986, she was enrolled as a non-degree student at George Washington.

Ms. Godfrey will begin graduate study in the fall of 1987 and hopes to attend Princeton University as a Ph.D. candidate in the department of English. She also has been accepted into graduate programs at Columbia University, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Virginia.

Her interests are Shakespeare and Renaissance drama; literary criticism, including the "new historicism" in Renaissance studies; feminist criticism; and early English drama.

The Mellon Fellowships in the Humanities were established by The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation in 1982 to help replenish college and university faculties with people possessing outstanding critical and creative abilities. Ms. Godfrey is one of 122 fellows chosen from among 1,722 candidates that faculty members in the United States and Canada nominated as showing unusual promise. The winners -- 65 men and 57 women -- come from 57 colleges and universities.

HONORS CONVOCATION

(continued from front)

issue here, that the choice of the work we will spend so much of our lives doing is serious and can't finally be delegated. . . . Fortunately the society we live in offers a generous timetable. Our society grants us a long period of grace. It's perhaps particularly for people like those of you who are being honored here today that this right is so indispensable. To do very well in university work means that you are likely to have more than one option. . . . The first decade of our adulthood ought to be experimental and exploratory -- a constant testing, a matter of trial and error, with the expectation that there will be some trials, there will be some errors, but that we will be given the time to sort them out.

"I hope you'll use that time to think not only about career opportunities and institutional rewards but also about the internal fulfillments -- the sense of pleasure that freely chosen work can give, of intense satisfaction day by day and year after year. If you choose wisely and are lucky, those two forces -- career and vocation -- can come together rather than diverging in a wood (as in Robert Frost's poem 'The Road Not Taken'). . . . The fact that you are here today, I would guess, gives you a much better than even chance."

NOBEL LAUREATE WIESEL TO SPEAK ON APRIL 22

Nobel Peace Prize winner and noted author Elie Wiesel will speak at 8 pm Wednesday, April 22, at Lisner Auditorium. Wiesel, who has spent most of his adult life exposing the world to the tragedy of the Holocaust, will speak on "Building a Moral Society."

Proceeds from the event will go toward supporting programs of the GW Hillel House. Half-price tickets are available to students with a current ID. For ticket information, contact GW Hillel at 296-8873.

PROFESSOR NADLER SELECTED FOR NATIONAL HONOR

Professor of Education Leonard Nadler has been selected as the recipient of the 1986 Distinguished Contribution to Human Resources Development Award, given annually by the American Society for Training and Development.

This award is presented to one member of the human resource development profession who has made an exceptional contribution to the profession and who has given evidence of sustained positive impact on the human resource development field.

Dr. Nadler will be honored at the society's recognition dinner on June 23 in Atlanta, Georgia.

DANCE CONSTRUCTION CO. TO PERFORM

Maida Withers' Dance Construction Company will appear in concert on Friday and Saturday, April 24 and 25, at 8 pm in the Marvin Center Theatre.

The company will appear with jazz musicians in "Obsession," described as a "salty rhubarb." Dancers from Salt Lake City, New York, Washington, D.C., and San Jose, Costa Rica, will appear in dance improvisation and choreography under the direction of Maida Withers, GW associate professor of human kinetics and leisure studies.

The performances are sponsored by the Dance Production Groups of the University's Department of Human Kinetics and Leisure Studies. For ticket information and reservations, call 994-6577. Tickets will also be available one hour before each performance at the Marvin Theatre box office.

NOTE ON CLASSROOM MAINTENANCE

The Physical Plant Department (PPD) says that maintenance of classrooms is a problem because PPD frequently does not know on a timely basis the problems people using classrooms encounter.

To help ease this situation, signs are being installed in classrooms to encourage people to call 994-6410 if furniture, erasers or chalk are a problem or 994-6706 for any other maintenance.

Calls will be accepted from anyone, on or off campus. The number 994-6706 is answered 24 hours a day. The 994-6410 number is answered during weekday office hours and by a recording device evenings and weekends. To discuss a problem with someone, call 994-6700 during working hours for the number of the appropriate building manager. He or she would be glad to hear from you.

GELMAN LIBRARY PRESENTS CHINESE BOOK EXHIBITION

The exhibition, "From Bones to Books: the Chinese Book Through History," will be presented by the University's Gelman Library from today, Monday, April 20, through Friday, May 1. The exhibit can be seen in Rooms 207, 202 and the adjoining corridor on the second floor of the library.

Sponsored by George Washington and the Organizing Committee of the China Book Exhibition, Beijing, People's Republic of China (PRC), the exhibit offers an opportunity to examine an aspect of Chinese civilization by explaining the materials, methods and formats used for thousands of years by the Chinese to make books.

Described as a unique collection of national treasure, the exhibit will show visitors objects few people outside China have ever seen. Included are Chinese books and works of art chosen from the national library collections in Beijing, Nanjing and Shanghai. On display will be inscribed tortoise shells, stones, animal bones, manuscripts, original paintings, manuals, block books, rubbings, prints, paper cuttings and bookmarks.

A large selection of modern books will also be shown which will give insight into the Chinese publishing industry. This selection is shown in cooperation with the Foreign Languages Publishing and Distributing Administration of the PRC.

Hours are: April 20, 7 to 8 pm; April 21 and 22, 8:30 am to 5 pm; April 23, 8:30 am to 8 pm; April 24, 8:30 am to 5 pm; April 25 and 26, 10 am to 5 pm; April 27, 28 and 29, 8:30 am to 5 pm; April 30, 8:30 am to 8 pm; and May 1, 8:30 am to 5 pm.

LUNCHEON TO HONOR EMERITI AND 25-YEAR FACULTY

Members of the faculty who will receive emeritus status at the spring commencements as well as those with 25 years of service will be honored at a luncheon at noon on Wednesday, April 29, in the GW Club. The event is sponsored by the Faculty Senate. Reservations may be made through the Faculty Senate Office, call Ext. 47198.

BRIEFLY...

Lisner at Noon -- Gideon Ferebee, performance poet, will combine music and poetry in concert on Wednesday, April 22, at 12:15 pm in Lisner Auditorium. Admission is free.

Men's Athletics Awards Dinner -- The 29th Annual GW Sports Awards Banquet will be Monday, April 27, at the Arlington Hyatt Hotel. Social hour is scheduled for 6:30 pm with dinner to follow at 7:30 pm. The deadline for reservations is Friday, April 24. For ticket information and reservations call, Ext. 6650.

Redskins Basketball? -- The Washington Redskins' "DC Warriors" will play basketball against a team of GW all-stars to benefit Miriam's Kitchen at 8 pm Monday, April 27, in the Charles E. Smith Center. The event is sponsored by GW's Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity and the Program Board. Miriam's Kitchen, located in the Western Presbyterian Church (1906 H St. NW), serves breakfast every morning to more than 150 of Washington's homeless. For more information call, Ext. 47313.

Round Table Dinner Discussion -- Cynthia McClintock, associate professor of political science, will lead a round table discussion on "US Policy Towards Central America" on Tuesday, April 21, at 5:30 pm at the GW University Club. The dinner discussion is open to all members and their guests. For reservations call, Ext. 6610.

Seventh Annual CHALK-IN --The Counseling Center will sponsor the seventh annual Chalk In in the Gelman Library quad on Wednesday, April 22, from 12 noon to 2 pm. The rain date is Wednesday April 29. Colored chalks will be handed out to students, staff and passers by who wish to "chalk their feelings out" on the pavement. The event provides an energizing study break for many students who are finishing classes and getting ready for finals. Adding to the Chalk In 's festivity will be free balloons and music.

PARKING RATES TO INCREASE ON JULY 1

Parking Services has announced that new parking rates will go into effect on July 1, for the fiscal year 1987-88.

The new fees for faculty and staff are: (All fees listed include tax)

| | |
|---|---|
| Daily before 5 pm | $3.90 |
| Daily after 5 pm | 2.90 |
| Monthly | 62.50 |
| Annually | 750.00 |

The new fees for students are:

| | |
|---|---|
| Daily fees: | $2.90 per period |
| | 2.27 over-time fee |
| Monthly fee: | 90.00 |

Graduate Teaching Fellow/Assistants & Jr./Sr. Medical Students: Daily: $2.90
Monthly fee: prorated by the day

Faculty/Staff/Student
Motorcycle Parking: outdoor $7.20 per semester indoor $7.20 per month

Visitor parking fees will also increase as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| 1st hour | $2.75 |
| 2nd hour | 5.50 |
| 3rd hour | 8.25 |
| Maximum 4 to 10 hours | 8.50 |
| Maximum over 10 hours | 9.00 |
| After 5 pm | 2.75 for the 1st hour; maximum $2.90 |

Faculty and staff fee payroll deductions will be adjusted automatically on July 1, 1987, to reflect the 1987-88 fees noted unless prior cancellation takes place. If any parker does not wish to have payroll deductions, parking privileges should be cancelled as outlined in the Parking Brochure for Faculty/Staff. Parking can be cancelled at anytime, however, it is necessary to sign forms to stop payroll deductions.

BATIK PAINTING -- Ann Morton, international student adviser, tried her hand at Indonesian batik painting during International Week. Instructor Didi Achmadi, right, stood by to help.

PHONATHON SURPASSES ITS GOAL

The 1986-87 D.C. Area Phonathon surpassed its goal of $390,00 this year and broke records in many categories, actually reaching a total of $400,614.

"There are many factors that contribute to the success of an event such as 'George Calling'," comments Director of Alumni Support Serap S. Akisoglu, "however, the most important factor remains the overwhelming response and commitment from our volunteers. Their participation lends life and personality to an otherwise empty room with 30 phones in it.

"Their enthusiasm for this long-standing GW tradition has made 'George Calling' a successful example of the spirit of volunteerism."

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

FREDERICK AMLING, professor of business finance, was one of 30 financial experts surveyed for an article "Seven Best Investments for 1987," in Sylvia Porter's Personal Finance, February 1987 issue.

CHRISTOPHER J. DEERING, associate professor of political science, was interviewed by Gary Edquist of the Voice of America regarding the history and development of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The interview aired as part of VOA's "Governing America" program.

LINDA G. DePAUW, professor of American history, taped an interview for C-span on "The People the Framers Left out of the Constitution." The program aired on February 6 and 7.

PHILLIP D. GRUB, Aryamehr professor of multinational management, and Bryan Sudweeks, lecturer in business administration, were interviewed by the editor of Plant Sites and Parks for the January/February 1987 issue for an article on "Schools Expand Programs to Aid Firms Looking Overseas." The article also contained a favorable review of their book Foreign Direct Investment, published in 1986 by Mercury Press.

JONATHAN D. MORENO, associate professor of philosophy and health care sciences, was interviewed by Independent Network News on March 10 about the Vatican's pronouncement on the uses of biotechnology in human reproduction.

YURI OLKHOVSKY, associate professor of Russian, participated in six radio talk shows in connection with the ABC miniseries "Amerika."

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

MICHAEL BRADLEY, assistant professor of economics, presented a paper,"Stabilization Properties of the Share Economy: Lowering Output Variance," co-authored with Stephen C. Smith, assistant professor of economics, at the Eastern Economic Association Meetings, held in Washington, March 5-7. Research for the paper was conducted under a Junior Scholar research grant from Columbian College. Bradley also presented a paper, "On Illyrian Macroeconomics," at the American Economic Association meetings, December 28, in New Orleans. The paper, which was also co-authored with Stephen C. Smith, was a winner in the 1986 Association for Comparative Economic Studies Paper Competition.

KENNETH R. BOWLING, associate editor for the First Federal Congress Project, spoke at the 14th Annual Conference on Washington, DC, Historical Studies, at the end of February. The Conference was sponsored by the DC Public Library, the Columbia Historical Society, and the Center for Washington Area Studies of The George Washington University. Bowling, a scholar on Washington, DC, prior to 1800, spoke on "Swamps in Early Washington: New Historical Perspectives." He argued that in actuality only a very small percentage of early Washington was wetland and that this was marsh, not swamp.

LINDA G. DePAUW, professor of American history, participated in the Women's Symposium of the Defense Equal Opportunity Management Institute at Patrick AFB, Florida, on March 6, 1987. Her topic was "Gender Stigma."

HARVEY B. FEIGENBAUM, assistant professor of political science, was awarded a Fulbright grant under the auspices of the Western European Regional Research Program for 1987--88. He will be conducting research on the nuclear power programs of West Germany and France. Eventually, the research will compare the experiences of the U.S. and Japan with those of the two European countries.

RAYMOND R. FOX, professor of engineering and applied science, was the principal speaker at the Coastal Construction Technical Workshop sponsored by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, in January, in Honolulu. Those attending were architects, engineers and building officials from throughout the State of Hawaii. Fox spoke on "Design and Construction of Structures in Coastal Zones." The objective of the talk and workshop was to improve construction so as to resist the forces of storm waves and tsunami flooding in the coastal high hazard areas.

DONALD GROSS and RICHARD M. SOLAND, professors of operations research, and THOMAS A. MAZZUCHI, visiting assistant professor of operations research, put on a one-day workshop in Systems Analysis and Engineering on February 28, for local high school teachers of mathematics and science. Their participation was part of the Science and Engineering Apprentice Program, Teacher Component, a research and training grant from the Department of Defense administered by GW for local area high school students and science teachers.

JOHN D. HUNT, professor of travel and tourism, presented a paper entitled, "Trends in Travel and Tourism and their Impact on the Ski Industry," at the Annual Meeting of Colorado Ski Country USA, February 9, in Silver Creek, Co.

EUGENE W. KELLY, JR., professor of education, was a panelist commentator at a seminar on "Whose Values in the Classroom?", sponsored by the Program in Law and Religion of the Columbus School of Law, Catholic University of America, on February 26.

(continued on back)

TELEPHONE SYSTEM UPDATE

The new GW telephone system is in the final stage of installation on campus.

Only the new radio-television facility on 20th Street, Buildings K and VV, Ross Hall, the GW Hospital and the Burns Building, are still in the process of having the new system installed. By May 1, the Medical Center is scheduled to be on the system.

The old Centrex telephone service has been disconnected in all of the campus buildings except the following: Buildings AA/EE; BB; D; II; J; JJ; K; O; X: WW; T; VV; Burns Law Library; Burns MFA Building; Funger Hall; Gelman Library; Hospital; Lerner Hall; Lisner Auditorium; Ross/Himmelfarb Library; TV Studio; Warwick Clinic; and Woodhull House.

As each of the remaining buildings is scheduled for disconnection from the Centrex service, notices will be posted.

During this final telephone installation process, the Telecommunications Systems Department asks for your patience and cooperation. Please hold your requests for any changes unless it is an emergency situation where you phone is not working. Please let your departmental coordinators know about the problem and they will contact the Telecommunications Customer Service office.

For anyone who has not attended a training session, it is crucial that you arrange with your coordinator to come to one. There are many useful features of the new phones that are explained at the training session that will help you when the old service is disconnected.

The Telecommunications Systems Department appreciates everyone's cooperation in the installation process of the new system. The departmental coordinators will continue to be the key people in the successful operation of the system.

COLONNADE GALLERY SEEKS ART PROPOSALS

The Colonnade Gallery of the Marvin Center is seeking proposals for art exhibitions for the 1987-88 academic year. Acceptable proposals include, but are not limited to, two and/or three dimensional fiber, clay, stone and glass objects and works of art on paper; paintings, prints, photographs, books, manuscripts, maps and instruments.

The deadline is Friday, May 15. Illustrative materials, such as slides, drawings, plans and literature must accompany proposals.

To obtain a proposal form or for additional information, contact Miriam Nathan or Paul Galullo, Ext. 49188, on Mondays, Wednesdays, or Fridays.

SHACKELTON

(continued from front)

the advances that have been made in the last six or seven years in drawing together materials for the study of Washington in locations such as the Martin Luther King Library, the Columbia Historical Society and the University. "What we're all striving for is what Mrs. Shackelton has helped us today begin to achieve," he said, "having the materials to pull together and to appreciate and analyze the very rich and rather complex history of this great city. I think that her papers in particular will prove to be exceptionally important because her life in politics is in an incredibly important transitional period from the first appointed council to the first elected council."

University Librarian Sharon Rogers expressed the hope that there can be an oral history project with Mrs. Shackelton, as suggested by Professor Gillette, so that the collection can be enhanced by her personal recollections.

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history and director of the Graduate Program in Historic Preservation, has been elected a trustee and appointed chairman of the Preservation Sub-Committee of the Committee of 100 on the Federal City. He has also been appointed to the Preservation Education Task Force of the National Trust for Historic Preservation. On Friday, February 27, he spoke on "The Uneasy Relationship between Preservation and Design" at a symposium on "Designing New Buildings for a Historic Cote Context," sponsored by the Providence Preservation, Providence, Rhode Island.

CLARA M. LOVETT, professor of history, has been awarded a Certificate of Distinguished Service by the Institute for International Education for her contributions to the Fulbright-Hays Program and other programs administered by IIE.

CYNTHIA McCLINTOCK, associate professor of political science, has received a Fulbright award to Peru. Between August and December, 1987, she will carry out research on redemocratization in Peru. She has conducted preliminary research on this theme in the summers of 1985 and 1986, with the support of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and the School of Public and International Affairs. The completed study will include comparisons between the Peruvian case and other Andean experiences.

JEAN McGARRY, assistant professor of English, has been awarded a National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship for 1987-88. She will take a year off to finish her third book. Her second book, The Very Rich Hours, a collection of fiction, is being published this month by Johns Hopkins University Press.

JEAN PREER, adjunct associate professor of American civilization, is serving as a member of the Advisory Board to the Mellon Grant Project on Minority Doctorates of the American Council on Education's Office of Minority Concerns.

GARY K. POOCK, distinguished visiting professor of engineering administration, presented an invited paper, "Computer Speech, Recognition --Past, Present, Future," at the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association's Computer Conference, February 17, in Houston, Texas. He discussed the recent progress in speech recognition particularly the use of feedback in enhanced communication.

LEO P. RIBUFFO, professor of history, delivered a paper, "Jimmy Carter and the Ironies of American Liberalism," at the American Historical Association convention on December 30, 1986, and at a meeting of the Washington, DC, Twentieth Century Historians group on February 25.

FREDERIC R. SIEGEL, professor of geochemistry, addressed the Senior Staff of the Latin American and Caribbean Region of the World Bank on the topic of natural hazards in development planning, March 11.

OUTSTANDING SENIOR IN FINE ARTS Jim Fay is shown in the Dimock Gallery next to his "Self portrait" one of 77 works in the gallery's Annual Awards Show which runs through April 30. He was selected as outstanding senior by members of the Art Department. Jim is a program coordinator in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

THE SLAVIC DEPARTMENT sponsored a symposium commemorating the 150th anniversary of Pushkin's death on February 14. Nadine Natov, professor of Russian, and Charles A. Moser, professor of Slavic, read papers along with seven other professors. Natov's paper was entitled "Pushkin's Death 150 years Later: A Contemporary View." The topic of Moser's paper was "Pushkin as Banner: From Katkov to Pisarev, 1855-65."

PUBLICATIONS

WOODROW BARFIELD, assistant professor in engineering administration, co-authored book chapter, "Technical and Human Aspects of Computer-Aided Design" which was published in the Handbook of Human Factors, 1987.

ED BERKOWITZ, associate professor of history, an edited volume, Social Security After Fifty, with Greenwood Press. The volume includes two of his essays: the first on the celebration of the 50th anniversary of social security; and the second on the 1939 observance. The book is an outgrowth of the conference on Social Security After Fifty, which was held last year and sponsored by the Columbian College and the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

WILLARD E. CALDWELL, professor emeritus of psychology, an article, "Conditioned Hyperventilation as a Factor in Animal, Infant, and Adult Apnea: A Theoretical Analysis of Experimental and Clinical Data," in Genetic, Social, and General Psychology Monographs.

MILTON M. CARROW, research professor of public policy, an article, "Current Issues in Disability Claims Processes," in Administrative Law News, Winter 1987, pp. 3-5.

Three members of the DEPARTMENT OF ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING AND COMPUTER SCIENCE received "Awards of Excellence" for their publications from the Society for Technical Communication at the National Press Club on January 21st. They are Rachelle S. Heller and C. Dianne Martin, instructors in engineering and applied science, for their book LOGWORLDS and Raymond L. Pickholtz, professor of engineering and applied science, for his book Local Area and Multiple Access Networks.

JOHN EFTIS, professor of engineering and applied science, a paper, "On the Fracture Stress for the Inclined Crack Under Biaxial Load," in the journal Engineering Fracture Mechanics, Vol. 26, No. 1, 105-125, 1987.

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor, three articles: "Socio-Economics: A Proposal for a New Interdisciplinary Field," in Journal of Social Behavior and Personality, 1986, Vol. 1. No. 4, pp. 475-482; "Does Regulation Reduce Electricity Rates? A Research Note," in Policy Sciences, Vol. 19 (1986), pp. 349- 357; "Socio-Economics: Humanizing the Dismal Science," in the Washington Post, Outlook Section, January 11, 1987.

C.Y. HSIEH, professor of economics, a co-authored book with Stephen L. Mangum, a former GW student who received his Ph.D in economics in 1984, entitled A Search for Synthesis in Economic Theory, published by M.E. Sharpe, Inc., New York, in December 1986.

R.C. LINDHOLM, professor of geology, a co-authored article with Ira S. Merin, "Evidence that the Crystalline Cores of Uplifts Adjacent to the Powder River Basin were Breached During Paleocene Time," in The Mountain Geologist, Vol. 23, 1986, pp. 128-131.

JONATHAN D. MORENO, associate professor of philosophy and health care sciences, a review of Streams of Experience: Reflections of the History and Philosophy of American Culture, by John McDermot (University of Massachusetts, 1986) published in The New England Quarterly, December, 1986.

RAYMOND L. PICKHOLTZ, professor of engineering and applied science, a co-authored paper, "Performance of Meteor-Burst Communication Channels," in Journal of Selected Areas in Communications, Vol. SAC, No. 2, February 1987, pp. 146-154.

JAMES WILLIS ROBB, professor of Romance languages, two articles:"Le cena de Alfonso Reyes, cuento onirico," in M.H. Forster/J. Ortega, (eds.), De la Cronica a la Nueva Narrativa Mexicana, Mexico: Oasis, 1986, pp. 115-125; and "Alfonso Reyes y Eugenio Florit: de poeta a poeta," Revista Ibero-americana, LII:137 (Oct.-Dec. 1986), pp. 1015-1041.

SUSAN TOLCHIN, professor of public administration, testimony on the public policy implications of increased foreign investment in the U.S., in the hearing transcript, Disclosure of Foreign Investment in the U.S., before the Subcommittee on Telecommunications, Consumer Protection, and Finance of the Committee on Energy and Commerce, U.S. House of Representatives.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Department of Biochemistry. (Individual to characterize neuropeptide receptors. Experience in analysis of ligand binding data helpful. B.A. in biophysics or related field required.) Contact: Dr. T.W. Moody, GWUMC, Department of Biochemistry, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Washington, DC 20037.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, full-time, ICU Research. (Master's degree required in Computer Science or Electrical Engineering, plus strong long-term computer skills and intimate working knowledge of SAS and CMS. Individual to analyze needs of and develop a computer-controlled, complex diagnostic system, intended to provide expert assistance to hospital admitting team. Confer in-house with M.D./Ph.D.'s on upgrade and support of system; develop software packages for IBM PCs in Pascal; supervise and prepare specifications for programming. Familiarity with electrical theory and design of IBM PCs. Well-versed in terminology and codes of international classification of diseases.) Contact William A. Knaus, M.D. ICU Research, 2300 K Street, NW, Washington, DC 20037, (Tel: 994-0880).

(continued next column)

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, full-time, temporary position available May 1. (Individual to study glycolipids in cells targeted by respiratory and neurotropic viruses. Previous experience in the characterization of glycolipids is essential. Master's degree required. Additional training in membrane biology, tissue culture, or virology is desirable.) Salary commensurate with experience. Send CV or resume to: Dr. Mary Ann K. Markwell, GWUMC, Ross Hall, Room 726, 2300 Eye Street, NW Washington, DC 20037.

The Department of Medicine has the following, full-time, post- doctoral, RESEARCH ASSOCIATE positions available: 1) two-year position for entry level graduate in the biological sciences. Tissue culture experience, particularly with endothelial and smooth muscle cells required; growth factor experience would be optimal. Duties include coordinating multi-user tissue culture facility for collaborating investigators. Contact Dr. Weglicki, Room 409, Ross Hall; 2) Recent graduate with lipid biochemistry experience required. Research to focus on phospholipases as mediators of biological membrane injury. Experience with synthetic substrates and phospholipase purification preferred. Contact Dr. Weglicki; 3) Recent graduate majoring in immunology. Prefer candidate with some immunochemistry and hybridoma experience. Research to focus on immune mechanisms of cardiovascular injury. Contact Dr. Phillips, Room 413, Ross Hall; 4) Recent graduate with experience in analytical lipid biochemistry, particularly HPLC and GC Mass Spectroscopy methodology. Research to focus on free radical and xenobiotic mechanisms of injury of endothelial cells. Contact Dr. Dickens, Room 415, Ross Hall.

SENIOR RESEARCH SCIENTIST, full-time, Institute for Disease Prevention. (Individual with several years post-doctoral experience in laboratory research required. Apart from laboratory management and staff training, responsibilities will include the planning and execution of experiments in nutrition and carcinogenesis that may involve physiological, biochemical, flow cytometric, and molecular biological techniques.) Position available immediately. Send CV and the names and addresses of at least two referees to Oliver Alabaster, M.D., 705 Ross Hall, GWUMC, Washington, DC 20037 (Tel:-676--8290).

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

April 27, 1987 (472)

GW Report

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

LeNORMAN J. STRONG TO BE MARVIN CENTER DIRECTOR

The new director of the Marvin Center will be LeNorman J. Strong, presently director of Willard Straight Hall at Cornell University. He will assume the position July 1 following the retirement of Boris Bell, first director of the Marvin Center who has served since September 1, 1968.

Strong became associated with Cornell University in 1977 as director of its Noyes Center. In 1983, he became director of Willard Straight Hall, one of Cornell's major campus life facilities which includes 95,000 square feet and many varied components. At Cornell, he served a year (1985-1986) as assistant/executive intern to the vice president for campus affairs holding line responsibilities for administrative functions and special projects. At the same time, he continued as director of Willard Straight Hall.

Special duties at Cornell included serving on the Vice President for Campus Affairs Advisory Group and on the Provost's Advisory Committee on the Status of Minorities. For the past 12 years, he has been a consultant on the national level in the areas of human relations and race relations.

Prior to his service at Cornell, he was program advisor/coordinator of student organizations at the E.H. Hereford University Center at the University of Texas at Arlington (1973-1974) and director of student activities/student center at Tarrant County Junior College Northwest Campus, Fort Worth, Texas (1975-1977).

A graduate of the University of Texas at Arlington (Bachelor of Business Administration, 1974), Strong has completed the requirements for a master's degree in the area of student personnel guidance and administration at East Texas State University and expects to receive the degree in August of this year. At Cornell, he has done additional graduate work in human service studies, program planning and evaluation.

Immediate past president of the Association of College Unions - International (ACU-I), he has served the association in a number of capacities since 1979. He developed and coordinated several national seminars for ACU-I. Most recently, he designed the implementation process for the findings from the association's Task Force on the Future.

LeNorman J. Strong

RIBBON CUTTING -- L to R, Mr. Ma Canxiong, Deputy Director of the China Foreign Languages Publishing and Distribution Administration, Ministry of Culture, People's Republic of China; Ms. Lan Suhong; President Lloyd H. Elliott; Ms. Zhang Liqing; and the Ambassador of the People's Republic of China Han Xu officiated at the April 20 ribbon cutting which opened the Gelman Library's exhibition, "From Bones to Books: The Chinese Book Through History," which runs through May 1.

CAMPUS CONSTRUCTION UPDATE

A walk across campus will show much construction work going on and more is planned in eight different campus locations. In addition, work continues on the new telecommunications system, which includes the new University phone system to be completed by May 1.

The Office of Planning and Construction in the Vice President and Treasurer's Office provides information on the eight projects and the current status of each.

The radio-TV facility being built in the United Church and parsonage at 814-816 20th Street, will include teaching facilities, classrooms and offices. Construction, at an approximate cost of $5 million, will be finished by May 1. Installation and checking of equipment will not be completed until August of this year.

An addition to the H.B. Burns Building will provide new facilities for the GWU Health Maintenance Organization and updated and expanded clinical facilities for the Medical Faculty Associates at a cost of approximately $50 million. The new addition south of the existing clinic will be completed in the spring of 1988. At that time, renovation of the existing Burns Building will begin with total completion of both projects by the summer of 1988.

At Corcoran Hall, a modernization of most of the laboratories is in progress. A new south stairwell is being built and other improvements are being made at a cost of approximately $7 million. Begun in early 1987, the project is to be completed by August 15. (A new elevator in the existing elevator shaft will be installed this fall.)

In the Gelman Library, approximately $3.5 million is being invested in major improvements to the first and third floors and renovation of the elevators. The third floor is to be completed by May 8. On that date, work on the first floor will begin. The main floor renovation will be ready for the Fall Semester 1987.

Major improvements to the University Yard are now essentially complete, although the new sod is still fenced off. The University community is indebted to Trustee Oliver T. Carr Jr. for the idea for this project as well as a contribution of $250,000 toward its completion. Elements include a new podium at the south end, outside Lisner Hall; new sidewalks; lamp posts; landscaping and benches. Total cost will be over $500,000. At Thurston Hall and the Everglades, major improvements will be made one at a time to all elevators. New equipment is on order and work will start following the end of Spring Semester and continue through the fall.

The 2100 Pennsylvania Avenue Project has scheduled renovations to the Joseph Henry Building following the departure of the National Academy of Sciences in August. Improvements to the building will begin then for completion in the spring of 1988. A new entry with an atrium will be built facing Pennsylvania Avenue.

DR. RALPH DePALMA TO GIVE FIRST WEDNESDAY LECTURE

Dr. Ralph DePalma, chairman, Department of Surgery, will speak on "Vascular Health and Normal Sexual Function," as part of the First Wednesday Lecture Series, on Wednesday, May 6, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. He will discuss new medical opinions on the causes of male impotence and describe how vascular health can affect this condition.

The lecture is sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office. For more information and reservations call, Ext. 46435.

Dinner, for both members and non-members of the GW University Club, will be served beforehand, beginning at 6:30 pm. Call Ext. 46610 for dinner reservations.

SIX TO RECEIVE GW AWARDS AT SPRING COMMENCEMENT

Six members of the University community will receive George Washington Awards at the spring commencements this year.

The awards were established in 1976 to recognize individuals who have made exceptional contributions to the University and University life.

Martin M. Roudabush, who retired from the University as senior resident consulting engineer at the end of February after nearly 37 years service, will receive the award for his technical acumen and diplomacy, untiring willingness to devote his "free" time to problems in planning, and his concern in creating a safer, more comfortable and reliable building environment. His award will be presented at the Columbian College commencement.

Brian Selinsky, director of academic advising in the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences, will be recognized for his conscientious and enthusiastic commitment to improving the effectiveness of Columbian College advising and the Summer Advanced Registration Program; dedication to the well-being of countless individual students; consistent professionalism, friendliness, understanding and generosity toward his colleagues, staff and all students. He will also receive his GW Award at the Columbian College ceremony.

Ralph Shafer, resident assistant/teaching assistant at Building JJ for the "Technology and Society" Program, is being honored for his role in the development of the program as well as dedication and encouragement to students; accessibility as a resource and computer advisor for students, faculty and staff; his involvement with the GW Student Association, the Housing Office, and a variety of programs and projects in support of the extra-curricular pursuits of students. His award will be given him at the SGBA commencement.

Scott Sherman, a senior in SPIA, will receive the George Washington Award for his leadership role as president of Zeta Beta Tau; initiative as executive vice president of the Student Association in successfully lobbying the Budget Office for a supplementary budget increase; dedicated service in chairing the Joint Faculty-Student Committee; commitment to the rights of students as director of the Student Advocate Service; and for developing the publications for commencements and convocations as chair of the Publications Subcommittee of the convocation and commencement planning committees. He will receive his award at SPIA's commencement.

Philip Sobocinski, resident director at Crawford Hall, is being recognized for his dedication to meaningful campus activities over the last nine years. He has been the Student Association's Vice President for Graduate Affairs as well as president of Omicron Delta Kappa, the

(continued on back)

SPANISH DANCE -- Student members of GW's Spanish Dance Society, under the direction of Marina Keet, appeared in the dance sequence "Benamor" April 15 in the Lisner at Noon Series.

AIDS INFORMATION PROGRAM OFFERED MAY 4, 6, 7 AND 8

"AIDS, Sex and You," an educational program open to the entire University community, will be presented May 4, 6, 7 and 8 at various times. The presentations are sponsored by the University Committee on Aids.

Provost William D. Johnson, chair of the committee, comments, "The major defense the world has against AIDS is education and, in the University, we need to have the dangers and problems understood as clearly as possible."

The schedule will be:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Monday, May 4, | 10:00 - 11:15 am | Hospital Auditorium, 1st floor |
| | 1:30 - 2:45 pm | Hospital Auditorium, 1st floor |
| | 4:00 - 5:15 pm | Marvin Center Ballroom |
| Wednesday, May 6, | 10:00 - 11:15 am | Marvin Center Ballroom |
| Thursday, May 7, | 12:15 - 1:30 pm | Marvin Center Ballroom |
| | 1:30 - 2:45 pm | Hospital Auditorium, 1st floor |
| | 4:00 - 5:15 pm | Marvin Center Ballroom |
| Friday, May 8, | 7:00 - 8:15 pm | Hospital Auditorium, 1st floor |

For further information, contact Personnel Services, Ext. 44980.

GW AWARDS

(continued from front)

national leadership honor society. He worked for the National College Model United Nations and both founded and served as advisor to the GW U.S. Model Congress. Philip served six years on the Marvin Center Governing Board contributing to services and policies. He has been a peer advisor and has served GW students through his membership in the World Affairs Society. His award will be presented at the SGBA ceremony.

Dr. Chariklia Tziraki, associate professor of medicine and of health care sciences and director of the Division of Internal Medicine, will receive the George Washington Award for her work as director of the division and as coordinator of clinical clerkships for the Department of Medicine; for enhancing the educational objectives of the School of Medicine by implementing innovative programs; for service as an academic and career advisor to countless students; and for devotion to maximizing the potential of medical students and house staff, as future practitioners of medicine. She will receive her award at the ceremony of the School of Medicine and Health Sciences.

GW GW

UPCOMING CONFERENCE ON PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

"Inspiring Public Management in the Year 2000" will be the topic of a May 1 and 2 conference sponsored by the School of Government and Business Administration in conjunction with a number of area organizations.

The conference will explore the impact of global pressures, technological changes, and demographics on the roles and functions of public managers at the turn of the century. Also among the issues to be addressed by a distinguished group of speakers are new public/private delivery systems and potential changes in federal, state, and local relationships.

At the Friday, May 1, session, speakers and panels will discuss these issues and conclude with a session on "High Performing Organizations in the Future." The focus of discussion on Saturday, May 2, will be "Personal Agenda-Setting for the Year 2000," with sessions geared toward preparing participants to plan for future changes in their lives and careers.

The conference, which will be co-chaired by GW alumna Nancy Tate and Kathryn Newcomer, chair of the Department of Public Administration, will be held in the Marvin Center. There is a registration fee. For further information call, Ext. 46295.

BRIEFLY...

Blood Pressure Check-ups -- The Medical Center and the Wellness Resource Center will sponsor high blood pressure screening during May. GW employees and students can have their blood pressure checked without charge every Wednesday in May, between 11 am and 2 pm in the Marvin Center 3rd floor lounge (outside the ballroom) except May 20 when the screening will be in the 2nd floor lobby, Marvin Center.

GW Club Tea -- Mrs. Gillian McDonald of Australia will be the guest of honor at the GW Club tea on Wednesday, April 29, from 3-5 pm. This will be the last tea of the academic year. For reservations call, Ext. 46610.

Lisner at Noon -- "Beyond Words," a new wave pop band featuring lead singer Lisa Matthews; Mark Evankoon, bass; Mikel Gehl, guitarist; George Kondylas, percussionist; and Doug Scrivener, keyboards, will perform Wednesday, April 29, at 12:15 in Lisner Auditorium. Admission is free.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

ED BERKOWITZ, associate professor of history, was recently selected to be a Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Faculty Fellow in Health Care Finance. A national competition preceded the selection of 1987-1988 fellows who will spend four months at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine and eight months in an internship devoted to health care finance.

JAMES E. FALK, professor of operations research, was invited to speak to the Graduate School of Industrial Administration at Carnegie-Mellon University on December 9. He spoke by invitation at the University of Maryland, Baltimore Campus, to the Department of Mathematics on December 12. At both universities his topic was "Optimization in Defense of Targets."

PUBLICATIONS

JAMES R. BARTH, professor of economics, two papers: "The Thrift Industry's Rough Road Ahead"; and "Financial Crises and the Role of the Lender of Last Resort," in Current Readings on Money, Banking, and Financial Markets, James A. Wilcox (ed.), Little Brown and Company, 1987.

HERBERT J. DAVIS, associate professor of business administration a co-authored article, "A Comparison of the Work-Reward Preference Patterns of MBAs from the United States, Canada, Australia and Singapore," in Asia-Pacific Journal of Management, Vol. 4, #1, September, 1986, pps. 38-40.

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history, a new chapter on 20th-century North American architecture for the 19th edition of Sir Banister Fletcher's History of Architecture, (London: Butterworth's, 1987), pp. 1397-1436.

BERNARD REICH, professor of political science and international affairs, co-author and editor of a book: The Powers in the Middle East: The Ultimate Strategic Arena, (New York & London: Praeger, 1987), which includes chapters by GERSHON R. KIEVAL, associate professorial lecturer in political science, JOHN H. McFADDEN, assistant professor of political science, ROSEMARY HOLLIS, instructor in political science, Alexender J. Bennett, Ph.D. in political science, Patrick J. Coquillon, M.A. in Middle East Studies, Cheryl Cutler, M.A. in Middle East Studies, and Timothy J. Piro, Ph.D. candidate in political science.

The following articles were published in the new 16-volume Encyclopedia of Religion, Mircea Eliade ed.-in-chief (New York: Macmillan Publishing Co., 1987) by members of the RELIGION DEPARTMENT: "Free Will and Predestination" (5:422-26) and "Theocracy" (14:427-30) by DEWEY D. WALLACE, professor of religion; "Rene Guenon" (6:136-38) and "Shiism: Ithna Ashariyah" (13:260-70) by SEYYED HOSSEIN NASR, university professor of Islamic studies; "Josephus Flavius" (8:117-18) by DAVID ALTSHULER, associate professor of religion; and "Gambling" (5:468-74), "Hinduism" (6:336-60), "Mahabharata" (9:118-19), "Kuruksetra" (8:406-7), "Arjuna" (1:412-13), and (with Thomas Hopkins) "Indus Valley Religion" (7:215-23) by ALF HILTEBEITEL, professor of religion.

LOIS G. SCHWOERER, professor of history, two articles: "Women and the Glorious Revolution," 18 Albion (1986) 195-218; and "The Role of Lawyers in the Revolution of 1688-89," in Die Rolle der Juristen bei der Entstehung des modernen Staates, (Berlin, 1986), pp. 473-498.

CHARLES T. STEWART, professor of economics, an article, "Structural Change and Intergenerational Occupational Mobility," in Journal of Developing Areas, January 1987.

KLAUS THONELT, professor of German, an article, "Ernst Wiechert," in Dictionary of Literary Biography, (German Fiction Writers, 1914 to 1945), Vol. 56, pp. 287-297, Gale Research Co., Detroit, Michigan.

May 4, 1987 (473)

GW Report

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

EMERITUS AND 25-YEAR FACULTY MEMBERS HONORED

EMERITI ELECT at the April 29 luncheon L to R, 1st row, Julius C. Eisenstein, Hugo V. Rizzoli, Ching Yao Hsieh, Richard F. Ericson; second row, Neel J. Price, John P. Adams, James C. Walsh Jr., William P. McKelway, and John P. Reesing Jr.

At the April 29 Faculty Recognition Luncheon in the GW Club, sponsored by the Faculty Senate, members of the faculty who will receive emeritus status this month and those with 25 years service to the university were recognized and honored.

Faculty Senate Executive Committee Chairman Professor William B. Griffith pointed out that the luncheon, the seventh annual occasion, is becoming a strong tradition. He commented that while off-campus honors and recognition are indeed valued, "There is an important place for the university as a community of professionals to honor the great contributions that are made within the university walls by the long and faithful, devoted and distinguished service of many of our colleagues. On behalf of the Faculty Senate, we are very pleased to have this opportunity to do so."

"On behalf of this University," said President Lloyd H. Elliott to those being honored, "I thank you, the faculty, for bringing the distinction to this institution which it enjoys. I thank those who are retiring and those who have reached 25 years. . . . A university is no better than its faculty, in fact, a university is as great as its faculty. All other measures are secondary. I thank you for all that you have done to make this institution, better, greater for your being here."

Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French, in remarks to the emeriti elect, referred to an allegorical fantasy, "Cosmicomics," by the Italian writer Italo Calvino. It is the story of a small entity in the cosmos which, feeling lonely, wishes to communicate, hangs out a sign in the universe and finds, at the end of a year's orbit, that "the idea has caught on" and sees a great proliferation of other signs illuminating the darkness of space. "What we are celebrating today is the fact many of our colleagues have made at least 25 revolutions through the orbit of the academic year," Dr. French commented, "and in the course of each revolution have made very distinctive marks in the universe of higher education. Collectively all of these marks have embellished and enriched the emblem of our university." He said to both groups being honored, "You should be as gratified by the marks that you have made on your own behalf and on ours as we are grateful for them. We wish, to all of you, many more happy revolutions in our orbit."

The 12 professors emeriti elect listed in the program were: John P. Adams, professor of orthopaedic surgery and of child health and development; Julius C. Eisenstein, professor of physics; Richard F. Ericson, professor of management; Ching Yao Hsieh, professor of economics; William T. Mallison Jr., professor of law; Leroy S. Merrifield, Lobingier Professor of Jurisprudence and Comparative Law; William P. McKelway, clinical professor of obstetrics and gynecology; Neel J. Price, clinical professor of obstetrics and gynecology; John P. Reesing Jr., professor of English; Hugo V. Rizzoli, professor of neurological surgery; Nicholas P.D. Smyth, clinical professor of surgery; and James C. Walsh Jr., clinical professor of obstetrics and gynecology. Of this group, Professors Merrifield, Mallison and Smyth were not present.

Faculty members who were recognized for 25 years

(continued on back)

SPRING MFA THESIS SHOW OPENS MAY 7 IN DIMOCK

Works by GW students who are candidates for the Master of Fine Arts degree will be on view in the Dimock Gallery from Thursday, May 7 to Thursday, May 28.

The exhibition will include works from the disciplines of ceramics, design, painting, photography and visual communications. The 11 artists whose work will be shown are: Amal Boulos, Ralph Bucci, Darrell Dean, Nancy Haskett, Miriam R. Herrero, Catherine Davis Hickock, Dennis Gary Hull, Patrick Kirwin, Carl Thomas Lennartson, Patricia Lee Nicholls and Janet Morgan Stoeke.

Hours of the Dimock Gallery, off the lower lounge of Lisner Auditorium, are: Tuesday through Friday, 10 am to 5 pm; Saturday, 12 noon to 5 pm; open for special Lisner Auditorium performances and closed to the public on Monday.

SPRING COMMENCEMENTS SET

Distinguished speakers from both the public and private sectors of our national life will address graduates at the University's May commencements.

Approximately 2,000 degrees will be conferred at the eight occasions. This includes the six separate ceremonies on Sunday, May 10; the National Law Center commencement on Sunday, May 17; and the ceremony of the School of Medicine and Health Sciences on Friday, May 29.

President Lloyd H. Elliott will participate in all eight commencements and will confer honorary degrees and degrees in course. Receptions for the graduates and their families and friends will follow each ceremony.

The Honorable Robert William Packwood, United States Senator (R-Oregon) will be the speaker at the School of Government and Business Administration commencement at 10 am Sunday, May 10, in the Charles E. Smith Center. He will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Public Service. Senior class speaker will be Marie Elena Colainni, who will receive a Bachelor of Business Administration in Accountancy.

The Honorable Rozanne LeJeanne Ridgway, Assistant Secretary of State for European and Canadian Affairs, will address graduates at the School of Public and International Affairs ceremony May 10 at 11 am in Lisner Auditorium. She will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. SPIA senior class speaker will be Bert Lopez, who will receive a Bachelor of Arts in International Affairs.

Charles Bass Reed, Chancellor of the State University System of Florida, will speak at the School of Education and Human Development exercises May 10 at 1:30 pm in Lisner Auditorium and will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Public Service.

Jacob Arthur Stein, partner in the D.C. law firm Stein, Mitchell & Mezines will speak to graduates of the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences May 10 at 3 pm in the Smith Center. He will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Senior class speaker will be Pasquale John Rocco Jr., who will receive a Bachelor of Arts with an economics major and statistics minor.

Richard Herman Petersen, director of the NASA-Langley Research Center, will speak at the School of Engineering and Applied Science commencement May 10 at 4:30 pm in Lisner Auditorium. He will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Public Service.

Natalie Zemon Davis, president of the American Historical Association, will address degree recipients and will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters at the commencement of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences at 7:30 pm in Lisner Auditorium.

The Honorable Daniel K. Inouye, United States Senator (D-Hawaii) will speak to graduates at the National Law Center commencement on Sunday, May 17, at 1:30 pm in the Smith Center As a current member of tne University's Board of Trustees, the senator is not eligible for an honorary degree.

The School of Medicine and Health Sciences commencement is scheduled for Friday, May 29, at 11 am in Lisner Auditorium. The speaker will be Dr. Richard S. Snell, chairman, Department of Anatomy and professor of anatomy and orthopaedic surgery in the School of Medicine and Health Sciences.

EXCELLENCE IN STUDENT LIFE AWARDS PRESENTED APRIL 24

BAER AWARDS -- L to R, Keith Pettigrew, Rachel Vincent, Peter Aronsohn, Mrs. David A. Baer, Maura Donnelly, Patricia Lewis, Scott Sherman, and President Lloyd H. Elliott

"It is very fitting that you be honored for your contributions to student life," University Trustee Nancy B. Dudley told honors recipients at the University's second annual Excellence in Student Life Awards ceremony on April 24. "All of us on the Board of Trustees have been happy to see the resurgence of interest in student activities in the 1980s," she commented.

Awards were given in three areas: to five chartered campus organizations; to five registered campus organizations; and to six individuals.

The Baer Awards for Individual Excellence in Student Life recognize those students whose contributions have transcended the activities of any one or more groups with which they have been affiliated. The awards are given in memory of David A. Baer (A.B. 1910, LL.B. 1912). Active in co-curricular life, Baer was the founder and first president of the Pyramid Honor society which recognized outstanding participation in student activities.

(continued on back)

EXCELLENCE IN STUDENT LIFE

(continued from front)

The awards, presented by President Lloyd H. Elliott and Mrs. Barbara Luchs for the Baer family, went to Paul Aronsohn, Maura Donnelly, Patricia Lewis, Keith Pettigrew, Scott Sherman and Rachel Vincent.

In the area of campus organizations chartered by the Board of Trustees, the awards recognize the organization leader, the most valuable member (MVM), and the outstanding program or feature of the year. These recognitions were as follows: The Cherry Tree -- Jennifer Sergovic, editor; MVM, Diego Osuna; feature, section in the 1987 edition on GW's residence areas; The GW Hatchet -- Jim Clarke, editor-in-chief; MVM, Cookie Olshein; feature, coverage of the debate over raising the drinking age in D.C. by Sue Sutter and Jennifer Cetta; GW Student Association -- Adam Freedman, president, and Scott Sherman, executive vice president; MVM, Patricia Lewis; program, book exchange; Marvin Center Governing Board, Buddy Lesavoy; MVM, Philip Sobocinski; program, Marvin Center renovation project; Program Board -- Jeff Goldstein; MVM, Donna Nelson; program, A Nation in Conflict Residence Hall Association -- Craig Fisher; MVM, Christian Downs; program, Martha's Marathon of Birthday Bargains.

Registered campus organizations honored were: College Democrats for furthering political awareness; International Student Society for fostering multiculturalism; Mitchell Hall Council for promoting personal and professional development; Phi Sigma Sigma sorority for community service; and the Student Orientation Staff for school service.

President Lloyd H. Elliott expressed his official and personal thanks to the members of the Baer family for their interest in the awards.

Speaking of Boris Bell, the retiring director of the Marvin Center, Dr. Elliott said, "I don't want to let this occasion end without expressing my thanks to Boris Bell. He came before there was a Marvin Center. He has been the chief architect, designer, planner and man-about-the-building." Mr. Bell received two standing ovations during the afternoon -- following President Elliott's remarks, and earlier when he came to the platform with Claudia Derriotte, student activities director, to present awards to registered campus groups.

PERSONNEL NOTICE

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Division of Hematology and Oncology. (Individual to coordinate data of various oncology and AIDS/ARC clinical trials; patient scheduling; collection and compilation of data, and completion of study report forms. Close interaction with physicians, nurses and laboratory technicians. Some travel may be required. A bachelor's degree is required, and related research experience is desirable.) Contact: Jeffery Stallings at Ext. 4200.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

CHALK-IN -- Columbian College freshmen Kevin Connolly, left, and Doug Dow enjoyed the warm weather at the sixth annual CHALK-IN on April 20 in the Gelman Quad as Doug chalked a smiling message.

FACULTY MEMBERS HONORED

(continued from front)

service were: Lewis F. Affronti, professor of microbiology; Otto Bergman, professor of physics; Lewis H. Biben, assistant clinical professor of medicine; John G. Boswell, professor of education; Boyd L. Burris, clinical professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences; Jerome W. Canter, clinical professor of surgery; Francis Chucker, assistant clinical professor of medicine; William H. Harvey, assistant clinical professor of medicine; Robert B. Heller, professor of engineering and applied science; Wellington Hung, professor of child health and development; Mary-Louise Levy Kennedy, associate professor of anesthesiology; Robert W. Kenny, professor of history; William Kurstin, assistant clinical professor of medicine; Edward I. Kushner, clinical professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences; Yuri Olkhovsky, associate professor of Russian; Martha N. Rashid, professor of education; Philip L. Repetto Jr. associate clinical professor of dermatology; Lewis A. Schiller, professor of law; Paul Schlein, associate clinical professor of medicine; George Stambuk, professor of international affairs; Klaus Thoenelt, professor of German; Blair M. Webb, clinical professor of surgery (otolaryngology) and of child health development; and Robert S. Wilkinson, associate clinical professor of medicine.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, delivered a paper, "The Yellow Mountain Poems of Ch'ien Ch'ien-i (1582-1664)-:Poetry as yu-chi [travel essay]," at the annual meeting of the Association for Asian Studies, April 11, in Boston.

BRIEFLY...

Friends of the Libraries Annual Meeting and Dinner -- The Friends of the Libraries annual meeting will be Thursday, May 14, at 6 pm in the Gelman Library, Room 202. Student Book Collectors' Awards and the Friends of the Libraries Gift will be presented at a social hour following the meeting at 6:30 pm in Gelman, Room 207.

Dinner will follow at 7:30 pm in the GW University Club. William Claire, president of Washington Resources, Inc. and founding editor and publisher of Voyages magazine, will speak on "Neither Rome Nor Home: WashingtonCultural Life Over the Past Quarter Century." For ticket information and reservations call, Joan Hill at Ext. 46455.

Lisner at Noon -- "2nd Story," a rollicking, traditional and ragtime music duo, Meagan Lane and Geoff deMers, will preform on Wednesday, May 6, at 12:15 in Lisner Auditorium. Admission is free.

LINDA G. DePAUW, professor of American history, participated as invited faculty in a workshop entitled "Women's Studies as Therapy" presented by Naomi Dager Bloom for the American Orthopsychiatric Society on March 25, in Washington, DC.

E. DONALD DRIVER, director of International Student Services, was recently chosen Regional Chair-Elect for Region VIII (Delaware, Maryland, Virginia-DC) of the National Association for Foreign Student Affairs (NAFSA). NAFSA is a membership association of professionals in the field of international educational exchange.

JIM FOLEY, professor of engineering and applied science, gave an invited talk, "Computer Graphics at the User-Computer Interface: A Tool for Modern Times," at the 1987 Computer Science Conference, February 18, in St. Louis. This is the Association for Computer Machinery's annual meeting.

ULF GRAHN, associate professorial lecturer in music, received the Society of Swedish Composers Award for 1987. His Scherzo for Piano, Six Hands, was presented at the New Music Festival at Florida State University on April 3. The same work was presented on March 28 at the Southeastern Composers League annual meeting at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. His Sinfonie No. 2 received its American premiere on April 10 during the National Convention of the American Society of University Composers at Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois.

LANCE J. HOFFMAN, professor of engineering and applied science, received two grants from the Markle Foundation to investigate security and reliability in computerized elections. He convened 30 experts on the topic including computer specialists, election officials, vendors, and lawyers at a workshop which investigated this topic February 18-21 at Captiva Island, Florida. The final report will appear this summer.

KATHLEEN JORDAN, associate director for Residence Life, co-presented two programs at the American College Personnel Association/ National Association of Student Personnel Administration Conference March 14-18 in Chicago. The programs were entitled: "Adult Children of Alcoholics: Search for Independence" and "Supervision: The Process and the Art in an Age of Technology." Dr. Roberta Marowitz, University of Central Florida, and Mer Zovko, Boston University, were co-presentors on these themes.

CLARA M. LOVETT, professor of history, and HERBERT WEINGARTNER, professor of psychology, participated in a session on "How New Research in the Social Sciences Affects Undergraduate Teaching" at the Association of American Colleges meeting in Washington, January 16.

PUBLICATIONS

DAVID S. BROWN, professor emeritus of management, a book, Management's Hidden Enemy--and What Can be Done about It, (Mt. Airy Md.: Lomond Publishing Co., 1987). The "hidden enemy" is dysfunctionalism, the unintended, unexpected and unwanted side effects of things managers and leaders say and do. Also two articles: "The New Managers and Their Responsibilities," in the Spring, 1987 issue of The Bureaucrat; and "Figuring Everyone into Budget Planning," in the March, 1987 issue of Pit and Quarry.

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, "The Anatomy of Anti-Americanism," in Anti-Americanism in Europe, ed. Rob Kroes & Maarten van Rossem (Free University Press, Amsterdam, 1986), pp. 20-36.

JAMES WILLIS ROBB, professor of Romance Languages, two articles: "La cena de Alfonso Reyes, cuento onirico," in M.H. Forster/J. Ortega, (eds.) De la Cronica a la Nueva Narrativa Mexicana, Mexico: Oasis, 1986, pp. 115--125; and "Alfonso Reyes y Eugenio Florit: de poeta a poeta," Revista Ibero-americana, LII:137 (Oct.-Dec. 1986), pp. 1015-1041.

May 18, 1987 (474)

GW Report

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

QUOTABLE FROM THE MAY 10 COMMENCEMENTS

(Editor's Note: The six speakers at the May 10 commencement ceremonies gave the graduates the benefit of their experiences and observations of life. Brief reports follow.)

Robert William Packwood, United States Senator (R-Oregon) focused on civil liberties and traced their evolution through a comparison of the Magna Carta, the Bill of Rights and the U.S. Constitution. "As we celebrate our 200th anniversary of the Constitution," he said, "I hope that you will remember that we are celebrating not just 200 years of American liberty. We celebrate this year really 700 years of Anglo-Saxon history during which men and women have been tortured and imprisoned, have fought and died so that we today can say what we want, do what we want and be what we want. In short, they have given us the blessing of political liberty. It is the greatest blessing anyone could ever give us. All I ask is that you cherish it, preserve it, protect it and pass it on to our children a bit more secure than when we received it."

Rozanne LeJeanne Ridgway, Assistant Secretary of State for European and Canadian Affairs and former U.S. ambassador to Finland and East Germany, at the ceremony of the School of Public and International Affairs, acknowledged that the world today's graduates face is different from the one she faced 30 years ago, but advanced the idea that the differences do not make a difference. Among the things that remain unchanged is the East-West relationship, she said. "We cannot begin to understand the Soviet Union if we treat it as a mirror of ourselves. The understanding we seek requires a realistic appraisal of the Soviet Union. . . . And finally what has not changed is what it takes to get things done, to build, to move forward -- in a personal life, along the path of a profession, in the affairs of our country at home and abroad. One holds to principle, to principles that are applied with loyalty, commitment, hard work and courage. The really basic choice, unchanged over time, is faced -- the choice between right and wrong. Finally, in the field you have chosen," she said, "the quality that distinguishes those who make a difference from those who do not also is unchanged. It is integrity. It is made up of personal standards and intellectual honesty bounded by effort."

SENATOR ROBERT W. PACKWOOD was assisted with his hood by SGBA Dean Norma Maine Loeser after receiving the honorary degree of Doctor of Public Service on May 10.

Charles Bass Reed, Chancellor of the State University System of Florida, former chief of staff to the Executive Office of the Governor of Florida, and a GW alumnus, speaking at the School of Education and Human Development, discussed the importance of inspiration, gratitude, achievement and wise use of time. He praised President Lloyd H. Elliott and said that he had drawn inspiration from Dr. Elliott's example of leadership. "Remember how you got here," he told graduates. "You stood on the shoulders of giants -- your parents and other family members who provided critical support. . . . Remember friends and fellow students; these are associations which may last a lifetime." Reed reminded graduates that the teacher holds one of society's most important positions. "Use the freedom created by the United States Constitution to give

(continued on page 2)

NROTC UNIT AT GW HOLDS FIRST COMMISSIONING

"Leadership is simply the art and technique of influencing an individual or groups of individuals to work together with enthusiasm, dedication and skill toward the achievement of a common goal," Vice Admiral Samuel L. Gravely Jr., USN (Ret.) told the graduating class of 1987 at the May 9 commissioning ceremony of the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps Unit (NROTC) at The George Washington University. It was the first commissioning ceremony of the unit, established at the University in 1984.

Admiral Gravely continued, "Success is the result of hard work and hard work requires discipline." He enumerated qualities he considers the key characteristics of leadership. First, he named knowledge, "an understanding of what is going on" in the local, national and international scene. "Only hard work and an active quest for knowledge throughout a lifetime will maintain a sharp, active and informed mind," he said. The second characteristic of leadership is self confidence, the admiral stated. "If you are in doubt as to your ability or confidence, this is quickly detected by those around you," he advised. He called enthusiasm the third ingredient and integrity the fourth. "To be a good leader, you must adhere without compromise to a code of moral values," he stated. Fifth, he said, is the ability to communicate both orally and with the written word. Finally, he listed persistence and determination, adding, "No matter what the odds, never give up."

In exercising leadership, he said the leader must treat every one as an individual, impress every person with the importance of his or her work, and every one must be given a goal. "If you leaders of the future will observe these three points, I am confident that you will be successful in any endeavor," he concluded.

CUSTOM -- newly commissioned Ensign Scott Baere, USN, right, presented a silver dollar to Master Sergeant Charles E. Bethley, USMC, the first enlisted person to salute him following his commissioning May 9. The presentation is a service tradition.

President Lloyd H. Elliott, in brief remarks, thanked Captain Gordon E. Fisher, USN, and the members of the NROTC staff for developing so successfully the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps at George Washington. He said the fact that the University is able to accommodate midshipmen from campuses of other institutions in the Washington area is further enhancement of the program. Dr. Elliott said that Captain Fisher and his associates "have built the soundest possible foundation for the years ahead." Captain Fisher, who has been the chairman/commanding officer of the unit since its establishment at the University, has been reassigned to Atlanta, Georgia, where he will be in charge of the NROTC unit at Morehouse College.

(continued on page 2)

VICE PRESIDENT KAUFMAN TO LEAVE GW
BOWLES TO BE ACTING DEAN OF GWUMC

Ronald P. Kaufman, M.D., vice president for medical affairs and executive dean of The George Washington University Medical Center, is leaving after 17 years of service, effective September 1. Dr. Kaufman has been appointed vice president for health sciences at the University of South Florida.

L. Thompson Bowles, M.D., Ph.D., professor of surgery and dean for academic affairs at the Medical Center, has been named acting vice president and acting executive dean, effective July 1. From July 1 to September 1, Dr. Kaufman will serve at GW as a special assistant to President Lloyd H. Elliott.

President Elliott said, "I am sorry to see Dr. Kaufman leave. During his 17 years of dedicated service to the University he has contributed significantly to the success and development of the Medical Center, as well as to the training of physicians."

Dr. Kaufman, who is also the current Walter A. Bloedorn Professor of Administrative Medicine, and professor of medicine, said he will always value the many years he has spent with the University. "The GWU Medical Center is an important center of learning, training, research and caring with which I have always been proud to be associated. But, most of all, the Medical Center is people -- and it is the collegial and close friendships I've been afforded over the years at GWU that I will miss the most," he commented.

Vice President Kaufman came to George Washington in 1970 as medical director of the University Hospital. He was also dean for clinical affairs for several years before assuming his present post in 1976. Dr. Kaufman has held positions in distinguished professional organizations. He is currently the chairman of the board of directors of the Association of Academic Health Care Centers, and has been president of the American College of Physician Executives.

A graduate of Trinity College, Hartford, Connecticut, he received his M.D. de-

(continued on page 3)

CAMPAIGN FOR GEORGE WASHINGTON BOOKLET AND SLIDE SHOW WIN NATIONAL RECOGNITION

A booklet and slide show produced for the Campaign for George Washington have received honors from the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) in its 1986 Recognition program.

Produced by the University's Development Office with assistance from the Office of News and Public Affairs, the campaign booklet won a gold medal, while the slide show, "The Time Has Come," received a silver medal in the national competition.

The winning booklet, "Campaign for George Washington," is a 28-page, four-color publication which sets forth the rationale, purposes and goals of the University's current $75-million fund-raising campaign. The publication won in the highly competitive Visual Design in Print category, which had a total of 645 entries.

The slide-show, "The Time Has Come," was first shown May 15, 1986, at the kickoff dinner for the Campaign for George Washington. One gold, two silver and three bronze awards were made in the slide-show section of the competition. "The Time Has Come" has since been shown to groups of alumni and friends of the University across the country.

CASE, the primary arbiter of excellence in fund-raising and publications programs for higher education institutions, sponsors the Recognition awards program annually.

MAY 10 COMMENCEMENTS

(continued from front)

freedom to others--the freedom that flows from knowledge." He compared life to investing in a bank -- "Remember to be a giver; it is the givers who make the world a better place . . . be generous with your time in good causes. . . . Be careful with your time in all things. It is not merely your most precious possession, it is all you have."

Jacob Arthur Stein, partner in the D.C. law firm of Stein, Mitchell and Mezines and past president of the D.C. Bar Association, talked to graduates of Columbian College of Arts and Sciences about the "magic moments" that come in life and wished for all their fair share. "Each of us must walk through the fire alone," he told them. "Never has anyone attained inner harmony by pondering the experience of others. Not since the world began." Through life, Stein stated, he has gained the most enjoyment from stories where the characters experience an emotion that is a combination of joy and sadness. "The joy comes from seeing people experience happiness born of love, sensitivity, kindness and joyful work. The sadness comes from the knowledge that such things are all too rare in the world of reality. Such moments as these open up a view of the world that brings us close together in a kind of aristocracy, not of power, rank or influence, but an aristocracy of the sensitive, the considerate and the plucky. Our pluck is not swankiness but the power to endure."

Richard Herman Petersen, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Agency Langley Research Center, speaking to School of Engineering and Applied Science graduates, looked back on his own graduation 30 years ago and then looked ahead 30 years to the year 2017. He told his listeners, "Your world will be full of so many robots and computers that you will hardly notice their presence. They will cook for you, clean house, drive your car, and manage all your information and communication." He suggested four goals for the graduates to strive for -- honesty, diligence, caring and enjoyment. "You will be the designers of, or manage the design of machines, devices and systems of tomorrow which will help to enrich mankind," he said. "Because engineers are so often constrained by regulations or time or resources, you will be forced to compromise to arrive at solutions. Do not sacrifice quality, reliability or human safety for the sake of expediency or profit. Quality and technical competence will win out in the end." He reminded the new engineers that about one third of their lives will be spent pursuing their careers and recommended they learn to enjoy that time.

Natalie Zemon Davis, president-elect of the American Historical Association and Henry Charles Lea Professor of History at Princeton University, spoke to degree recipients of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences of the correspondence between George Washington and a celebrated English historian, Catharine Sawbridge Macaulay. The correspondence touched on education, revolution, constitution and hope. Professor Davis said the letters were "full of hope--for betterment and human happiness." She noted that Macaulay proposed an idea revolutionary for its time--that education be the same for both sexes, that young men and women be educated together so they could learn to live in friendship. The historian charged the graduates, "Take seriously this principle of friendship and seek to realize it in your professions and your lives. My second charge," she said, "is that you take seriously these 18th century founding ideals ...in both their political and symbolic sense... exploring in your personal and professional lives the possibilities for renewal. My third charge . . . is that you keep their debate alive in your own minds and in contemporary political discourse, maintaining the tension between the central and the local in all our kinds of government, insisting on--or even creating--the conditions for free and equal representation."

GW U.S. SAVINGS BOND DRIVE BEGINS TODAY

Today, Monday, May 18, is the official opening day for registration for the purchase of U.S. savings bonds. This opportunity comes to the University community through the Office of Personnel Services. The program will continue through Friday, June 19.

Among the advantages that come with the savings bond program are the above average current interest rate of 6.06 percent; excellent tax advantages -- deferred federal tax and exemption from state and local taxes; and easy method of purchase through payroll deductions. These bonds are said to be the only market based instrument with a guaranteed rate of 6 percent; they are safe and indestructible; and there are no commissions or maintenance charges.

Another advantage that could be especially attractive to parents is the provision for accumulating U.S. savings bonds in a child's name, which under certain conditions render them totally tax free when they are cashed in for college use. It is also possible to use bonds to supplement retirement income with certain tax advantages.

Those who wish to arrange for purchase of U.S. savings bonds through payroll deductions may go to the Medical Center or the Marvin Center between 11:30 am and 1:30 pm tomorrow, Tuesday, May 19. The Medical Center registration will be in the hallway near the cafeteria. The Marvin Center registration will be in the hallway near the elevators on the first floor. The same service will be provided at the same hours and locations on Monday, June 8.

Every GW employee will receive savings bond information and a payroll deduction sign-up card in the University mail.

For more information, call Personnel Services, Office of Records and Benefits, 994-4480.

DR. RALPH DE PALMA, Lewis Salz Professor of Surgery, May's First Wednesday Lecturer, gave his listeners new information on vascular health.

CAREER SERVICES RECEIVES GIFT OF SPORTS DIRECTORY

The Department of Human Kinetics and Leisure Studies (HKLS) has donated the Sports Market Place '87 directory to the Career Services Center's Career Resource Library.

Jeanne E. Snodgrass, chair, (HKLS), made the presentation to Kathy L. Sims, director, Career Services Center, of the 500-page publication which highlights important career information about the sports industry. The publication includes listings and material about professional and amateur sports organizations, sports media, sports promotion and marketing firms and sports equipment, apparel, footwear and facility design suppliers.

Following requests for more resources about careers in sports, as well as the extensive student and alumni participation in the Career Week '87 program "Non-Athletic Careers in Sports," HKLS and the Career Services Center agreed that the valuable publication was an appropriate purchase for the Center's Career Resource Library.

This donation is part of an ongoing, University-wide program to increase the Center's library resources to include material about new and growing career fields. Other departments interested in participating in the Career Resource Library Development Program by donating material to the library are encouraged to contact the Center at 4-8630 for more information.

NROTC

(continued from front)

Five new ensigns were commissioned at the ceremony, held on board the USS Barry at the Washington Navy Yard. There were three from George Washington and two from the University of Maryland. From George Washington were: Ensign Scott Beare, USN; Ensign David Havelka, USNR; and Ensign Paul Richman, USN. All three received Bachelor of Arts degrees from the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences at the college's May 10 commencement.

EDWIN L. STEVENS DIES

Professor Emeritus of Speech Edwin L. Stevens died Sunday, May 10, in Sibley Hospital. He was 73.

Professor Stevens came to the University on February 1, 1947, as assistant professor. Moving up through the professorial ranks, he was appointed Depew Professor of Speech November 14, 1975, and held that professorship until he received emeritus status on May 8, 1977. A member of the faculty for 30 years, he served 10 years in the Faculty Senate, five and half years of it as chairman of the Senate's Executive Committee.

Born in Delphi, New York, November 21, 1913, Stevens held degrees from Rutgers University (B.A. 1936) and Columbia University (M.A. 1942). He also taught at both institutions. During his service in the United States Army from 1943 to 1946, he was assigned to the Signal Corps and the Army Security Agency. He was co-author of Speech Is Easy, revised military edition, 1942, and You Can Talk Well, revised edition, 1960, both Rutgers University Press. He was listed in the Dictionary of American Scholars.

Stevens was a consultant at various times to the Foreign Service Institute, the Graduate School of Dentistry at Walter Reed Army Hospital, the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, and the National War College. In 1964, he received a Patriotic Civilian Service Award from the Department of the Army.

His memberships included Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, Tau Kappa Alpha, Delta Sigma Rho and the American Speech Association.

He is survived by his wife Lucille, and four grown children, a daughter, Terry Lou Hobson; three sons, Jeffrey, Edwin H. and Christopher; and a sister Mrs. Priscilla S. Hawkes. Expressions of sympathy in the form of contributions may be sent to the George Washington University Memorial Fund, 701 Gelman Library, The George Washington University, Washington, D.C. 20052.

BRIEFLY...

Parking Notice -- The last day for spring, 1987, parking at the Kennedy Center will be Friday, May 22, 1987. Temporary on campus parking is available today, May 18. Arrangements for summer parking may be made in the Parking Office.

Round Table Dinner Discussion -- Lenore Miller, curator of Art, Dimock Gallery, will speak on "Goings On in Art Around Town," Wednesday, May 20, at the GW University Club. The discussion begins at 5:30 pm. For more information and reservations call 4-6610.

Turkish/American Art Exhibit -- "Echoes of Anatolia," an exhibition of contemporary art work by Turkish/American artists, is on display at the Colonnade Gallery in the Marvin Center through June 24. The event is co-sponsored by the Governing Board of the Marvin Center and the Colonnade Gallery. The exhibition has been realized through the generosity of the contributing artists and the Turkish Embassy in Washington, DC.

"THE CAUSES OF QUARREL" CONFERENCE JUNE 4, 5, 6

A group of international experts from various fields--philosophy, political science, international affairs and policy studies--will discuss issues of world peace and war and political philosophies which tell us about the causes of international tension at a colloquium titled: "The Causes of Quarrel: Constitutional Sovereignty and International [Mis]Understanding," to be held Thursday, June 4, to Saturday, June 6, at the Marvin Center.

Speakers include: Paul Warnke, former director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency during the Carter Administration; Peter Caws, university professor of philosophy;Margaret Chatterjee, director of the Indian Institute of Advanced Study in Shimla, India; Alan Griswold, Jr., associate professor of philosophy at Howard University; and A.V.S. De Reuck, head of international relations in the Department of Linguistic and International Studies at the University of Surrey, England.

Sponsored by the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs, the Department of Philosophy, and the Division of Continuing Education, the three-day international conference will pose, in a historical context, a challenge to philosophy regarding the causes of international tension as the United States enters its third century.

Topics for the conference sessions will include "Mutually Acceptable Glory: How Nations Rate Each Other"; "War and Competition in Hobbes and the Constitution"; "Violence and Non-Violence in Individuals and Collectivities"; and "On the Causes of Quarrel: Postures of War and Possibilities of Peace."

There is a charge for the conference. Additional details and registration information are available from Lu Kleppinger at the Division of Continuing Education, 4-7020.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

ALCOHOL/DRUG COUNSELOR, part-time, Counseling Center. (Individual to conduct alcohol/drug educational and consultation/outreach programs for athletes, coaches, and campus community; provide short-term individual and group counseling, crisis intervention, and treatment referrals for students with substance abuse problems. Supervise pre-doctoral psychology interns. Qualifications: Minimum of two years experience in alcohol/drug education, assessment, and treatment with college-age population; experience in coaching/intercollegiate athletics preferred. Master's degree required; doctorate in psychology and eligibility for DC licensure preferred. Starting date July, 1 1987.) Send letter describing relevant skills, resume, three letters of recommendation, and salary expectations by June 7, 1987 to: Chair, Search Committee, Counseling Center, GW, Washington, DC, 20052.

KAUFMAN TO LEAVE GW

(continued from front)

gree from the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine in 1955. He interned and did his residency at Hartford Hospital and served as a physician in the U.S. Air Force Medical Corps.

President Elliott, in announcing Dr. Bowles' appointment as acting vice president said, "In Dr. Bowles we are fortunate to have with us a person of strength and experience to step into this important position." While serving as acting vice president, Dr. Bowles will also retain the duties of the office of the dean for academic affairs.

A 1957 graduate of the Duke University Medical School, Dr. Bowles came to the Medical Center in 1973 as associate dean for curricular and student affairs and associate professor of surgery. He was named to his present position in 1976.

Active in professional academic organizations, Dr. Bowles was elected in March to the chairmanship of the National Board of Medical Examiners, a non-profit organization that prepares and administers qualifying examinations recognized by 48 states for physician licensure. He has served as a member of the Veterans Administration special medical advisory group since 1984 and is a member of the administrative board of the council of deans of the Association of American Medical Colleges. Dr. Bowles will serve as acting vice president until a successor is chosen for Dr. Kaufman.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Biostatistics Center. (Individual experienced in computer programming for work with research scientists. Minimum requirements: three years full-time experience in use of SAS; demonstrated ability to clean, edit, and manage large data sets; high level proficiency in the use of PL-1. Skilled in the use of IBM-PC's; excellent communication skills; B.A./B.S. required, B.S. or M.S. in computer science desirable. Bethesda work site.) Send resume to Richard Raymond, GW Biostatistics Center, 6110 Executive Blvd., Rockville, MD. 20852. No phone calls please.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, full-time, ICU Research Unit. (Individual with experience conducting standardized interviews with patients/physicians; experience developing pre-test eligibility criteria and survey questionnaires; experience with acutely ill patients or hospital settings; master's degree required. Candidate chosen will work on a new, large-scale national study aimed at improving the scientific basis of prognosis and assessing the ability of this information to enhance hospital care. ICU Research Unit, 2300 K St., NW, Washington, DC, 20037; 994-0151.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

OLGA HIRSHHORN SPEAKS TO COLUMBIAN COLLEGE ALUMNI

Olga Hirshhorn

In a talk to members of the Columbian College Alumni on May 4 in the GW Club, Olga Hirshhorn gave insights into the world of art and reminiscences of her life with Joseph L. Hirshhorn, financier, philanthropist and founding benefactor of the Smithsonian's Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden.

She traced briefly his life before they met and described how they talked on the telephone for three months before seeing each other in person. They were married in 1964.

"It was a wonderful life -- to learn about art in the '60s," Mrs. Hirshhorn said. "Our friends were artists and dealers and after a while, I said that I'd like to buy a work of art myself." Her first purchase was from Josef Albers, a square within a square within a square.

The French artist Pablo Picasso lived near their house in France. "Joe had never met Picasso, but he was dying to," she related. On the occasion of a visit to the Hirshhorns by the famous photographer Edward Steichen and his wife, Steichen said he would greatly enjoy seeing Picasso, whom he had met 60 years before. An appointment was arranged for the next day at 5 pm. Subsequently the Picassos and Hirshhorns became fast friends.

Alexander Calder, who lived in Sache was another artist friend. Mrs. Hirshhorn recalled that he used to take the inside out of bread and make "neat little sculptures." Joseph Hirshhorn used to say the British sculptor Henry Moore was "the most normal artist he knew." In Paris, they would visit Man Ray, who had a studio built over open space, thought to be an alley, and reached by a ladder. Georgia O'Keefe and William de Kooning were two American artists whose friendship they particularly enjoyed.

"We survived all the hurdles," she said of the establishment and building of the Hirshhorn Museum. "I was happy that day in 1974. I'll never forget the opening, it was a wonderful feeling." She said that she and her husband did not regret giving all the art works they had been living with to the museum. "We had the disease of collecting," she said and told how they began immediately to buy again -- Mr. Hirshhorn in the area of ancient art, and she in an eclectic manner. "I buy what I like," she commented, adding that her own collection of art, now touring under the auspices of SITES (Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service) is a "mini-Joe Hirshhorn" collection.

Mrs. Hirshhorn described her husband as an omnivorous buyer. She said that when he would come back from buying a number of works, he would say, "I did a lot of damage today." When he first gave his collection for the museum, she recalled, there were 6,000 items, then another 2,000 to 3,000 were added on the occasion of exchange of letters about the museum between Hirshhorn and President Lyndon B. Johnson, and still another 6,000 at her husband's death.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

LLOYD H. ELLIOTT, president, was was one of those interviewed for an April 13 Washington Post article, "College Loans: A Private Plan." The article reports on ConSern: The Student Loan Program, recently established by the Consortium of Universities of the Washington Metropolitan area. The program is designed to help middle income famlies with college loans.

PHILLIP D. GRUB, Aryamehr Professor of Multinational Management, was interviewed by William J. Holstien and quoted in the article, "Korea's New Corporate Bosses: Made in America" which appeared in the February 23 issue of Business Week.

MARVA GUMBS, assistant director, Career Services Center, was interviewed April 22 by Patricia Sagon of the Newsfeed Network concerning trends in hiring for 1987 college graduates.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JOHN F. BANZHAF III, professor of law, held a press conference in Hong Kong, comments from which were cited in a February 7, front-page article in the South China Morning Post, entitled, "Smokers Face Life in a World of Their Own". During his around- the-world speaking tour he appeared on "Good Morning Australia" and the "Today Show" in Australia. He was also featured in The Australian as "The Man Who Lives By His Writs". He recently prepared and submitted a "friend of the court" brief to New York's highest court in a case involving the application of his previously-developed "Banzhaf Index," a mathematical technique to determine voting power. He is also one of only two guests from the Western Hemisphere invited to address the International Symposium on Smoking and Health in the People's Republic of China. This is an important meeting because it is the first in communist China which outsiders have been permitted to attend.

KENNETH R. BOWLING, associate editor of the Documentary History of the First Federal Congress, delivered a paper at the 80th annual Organization of American Historians convention in Philadelphia. He spoke on the 1789 adoption of the bill of rights by the First Congress, arguing that the members were reluctant to adopt the amendments, cut out James Madison's most radical proposals, and that they generally ridiculed the idea of a federal bill of rights. He was also cited for his providing information for a Senate floor speech by Senator Robert Byrd (W. Va.), "The First Senate's First Days," Congressional Record, April 6, 1987.

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, was a visiting scholar at Northern Kentucky University, April 1-2, and gave a public lecture there on "America's Imaginary Wars." On April 3 he contributed a paper on "The Invention of the Presidency" to the spring 1987 Folger Library seminar, Washington, DC, on the history of political thought.

FARIBORZ GHADAR, professor of business administration, was a featured speaker at the Center for Telecommunications Management (CTM) in Los Angeles in March. He spoke on the subject,"International Strategy Formulation in the Telecommunications Industry." He emphasized the need for global alliances. His address was part of CTM's Advanced Management Program in Telecommunications. In April he was a featured speaker at the Council on Foreign Affairs in New York City. His address was entitled, "Privatization in the Oil Industry: Is it Here to Stay?" In his talk, he outlined the forces that produce privatization in the oil industry in the developed and developing nations. He emphasized that the trend toward privatization should be interpreted carefully.

DONALD GROSS, professor of operations research, presented a brown-bag luncheon talk on "Potential Queueing Applications in the Criminal Justice System," to the Research Division of the Federal Judicial Center on April 30.

DONALD R. LEHMAN, professor of physics, gave an invited talk entitled "Coincidence Reactions and the Three-Body Structure of 6Li" at the spring meeting of the American Physical Society (APS) held in Crystal City, Virginia, April 20-23. The talk was part of a special symposium of the APS Topical Group on Few-Body Systems: Collision Dynamics of Few-Body Systems.

CLARA M. LOVETT, professor of history, met with officials of the New York State Department of Education April 2-3 to plan a review of baccalaureate programs in that state. On May 14 she was honored at a reception held in Washington by the Women's Foreign Policy Council.

JANET MORGAN STOEKE with her oil painting, "Winter Afternoon, 1987,"one of 56 works in the Dimock Gallery's MFA Thesis Candidate Show Spring 1987 which continues through May 28.

MARIE C. MALARO, director of the Museum Studies Program, presented a half-day program on legal and ethical issues relating to the importation of cultural objects at the American Law Institute-American Bar Association seminar on "Legal Problems of Museum Administrations," March 18-20, in Boston. She also chaired a session on the crisis in directors' and officers' liability insurance and its impact on non-profit organizations. On March 26, she presented a preliminary report at the Institution for Social and Policy Studies, Yale University, on "Restricted Gifts and Museum Responsibilities," a research paper funded by the institution.

BERNARD MERGEN, professor of American civilization, presented a paper, "Snowforts and Ice Palaces: Play in Winter," at the annual meeting of The Association for the Study of Play in Montreal, Canada, March 27. Professor Mergen has been named to the editorial board of a new journal, Play & Culture, to be published by Human Kinetics Publishers, Champaign, Illinois.

JONATHAN D. MORENO, associate professor of philosophy and health care sciences, delivered the keynote address on April 30 at the conference on "Cancer and Caregiver: Professional and Family" held at the Adelphi University School of Social Work in New York. His address was entitled "Cancer, the Professional and the New Medical Ethics."

AHMED K. NOOR, professor of engineering and applied science, organized and chaired a symposium on Future Directions of Computational Mechanics, at the ASME Winter Annual Meeting held in Anaheim, California, December 10-11. He presented a paper at the same meeting entitled, "Advances and Trends in Computational Structural Mechanics." He edited the proceedings of this meeting "Computational Mechanics -- Advances and Trends," ASME, AMD Vol. 75 1986.

RAYMOND L. PICKHOLTZ, professor of engineering and applied science, was elected vice-chairman of Commission C (Communications of the International Union of Radio Scientists) (URSI). URSI is the principal scientific organization for radio scientists with official government participation throughout the world. In the United States that participation is through the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences.

PHILLIP N. REEVES, professor of health services administration, has been awarded a faculty fellowship by the Association of University Programs in Health Administration (AUPHA). The primary purpose of the fellowship is to provide faculty members with first-hand experience in management of long term care administration. Each participant is also required to develop a case suitable for use in graduate courses in long-term care administration. These cases will be published by AUPHA. The location of Professor Reeve's fellowship work will be the Greater Southeast Community Center for the Aging in Washington, DC.

JAY R. SHOTEL, professor of special education, MARY LOUISE ORTENZO, director of the SEHD Math/Science Education Program, and Michael Freemyers, a recent SEHD graduate, participated on a panel entitled "A New Source of Science Educators and a New Approach to Teacher Training," on March 27 at the National Science Teachers Association National Convention held in Washington, DC.

NOZER D. SINGPURWALLA, professor of operations research and of statistics, has been elected a Fellow by the Council of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS). This honor is reserved for a member of the AAAS whose efforts on behalf of the advancement of science or its applications are scientifically or socially distinguished. He has received this honor "for outstanding research in the statistical theory of reliability, particularly for theory and practice of software reliability, and for the application of Bayesian statistical theory to expert systems."

JEANNE SNODGRASS, professor of human kinetics and leisure studies, presented a paper, "The Take Care of Yourself Program," before the Research Consortium Symposium "Dance Movement Activities: Implications for Use as Therapeutic Intervention" at the National Convention of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance in Las Vegas, Nevada, on April 15.

STEPHEN C. SMITH, assistant professor economics, presented a paper, "Why is There Profit Sharing? The Microeconomics of Productivity Gains and Risk Aversion," co-authored with MICHAEL D. BRADLEY, assistant professor of economics, at the Eastern Economic Association Meetings, held in Washington, DC, March 5-7. Research for the paper was conducted under a Junior Scholar research grant from Columbian College. Smith also served as a discussant for two papers during the meetings.

KLAUS THOENELT, professor of German, read a paper, "Kunst und Leben in Goethe's Werk," at the March 13 meeting of the American Goethe Society at the Embassy of the Federal Republic of Germany.

PUBLICATIONS

JAMES R. BARTH, JOSEPH J. CORDES, SHELDON E. HABER, professors of economics, an article, "Employee Characteristics and Firm Size: Are There Systematic Empirical Relationships?" in Applied Economics, April, 1987.

ALI BULENT CAMBEL, professor of engineering and applied science, six articles: "The State of U.S. Energy Engineering Graduate Education," (with M.S. Madden); "A Methodology for Comparing Energy Distribution Alternatives for the Technical Development of the People's Republic of China," (with J.J. Chino, D.Sc. 1985); "Social Need Driven Energy Mix Model for Developing Countries," (with J.L. Benefield, M.S. 1985); "Exergy Analysis of an Atmospheric Fluidized Bed Coconut Shell Fired Cogenerating Power Plant," (with J.J. Katyega, M.S. 1984); "A Synergistic Approach to Evaluate Technological Change," (with B. Fritsch); and "Scientific Promises--Economic Constraints: The Arrogance of Certainty," all in Alternative Energy Sources VII, 1987, published by Hemisphere Publishing Corporation, Washington, DC.

DAVID B. NEWMAN JR., associate professor of engineering and applied science, and RAYMOND L. PICKHOLTZ, professor of engineering and applied science, a co-authored paper entitled "Public Key Management for Network Security" in Network: The Magazine of Computer Communications, Vol. 1, No. 2, April, 1987 pp. 11-17.

AHMED K. NOOR, professor of engineering and applied science, a paper, "Survey of Computer Programs for Heat Transfer Analysis," in Finite Elements in Analysis and Design, Vol. 2, 1986, pp. 259-312.

June 1, 1987

GW Report

(475)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

SENATOR INOUYE SPEAKS AT NLC COMMENCEMENT AND RECEIVES DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

"Let me assure you we will do our best to keep this nation strong, to keep this nation together, at the same time bringing out the facts, though they may be sad and tragic," Senator Daniel K. Inouye told his listeners at the May 17 commencement of the University's National Law Center.

Senator Inouye, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Secret Military Assistance to Iran and the Nicaraguan Opposition, pointed out that when the current hearings began May 5, it was almost 14 years to the day since the Watergate hearings started. "But the Iran-Contra affair is not Watergate," he stated. "It is much more serious than Watergate . . . because of what was involved: the formulation and conduct of American foreign policy. Watergate was a third-rate botched burglary . . . a domestic political scandal. In contrast, the Iran-Contra affair is an international event that has consequences that go far beyond our shores. It involves the constitutional relationship between the executive and legislative branches in the shaping of foreign policy, the credibility of that policy, our relations with other countries, the actions of our intelligence agencies and some of America's most closely held national security secrets."

The senator also pointed out that a runaway foreign policy may lead to international mistrust, broken relations and heightened tensions. "We in Congress are compelled to insure that the investigation is conducted in an atmosphere free of partisanship and free of theatrics," he declared. He noted three examples in the last 25 years of how "foreign perception of weakness in the Oval Office contributed to crises for three presidents." They were the 1962 Cuban missile crisis for President Kennedy; the 1973 threat of unilateral Soviet intervention in the Middle East for President Nixon; and the 1979 Soviet invasion of Afghanistan for President Carter.

Senator Inouye, left, with Dean Barron

"We are obligated to investigate," he commented, "but we need not, and will not, perform this task in a way that suggests to our adversaries that we are a nation divided." The chairman described the non-partisan and unified nature of the members and staff of the current investigating committee in contrast to that of the Watergate investigation of 14 years ago. "Believe it or not, every vote the committee has taken -- 20 to date -- and most were very contentious and controversial -- has been unanimous, not one divided." He related that "seeing our approach and that of our colleagues on the House select committee, the executive agencies . . . have been most cooperative and the President has shared his personal diaries with us. This is extraordinary. The President was not compelled by law, ethics or

(continued on page 2)

GW TO "GO IT ALONE" TO MEET CAPITAL NEEDS FOR HOSPITAL

In action approved by the Board of Trustees at its May 21 meeting, the University has announced that it will "go it alone" in addressing the capital needs for continuing the modernization of the GW hospital.

The Board authorized the University to develop various methods for meeting, on its own, the approximately $65 million required for the hospital's future development. Specific plans and details on how to achieve this will evolve over the coming months.

"We have made the decision that we are not interested in pursuing any other arrangements for dealing with our hospital's future requirements," said President Lloyd H. Elliott. "In doing this, we are firmly committing ourselves to our mission -- which is to continue our efforts to further strengthen our health care facility."

In making this declaration of intent regarding the hospital, the University is embarking on the third phase of a program to plan for the future and to modernize its Medical Center components, in order to guarantee the highest quality of medical education, research, and health care delivery. The completion of Walter G. Ross Hall in 1974 addressed the teaching and research aspect, while the recently launched addition to the H.B. Burns Memorial Building (slated for completion in 1988) tackles GW's ambulatory care services. Meeting the hospital's future requirements will complete the third part of this plan.

At one time, the University had considered a possible lease arrangement with American Medical International (AMI) to finance the hospital's future capital requirements. Last October, however, these talks ended when both organizations concluded that their interests would not be served by a joint venture.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES ELECTS TWO NEW MEMBERS

The Board of Trustees elected two new members at its May 21 meeting. Both will serve as alumni trustees. They are Robert F. Guarasci and Robert A. Rosenfeld, Esq.

Guarasci received a Bachelor of Arts (Sociology) in 1986 from the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences. He was the first junior in a decade to hold the office of president of the George Washington University Student Association (GWUSA) in 1983-1984. He served a second term in 1984-1985. Previously, he had been an at-large undergraduate senator in GWUSA and a member of the GWUSA Senate Student Affairs Committee.

Active on many University committees, among them the Smith Center Advisory Committee, the University Senate Public Ceremonies Committee, and the University Budget Committee, he received a George Washington Award in 1984. Vice president of Bleacher Bums, an athletic booster organization, he was also the Calhoun Hall representative on the Joint Food Services Board. Guarasci is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and has served as an administrative assistant in the University's Housing and Residence Life System. He was instrumental in getting student callers for the "George Calling" Phonathon to raise funds for student financial aid. From 1983 to 1986, he was a member of the General Alumni Association (GAA) Governing Board.

Robert A. Rosenfeld is a 1971 graduate of the School of Public and International Affairs (Bachelor of Arts - Public Affairs). At George Washington, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa.

A Rhodes Scholar, 1971 to 1973, he received a Bachelor of Arts, with first class honors, in politics, philosophy and economics from Corpus Christi College, Oxford University, in 1973. At Harvard University, he was managing editor and treasurer of the Harvard Law Review. After receiving his Juris Doctor from Harvard University in 1976, he served two law clerkships. From July 1976 to July 1977, he was law clerk for The Honorable Marvin E. Frankel - U.S. District Court (Southern District of New York). From August 1977 to August 1978, he was law clerk for The Honorable Warren E. Burger, then Chief Justice, United States Supreme Court. Rosenfeld joined the law firm of Heller & Ehrman of San Francisco, California, in December 1978. He was named a partner in the firm in 1983. A member of the Council on Foreign Relations of New York City, he has served on the GAA Governing Board since 1986.

REPORT FROM PRESIDENTIAL SEARCH COMMITTEE

(Editor's Note: At its stated meeting on May 21, the Board of Trustees received the following report from the Presidential Search Committee.)

TO: The George Washington University Community

FROM: L. Stanley Crane
Chairman
Presidential Search Committee

SUBJECT: Progress Report on the Search

Because of the importance of the task of the Presidential Search Committee to the future of the University, I plan to provide periodic reports to the campus community and the Board of Trustees. While the Committee obviously cannot release identifying information about candidates when we begin our recruitment efforts, we do want to keep you informed about our procedures, activities and progress.

The membership of the Search Committee is now complete and is composed of the following: Trustees: L. Stanley Crane, Oliver T. Carr, Jr., Lyn Clark, Nancy Dudley, Thaddeus Lindner, Floretta McKenzie, John Sapienza, Robert Smith and Everett Bellows; Faculty: Walter Kahn, Lawrence Lessin and Peter Raven-Hansen; Alumnus: Thomas Lydon; and Student: Adam Freedman. Mrs. Cleo Graves will serve as Administrative Assistant to the Search Committee.

The Search Committee held its organizational meeting on April 23 and met for the second time on May 18. In these two meetings, the Committee completed the following agenda: received the Presearch Report from the Presidential Search Consultation Service of the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges; agreed on basic operating procedures; identified a list of institutional priorities; developed a statement of presidential qualifications; approved an advertisement; agreed on a recruitment strategy; and adopted a timetable which calls at this time for the search and selection process to be completed by late November or early December.

We are pleased to have the counsel of the Presidential Search Consultation Service. The extensive experience of the PSCS staff in many presidential searches has already been of considerable benefit to the Committee.

Because the Committee earnestly seeks the recommendations of prospective candidates for the presidency from members of the GW community, I would ask you to review the Committee's statement of qualifications and submit the names of persons who meet these criteria to a member of the Committee or to me at the following address: L. Stanley Crane, Chairman, Presidential Search Committee, The George Washington University, 2121 Eye Street, N.W., Eighth Floor, Washington, D.C. 20052.

(continued on page 2)

PRESIDENTIAL SEARCH COMMITTEE

(continued from front)

The activities of the Committee will surely be more successful if members of the faculty, the administration, staff, students and alumni give thoughtful consideration to the identification of outstanding prospects for this presidency.

The Committee seeks a president of GW who should be:

1. recognized as a leader in higher education or in an endeavor that has provided a deep and thorough understanding of a university's unique institutional needs at every level, including teaching, faculty research, and scholarship, the administration of programs and schools, and the overall management and leadership of a university;

2. an unequivocal proponent of increasing the geographical and ethnic diversity of GW's student body and the sense of community within it, as well as the representation of women and minorities in the faculty, the administration, and the student body;

3. committed to improving the contribution of a rich campus life experience to the well-rounded education of students at GW;

4. able to play a major role in the cultivation of funding sources and possess the interest and communication skills to be an effective fund raiser;

5. strongly committed to providing leadership at the presidential level in the University's comprehensive planning activities;

6. an effective administrator with the particular ability to develop a sound organizational structure, to select highly competent personnel, to provide them direction, and to delegate authority;

7. a leader in forging GW's distinctive identity both within the GW community and outside, and an articulate spokesperson for GW;

8. committed to strengthening and diversifying the Board of Trustees;

9. sensitive to the unique opportunities and responsibilities of an urban university in the nation's capital; and

10. able to communicate with and relate to all segments of the diverse and international GW community.

The position will be advertised in the June 3 issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education. In addition, the Committee will conduct an active recruitment effort by approaching prominent individuals throughout the nation as sources for the identification of candidates or as prospective candidates themselves.

I am very pleased about the spirit of cooperation and commitment of the members of the Search Committee exhibited during our first two meetings. Thus, we have made remarkable progress at this stage of the process.

If you have questions or comments about the search, please feel free to contact me.

NLC COMMENCEMENT (continued from front)

any code but because of his desire to clear the air, he has permitted us to look over them."

Senator Inouye said he expects the hearings to last no longer than three months. He recalled the words of Senator Sam Ervin of North Carolina, chairman at the Watergate hearings, that the purpose of those hearings was not prosecutorial or judicial, but rather investigative and informative. "Our purpose is the same," the senator affirmed.

Before he began his address, Senator Inouye received the Distinguished Service Award of the National Law Center, presented by Dean Jerome A. Barron. Dean Barron said in part, "Your capacity for leadership has been rivalled only by your loyalty to the institutions and values you care for. . . Twice in recent years your colleagues in the Senate of the United States have entrusted you with assignments of leadership and responsibility in matters involving the integrity of our constitutional system. By your performance in these tasks you bring honor to public service, to the legal profession, and hope to a nation which looks for honor in its public servants but does not always find it. We commend you for your courage, for your decency, and for your dedication to this law school, to the State of Hawaii, and to this Republic."

Senator Inouye said he was "deeply moved" by the award and, at the beginning of his address, wished the law graduates much success. A 1952 graduate of the then George Washington University Law School, the senator has been a member of the University's Board of Trustees since 1981.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE PRESENTS "H.M.S. PINAFORE"

The GW University Theatre will perform Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore" at the Marvin Theatre on June 4, 5, and 6, at 8 pm with a Sunday matinee on June 7, at 2 pm. The musical comedy satirizes the class distinctions of Victorian England and is the vehicle for many of Gilbert and Sullivan's most memorable compositions. Cases of mistaken identity add comedy to the plot.

The performances of "H.M.S. Pinafore" are the culmination of an intensive three week Musical Theatre Institute at GW directed by Leslie Jacobson and Brad Sabelli. Tickets for the performances are $3 for students and senior citizens and $6 for general admission. For ticket information call, 4-6178.

GUATEMALAN PRESIDENT CEREZO SPEAKS OUT ON DEMOCRACY

Speaking before a capacity audience at the Marvin Center Ballroom, President Vinicio Cerezo Arevalo of Guatemala gave an impassioned account of Guatemala's emerging democracy. Cerezo's state visit to the United States was his first since being popularly elected to the presidency in December 1985 and the first such visit of any Guatemalan head of state in over 100 years. The event was co-sponsored by GW and CASA -- the Center for the Advanced Study of the Americas.

Cerezo stressed how difficult it has been for his government to build a democracy in Guatemala which has had a long history of confrontational politicsand corresponding cycles of repression. He said he was determined that Guatemala would not see a return to the days when sectoral goals were attended to before national goals. "Traditionally politicians, landowners and trade-unionists have tried to resolve problems through polarization," Cerezo said. He feels that his duty as president is to "coordinate the various sectoral interests of society." The president, he said, "...is president of all the people; the coordinator of the national goals....'Concertation' and non-confrontation are the ways to build democracy."

President Cerezo, whose government replaced a military regime, outlined the difficulties and goals faced by Guatemala, a nation that has not experienced democracy since 1966. He recalled that when he came into office, he was faced with a "very dismantled society that didn't have the institutions that a democratic society should have."

The goals he has set for his administration are: to create an impartial justice system so that punitive measures can be applied free from political prejudice; to work for internal as well as regional peace; to raise monies through fair taxation and exportincome to pay off internal and international debts; and to achieve economic stability in Guatemala.

President Vinicio Cerezo

On the issue of Central American political instability, Cerezo suggested that the fate of the region should not be determined by outside parties referring to the United States, the Soviet Union, Cuba and South America. He proposed that a Central American parliament be formed as a discussion forum and "to say to the others the way we would like to see things done."

Cerezo expressed his desire to engage in a working relationship with the United States so long as it was one of mutual respect. His message was clear: "If the U.S. wants to do something about Central America, then please let us know so we can say something about U.S. policies."

The president spoke with great pride about the progress democracy has made in Guatemala, but he added that "democracy is a step by step process which evolves over a long period of time....Democracy will work," he went on, "with the support of the people and the confidence of the international community."

"Guatemala," he concluded, "has to show the world that a little country can do big things in Central America in favor of humanity -- we only need that confidence."

BRIEFLY...

Causes of Quarrel Conference -- Members of the GW community are invited to attend sessions of "The Causes of Quarrel" conference on June 4, 5, and 6 on a complimentary basis. The conference will focus on issues of peace and war and political philosophies which tell us about the causes of international tension. Please call 47020 for reservations.

U.S. Savings Bond Drive Continues -- Those who wish to arrange for purchase of U.S. savings bonds through payroll deductions may go to the Medical Center or the Marvin Center between 11:30 am and 1:30 pm on Monday, June 8. The Medical Center registration will be in the hallway near the cafeteria. The Marvin Center registration will be in the ground floor lobby. Every GW employee should soon receive savings bond information and a payroll deduction sign-up card in the University mail. For further information call 44470.

Plastic Surgeon to Speak -- Erle E. Peacock, Jr., M.D., 1987 visiting professor in plastic surgery, who has a special interest in the studies surrounding the Shroud of Turin, will be speaking about this at a dinner presentation entitled "Some Studies on Death and Dying," on Tuesday, June 2, at the Key Bridge Marriott Hotel. For reservations call Ms. Rodgers at 48141.

Dr. Erle who practices plastic surgery in Chapel Hill, North Carolina and is the author of Wound Repair, will give two lectures at the GW Medical Center on Wednesday, June 3, entitled "Biology and Management of Recurrent Groin Hernia" and "Management of Benign Breast Disease." For more information call, 48141.

Lisner at Noon -- Folk singer and guitarist Kevin Jones will perform Wednesday, June 3, at 12:15 pm in Lisner Auditorium. The concert is free and guests are invited to bring along their lunches.

DEAN KELLY HONORED AT SEHD ALUMNI RECEPTION

"Deans play many roles. One is surely an advocacy role for their faculty and students," said Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French at the May 15 reception sponsored by the School of Education and Human Development Alumni Association in honor of retiring Dean Eugene W. Kelly Jr.

"Dean Kelly has been a very effective advocate for his faculty and students," Dr. French continued, "effective in articulating necessarily comprehensive needs including the real spirit of old fashioned schooling and teacher education. He has shown another quality central to success in education -- character. Skills of analysis, excellence of scholarship -- all of it is hollow without character. I speak on behalf of the administration to thank you for your years of dedicated service and to say that we look forward to your return as a member of the faculty."

Dean Kelly, who has occupied his present position since 1979, announced his intention to return to full-time teaching at a meeting of the SEHD faculty on January 21. SEHD Assistant Dean Jay R. Shotel will become acting dean on July 1 and serve until a new dean has been selected.

Speaking for the school and the faculty in expressing appreciation for the dean's leadership, Assistant Dean Shotel pointed out that the last few years have been a difficult time for education. "In spite of this," he said, "at George Washington, faculty research and performance have increased substantially. There has been substantial increase in terms of accredited programs."

Harvey D. D. Snyder, SEHD Alumni Association president, who is training manager in Personnel Services, said he would like to reminisce about the last eight years and traced national and university events in a chronology, pairing them with Dean Kelly's career. "Educators are not unlike magicians," he said, "educators seem to create ideas in the minds of students. We honor your guidance and accomplishments."

Dean Kelly responded, "I do need half a minute to say thank you, Rod, Jay, Harvey, and to all the persons who have been so very supportive and so very loyal over these eight years." The dean will go on sabbatical leave on July 1 and will return to teaching in January.

Dean Kelly, left, with Harvey D.D. Snyder

FRIENDS GIFT -- Professor Philip H. Highfill Jr., immediate past president of the Friends of the Libraries, and University Librarian Sharon J. Rogers with one of the King Plats.

REUNION WEEKEND 1987

"Connecting the Past With the Present" is the theme of this year's Reunion Weekend, sponsored and planned by the Alumni Relations Office in coordination with the General Alumni Association (GAA) and the constituent alumni associations.

Reunion chair is Frances Humphrey Howard (B.A. 1937, M.A. 1941).

The events of Friday, June 5, will honor 50-year graduates and members of all previous classes.

From 10 to 11 am, the General Alumni Association will sponsor a welcoming reception in the Alumni House Lounge.

The National Law Center will honor the law class of 1937 and all previous classes at a 10 to 11:30 am reception in the Jacob Burns Law Library.

A tour of campus by bus will be provided for the Class of 1937 by the GAA between 10:30 and 11:30 am.

In the next hour, beginning at 11:30 am, 1937 graduates and those from earlier classes will be honored by the GAA at a reception in Marvin Center's Colonnade Gallery.

There will be a luncheon from 12:30 to 2 pm in the GW Club for all the honored guests. At the same time, members of the GW Law Association will lunch in the President's Room in the club.

A group photograph will be taken of members of the class of 1937 immediately following the luncheons.

The events of Saturday, June 5, will begin at noon with a luncheon for participants in the Politics and Values Program, which was established at the University in 1972 and has continued yearly since that time. The event is planned for the H Street Terrace of the Marvin Center with a rain alternative to be announced if need be.

An open house will be held in the Alumni House from 1 to 3 pm.

The Education Alumni Association will have a program titled, "Leadership in Education, GW Honors Its Own," a special reception in the President's Room of the University Club from 2 to 3 pm. The association's president, Harvey D.D. Snyder (Ed.D. 1978), will introduce honor guests.

Judith Schlagel, director of the University's National Center for Innovations in Corrections will give the day's special alumni lecture at 3:15 pm in the Marvin Theatre. Her subject will be "The Commitment of GWU to Improvements in the U.S. System of Corrections."

The President's Reception will be held on the Marvin Center Third floor Terrace from 4:30 to 5:30 pm or in the Marvin Center's Colonnade Gallery, should the weather be uncooperative.

The Alumni Service Awards Presentation Dinner will follow in the GW Club from 5:30 to 8 pm. Volunteer alumni service to the University, the General Alumni Association and the constituent alumni organizations will be recognized with awards.

The 8:15 pm performance of University Theatre's production of "H.M.S. Pinafore" by Gilbert and Sullivan will be part two of the evening's three-part program. Former students who, in summers past, have appeared in Gilbert and Sullivan classics, are expected to appear on the Marvin Theatre stage for at least one rousing chorus at the end of the musical.

An opening night reception from 10 to 11 pm in Market Square, first floor, Marvin Center, will complete the day.

For more information and reservations for the dinner and the theatre, call the Alumni Relations Office, 46435.

FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARIES HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

In a series of events on Thursday, May 14, the Friends of the Libraries presented their annual gift to the Gelman Library, elected new officers, awarded prizes to three winners in the Student Book Collectors Contest, and heard an address by William Claire, president of Washington Resources, Inc.

The gift is a folio atlas, The King Plats of the City of Washington in the District of Columbia (Washington, D.C.: U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, 1888) by Nicholas King. The folio will be added to Special Collections where it will complement other maps of the earliest period of Washington, D.C.

The atlas includes a copy of the correspondence relating to the decision to produce it and a history of the "King Plats" by United States Attorney Hugh T. Taggart. Taggart had been using the early maps in litigation to establish government title to the flats in the Potomac River. Recognizing how badly deteriorated some of them were, he had them traced by the Coast and Geodetic Survey and then photolithographed in 1888. The atlas contains what were considered the four major plans in early Washington cartography. Special Collections already owned three single plans, but the addition of the 16 plats done by Nicholas King fills a major void.

Nicholas King came from England between 1796 and 1797 to work in a surveying capacity for the District of Columbia. After resigning to devote himself to private work for a time, he became the first official surveyor of the city in 1803. The 16 sheets are thought to have been done by King and his father and brother between 1802 and 1804. They are considered to be superior to other large scale maps of the city prepared at that time and the most comprehensive portrayal of the City of Washington until the Civil War. The original manuscript served as the standard city map through the 1870s though it was never published until the edition of 1888.

New officers of the Friends are: president, Philip Levy of Bridge Street Books of Washington, D.C.; treasurer, Muriel McClanahan; and directors, Marcus F. Cunliffe, David McAleavey, William H. Taft III and Robert E. Baker.

Winners in the Student Book collectors Contest were: first, David Levey, a freshman in the School of Government and Business Administration; second, Charles Trew, a graduate student in the School of Public and International Affairs; and third, William Totten, a graduate student in SGBA

The winning entries -- in one, two, three order -- were: "National Geographic Magazine: The First Hundred Years"; "Government, Politics and Theory: Russia and the Soviet Union"; and "North African Campaign in World War II."

In introducing the dinner speaker, University Librarian Sharon J. Rogers said, in part, "We are fortunate to have an award-winning writer and editor. . . William Claire is the founding editor and publisher of Voyages: A National Literary Magazine,

(continued on back)

FACULTY HONORS AT SPRING COMMENCEMENTS

Eight members of the faculty received distinguished honors at the spring commencements.

At the School of Government and Business Administration May 10 commencement, Distinguished Service Awards were presented by Dean Norma Maine Loeser to Ben Burdetsky, associate dean of the school and professor of personnel and labor relations, and to Donna Lind Infeld, director of doctoral programs, SGBA, and associate professor of health services administration.

At the May 10 Columbian College of Arts and Sciences ceremony, four Distinguished Faculty Awards were presented by Dean Clara M. Lovett. Awards for teaching excellence went to Professor of Psychology James N. Mosel, and Professor of Religion Robert G. Jones. Awards for scholarly excellence went to Professor of Chemistry David E. Ramaker, and Professor of Statistics and Economics Joseph L. Gastwirth.

At the School of Engineering and Applied Science commencement on May 10, Captain Gordon E. Fisher, USN, professor of naval science and commander of the NROTC at GW, received the School of Engineering and Applied Science Award from Dean Harold Liebowitz.

At the May 17 commencement of the National Law Center, Professor of Law Barkley Clark was presented the center's Distinguished Faculty Service Award by Jonathan P. Welch of the class of 1987, immediate past president of the Student Bar Association.

FRIENDS

(continued from page 3)

published in Washington from 1967 to 1973. This magazine contributed to building an awareness of the literary scene in the Washington area. It is this 'scene' that Gelman Library is currently documenting through the collection activities of the new Washington Writing Archive in Special Collections. For this reason, we welcome particularly Mr. Claire's topic, "Neither Rome nor Home: Washington Cultural Life over the Past Quarter Century."

Claire shared with his listeners his insights into the lives of some Washington poets and writers and praised the University for initiating the Washington Writing Archive and for bringing together in one place many records of the City of Washington as well as for honoring young collectors. As an example of the continuing joys of collecting, he spoke of recent discoveries showing what a great patriot the author William Faulkner was, as reflected in his work in Hollywood and his unpublished script, "The de Gaulle Story."

TELEPHONE DIALING INSTRUCTIONS AVAILABLE

The Telecommunications Systems Department has prepared dialing instructions to assist members of the University community in calling back and forth between our various exchanges -- 994, 676 and 944.

The concise instructions have been printed on a card, available from the Telecommunications Customer Service Office, Room T-105, Phillips Hall, Academic Center. These cards may be picked up from the Customer Service Office or by calling Ext. 48600.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

STUART A. UMPLEBY, associate professor of management science, attended a special meeting of the American Society for Cybernetics in St. Gallen, Switzerland, March 16-20. He delivered a one-day tutorial on the "Fundamentals of Cybernetics" and gave two presentations, "Science One and Science Two: A Way to Understand Recent Developments in Cybernetics," and "Some Policy Implications of Vladimir Lefebvre's Theory of Ethical Differences between the United States and the Soviet Union."

CHARLES W. WASHINGTON, associate professor of public administration, participated in the American Society of Public Administration conference in Boston as the newly elected member of the Executive Committee of the ASPA Section on Budgeting and Financial Management.

PUBLICATIONS

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, a review of Are We To Be a Nation? The Making of the Constitution, by Richard Bernstein with Kym S. Rice, New York Times Book Review, May 3.

DENNIS GALE, associate professor of urban and regional planning, and JEFFREY HENIG, associate professor of political science, a co-authored article, "The Political Incorporation of Newcomers to Racially Changing Neighborhoods," in Urban Affairs Quarterly, Vol. 22 No.3, March 1987, pp. 399-419. The article was based on a survey that Gale and Henig conducted under the Dilthey Fellowships awarded to them by GW in 1984. The article has a Washington studies focus.

DONALD GROSS, professor of operations research; LEONIDAS C. KIOUSSIS, (D.Sc., GW, 1985); and DOUGLAS R. MILLER, professor of operations research, a paper entitled "Transient Behavior of Large Markovian Multiechelon Repairable Item Inventory Systems Using a Truncated State Space Approach," in Navy Research Logistics, Vol. 34, pp. 173-198, April 1987.

JAMES WILLIS ROBB, professor of Romance languages, a book review of S. Zaitzeff, El arte de Julio Torri, in Nueva Revista de Filologia Hispanica, Mexico, XXXIV:1 (1985-86), pp. 238-240.

CHARLES W. WASHINGTON, associate professor of public administration, an article, "Acculturation of Minorities" in the Bureaucrat.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

CATALOGER, LEGAL MATERIAL, full-time, Law Library. (Individual to catalog original and complex copy using AACR2, OCLC, and LC classification and subject headings. Participation in retrospective conversion project and preparation for on-line catalog. Requirements include M.S. in librarianship from accredited school, at least one year of cataloging experience, experience with K schedules and knowledge of legal materials.) Contact: Professor Head, GW Law Library, Washington, DC, 20052.

RADIOPHARMACEUTICAL CHEMIST, full-time, Section of Radiopharmaceutical Chemistry. (Individual should have Ph.D. in organic chemistry and experience in the synthesis of radiolabeled compounds. The successful candidate will be directly responsible for the synthesis, purification and characterization of radiopharmaceuticals. A demonstrated ability to design efficient synthetic procedures and laboratory skills to carry them out are required. Past experience must have demonstrated a creative approach in the implementation of organic chemistry principles and techniques within this field.) Send curriculum vitae with salary history and references to: Geri Rosen, grants manager, Radiology Research, GWUMC, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Room 708, Washington, DC, 20037.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, part-time (20 hours/week), Center for Family Research. (Individual to work on study comparing two types of psychosocial interventions for persons with chronic illnesses and physical disabilities and their families. Primary responsibilities include family interviewing (in the home) and data collection following established protocols, recruiting of subject families, and administrative oversight of discussion group program. Hours are flexible with evening and weekend hours to be expected. A bachelor's degree in a mental health related field is required. Clinical interviewing and research skills will be given particular consideration.) Send resume to: Sandra Gonzalez, Ross Hall, Room 613, 4-2624.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE/RESEARCH SCIENTIST, full- time, Biostatistics Center. (Individual experienced in computer programming for work with research scientists. Minimum requirements: three years full-time experience in use of SAS; demonstrated ability to clean, edit, and manage large data sets; high level proficiency in the use of PL-1. Skilled in the use of IBM-PC's; excellent communication skills; M.A./M.S. required, preferably in computer science. Bethesda work site.) Send resume to Richard Raymond, GW Biostatistics Center, 6110 Executive Blvd., Rockville, MD. 20852. No phone calls please.

The Department of Pathology is currently offering the following employment opportunities: RESEARCH ASSISTANT/ ASSOCIATE, full- time, (Individual familiar with a variety of molecular biological techniques: RNA/DNA extractions and purifications, northern/southern blots, nick-translations, hybridizations with radioactive cDNA probes, cloning/sequencing procedures, maintenance of bacterial and phage stocks. B.S. degree required. Position is designed to involve supervisory responsibilities for 2-3 other members of the research group.) One RESEARCH ASSISTANT (with B.S. degree) and one RESEARCH ASSOCIATE (with M.S. degree). (Individuals familiar with standard molecular biological techniques: nucleic acid extractions/purifications, protein/nucleic acid gel electrophoresis, northern/southern/western blot procedures, hybridizations with radiolabeled probes, and cloning/sequencing techniques -- preferably). The successful applicants will become members of a 5-6 person research group.) Contact: Gary Clawson, Department of Pathology, 510-511 Ross Hall, 4-4703.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, part-time (20 hours/week), School of Engineering and Applied Science. (Individual to perform research at the doctoral level in the area of magnetic recording. The applicant must be able to read and understand advanced research papers, be able to construct complex computer programs and do original theoretical research in this area. It is expected that the candidate will use this research as the basis for a D.Sc. dissertation. Candidate must have completed his/her master's degree in electrical engineering or computer science and have passed the D.Sc. qualifying examination at GW.) Contact Professor E. Della Torre, 4-5919.

RESEARCH ENGINEER, part-time, Department of Civil, Mechanical and Environmental Engineering. (Individual to conduct research in the areas of stochastic dynamics, active control; responsibilities include sponsored research in earthquake mitigation and the development of an externally funded research program; doctoral degree in civil engineering or engineering mechanics required.) Send a detailed resume to: Professor J.N. Yang, Department of Civil, Mechanical and Environmental Engineering, GW, Washington, DC, 20052.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

June 15, 1987

GW Report

(476)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

FORMER U.S. ARMS NEGOTIATOR WARNKE SPEAKS AT CONFERENCE

In a wide-ranging discussion of the "love/hate relationship that American policy makers have" with regard to atomic weapons, former United States arms negotiator Paul Warnke shared his views with participants in the "Causes of Quarrel" conference June 5 in the GW Club. Warnke, former director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency under President Carter, was head of the American delegation to the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) in 1977 and 1978.

Ambassador Paul Warnke, left with University Professor of Philosophy Peter Caws, "Causes of Quarrel" conference chairman.

Ambassador Warnke noted that in the wake of the Iceland Summit, where President Reagan and General Secretary Gorbachev had agreed on a framework of 50 percent cuts in nuclear weapons within five years, this period may now be extended to seven years by the United States. He decried the concept that there has to be an American continuation of nuclear testing.

"Now we have a situation in which the Soviets have accepted our proposals from 1979 that they will eliminate all intermediate range nuclear forces from Europe. . . . All of a sudden, we've grown to love the bomb. . . . All of a sudden we can't take yes for an answer," he said.

Warnke characterized as "ludicrous" the disinclination of the United States to sign the Treaty of Rarotonga intended to make the South Pacific a nuclear-free zone. One of the arguments against signing, he stated, was that the French would be displeased. "I'd think we'd be more concerned about alienating friendly nations in an area which has been typically western-oriented . . . . It makes absolutely no sense whatsoever," he declared.

"I can't see really that we are advancing our own national interests by retaining this addiction to nuclear weapons," he continued. "I think we would demonstrate that we are really serious about non-proliferation if we got away from the fact that nuclear weapons are somehow the backbone of American security.

"I say the fundamental problem is that we never really made up our minds what nuclear weapons are good for. You can read posture statements of the Secretary of Defense. What they say is that the minimum purpose of nuclear weapons includes the ability to fight and win a nuclear war. . . . We have statements that, to me, make a great deal more sense, that you can't fight and win a nuclear war. But until we make up our minds as to what the purpose of having nuclear weapons is, there is no chance of making sense out of any of these issues -- comprehensive test ban, arms control over nuclear missiles in Europe or nuclear-free zones. We have to decide what it is that nuclear weapons have any value to do."

Ambassador Warnke referred to President Reagan's 1984 State of the Union address, when the president said, "The only purpose of each side having nuclear weapons is to see to it that they are never used." Warnke commented, "Now what that does is to set aside all of this nonsense about extended deterrents . . . about converting a conventional war into a nuclear exchange. But the question is: Do we believe it? Does he believe it? If, in fact, this would be accepted as our national policy, we'd be eager to eliminate the dangerous and vulnerable nuclear missiles in Europe. We would speedily complete a treaty banning all explosions of all nuclear devices for all time. We would negotiate substantial reductions in existing strategic nuclear weapons, particularly those best adapted for a first strike. We might not stop worrying entirely but we'd stop loving the bomb."

GW STUDENT SELECTED AS 1987 TRUMAN SCHOLAR

Michael J. Troy, a Columbian College junior from Wilmington, Delaware, has been named a 1987 Truman Scholar by the Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation, the congressionally authorized federal memorial to the 33rd U.S. President.

Troy, who is majoring in political science, religion and history, was one of some 200 scholars and alternates honored at a May 10 ceremony here in Washington. There are 105 Truman Scholars for 1987. Troy is one of the three in the District of Columbia. The other two are at Mount Vernon College and Georgetown University.

The Truman Scholarships are awarded on a merit basis each year to college juniors who show potential for leadership, academic ability and an outstanding potential for a career in public service. The scholarship carries a maximum annual award of up to $7,000 for tuition, fees, books and room and board.

UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS HONORED AT ALUMNI DINNER

ALUMNI RECOGNITION -- L to R, President Lloyd H. Elliott, Mrs. Elliott and Director of Alumni Relations Ronald W. Howard at the Alumni Service Awards dinner. The Elliotts were the only couple among those honored.

At the June 5 Alumni Awards Dinner in the GW Club, 18 individuals who have contributed to the success of programs sponsored by the General Alumni Association and the Alumni Relations Office, were given special recognition.

Those honored were: Diane Apostolos-Cappadona, lecturer in religion and art; L. Thompson Bowles, professor of surgery and dean of the Medical Center for academic affairs; Edward A. Caress, professor of chemistry and NCAA faculty representative; Anthony G. Coates, professor of geology and assistant vice president for academic affairs; Joseph J. Cordes, professor of economics and associate dean of Columbian College; Ralph G. DePalma, chairman, Department of Surgery; Margaret Garritsen de Vries, historian of the International Monetary Fund; Lloyd H. and Betty Elliott, president and "First Lady"; Steven L. Frick, student, senior in pre-medicine, first team academic All-American in basketball; Sheila Hoben, academic coordinator, Men's and Women's Athletics; James O. Horton, associate professor of American history and civilization; Marilyn L. Liebrenz-Himes, associate professor of business administration; Marianne R. Phelps, professor of education, associate provost; Judith Schloegel, director, GW National Center for Innovation in Corrections; Lois G. Schwoerer, professor of history; Patricia A. Sullivan, lecturer in human kinetics and leisure studies and head coach, Varsity Women's Basketball; and M. Elizabeth Tidball, professor of physiology.

GW WINS GENERAL MOTORS MARKETING COMPETITION

The University's Advanced Advertising Campaign class, an undergraduate class in SGBA, won the 1987 General Motors Intercollegiate Marketing Competition. One of 10 schools chosen nationwide to develop an advertising campaign for GM's Pontiac Fiero, GW claimed the $15,000 first prize. The funds will be used for further development of SGBA's marketing program.

To initiate the campaign, the students teamed up as part of a fictitious advertising agency, Capitol Advertising. They were given a $6 million dollar budget and charged with creating an advertising plan designed to sell 25,000 Fieros in six months.

They based their campaign on the theme, "Hot Times, Easy Money," and created a musical jingle, television commercials and special incentives to promote the Fiero.

General Motors representatives traveled to each of the 10 competing schools to view the different advertising campaigns and announced the winner on May 8.

On May 19, members of GW's Capitol Advertising presented their winning advertising campaign to top executives at General Motors in Detroit.

Included in GW's winning team were students from California, Florida, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Wisconsin and Virginia as well as India, Venezuela, Egypt, and the Netherlands Antilles. The faculty adviser for the group was Associate Professor of Business Administration Lynda Maddox.

RON HOWARD SUPRISED ABOARD "H.M.S. PINAFORE"

Ronald W. Howard, director of alumni relations, was surprised at the end of University Theatre's June 6 performance of "H.M.S. Pinafore" with the presentation to him of a book about American musical theatre. Speaking on behalf of the Department of Communication and Theatre, Assistant Professor Leslie Jacobson thanked Howard for his 10 years of service to the theatre as a piano accompanist and active participant in productions and for bringing "joy and laughter" to GW theatre enterprises. Howard had just been one of two accompanists for the evening's production.

EDIE WILSON, left, served many ice cream lovers at the June 2 Ice Cream Bash, sponsored by the Student Activities Office.

SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING APPRENTICE PROGRAM OPENS

The opening session of the Science and Engineering Apprentice Program (SEAP) will be held Monday, June 22, at 9:30 am in Lisner Auditorium. Over 400 high school students will benefit from the eight-week program.

Keynote speakers will be Dr. Louis M. Cameron, acting director, Army Research and Technology, Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Army (Research, Development and Acquisition) and Vice Admiral Jon L. Boyes, USN (Ret.), president of the Armed Forces Communications and Electronics Association. University welcome and greetings will be extended by President Lloyd H. Elliott, SEAS Dean Harold Liebowitz and Program Director Marylin Krupshaw. Members of the University community are cordially invited to attend the opening.

WOLF TRAP DISCOUNTS

The Wolf Trap Foundation is offering GW employees discounted tickets for selected summer performances. The schedule includes dance, folk, pop and classical artists.

Tickets must be purchased at the Wolf Trap box office and are subject to availability. Employees must show a validated GW ID and may buy two discounted tickets per ID. For information on performances, transportation and prices, call Personnel Services at 47317. For ticket availability, call 255-1868.

Discounts are available for groups of 25 or more for many performances. Call 255-1851.

INVITATION TO SARP RECEPTIONS

Members of the University faculty and staff are invited to attend informal receptions for the new members of the class of 1991 and their families as part of the Summer Advance Registration Program (SARP). The receptions, called "Meet and Greet," will take place from 5 to 6 pm on Monday, June 29, Monday, July 6, Thursday, July 9, and Monday, July 13. The receptions will be held in the Marvin Center Third Floor Ballroom. For more information, call 46555.

BRIEFLY...

Friends President -- John Ziolkowski, associate professor of classics, is the new president of the Friends of the Libraries. Philip Levy of Bridge Street Books of Washington, D.C., is president-elect, not president as previously reported.

New Hours -- The GW Club is now operating on summer hours: Monday through Friday, 11:30 am to 2:30 pm.

Telephone Reminder -- Telephone Dialing Instructions prepared by the Telecommunications Systems Department to assist members of the University community in calling back and forth between our various exchanges -- 994, 676, and 944 -- are available from the Customer Service Office or by calling 48600.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JAMES O. HORTON, associate professor of American history and civilization, delivered a paper entitled "Black Theology and Historical Necessity," co-authored with Professor Lois Horton of George Mason University, at a conference on "Transforming Faith: The Sacred and Secular in Modern American History." The conference was May 1 and 2 at the University of Maryland.

MARK E. KEANE, distinguished visiting professor of public administration and association management, presided at the opening plenary session of the ASPA conference, and, as Chair of the Board of the National Academy of Public Administration, presented the National Public Service Award. In addition, he presided, with former Comptroller General of the US Elmer Staats, at the membership luncheon at the ASPA conference.

TURKER OZDOGAN, associate professor of ceramics, served as the principal lecturer and demonstrator at the Tile and Extrusion Workshop at GW on April 3 and 4. He spoke on "Architectural Wall Panel Construction Techniques," demonstrated alteration of extruded clay panels and presented a lecture and slide show on "Architectural Ceramics in Past and Present Turkish Art." The workshop was co-sponsored by the Department of Art Ceramics Program and Bluebird Manufactruing Company Cutter Ceramics. Participants from nine states attended.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH/PROGRAM ASSISTANT, part-time (24 hours/week), Rehabilitation Counseling and Services. (Individual to assist professor and director in program development, research and teaching. Seeking graduate student in rehabilitation counseling or closely related field. A master's degree in rehabilitation counseling is preferred. Good research, marketing and organizational skills are needed. Word processing ability is desired. Knowledge of rehabilitation fields is essential. Salary is dependent upon qualifications; full benefits.) Send Resume to: Dr. Donald C. Linkowski, professor and director, Rehabilitation Counseling and Services, 603 Rome Hall, Washington, DC 20052.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Department of Biochemistry. (Individual to work on Thymus-AIDS connection project. Applicants must be proficient in ELISA and immuno absorbance assaying techniques with special emphasis on AIDS related research. Experience with laboratory animals and tissue culture is also desired. Applicants must have a B.S. degree and graduate experience in biochemistry and/or immunology.) Send resume to: Paul Naylor, Ph.D., Department of Biochemistry, GWUMC, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Washington, DC 20037.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Departments of Medicine/Physiology. (Individual with at least a B.Sc. degree in biomedical engineering or biomedical sciences and 1-2 years experience in laboratory research. The position involves experimental surgery, microvascular physiology, cell biology, the use of isotopes, instrumentation and computer applications for data analysis. Experience with laboratory animal procedures and biophysical and biochemical techniques would be useful.) Send C.V. and three references to: Dr. J. Kurantsin-Mills, GWUMC, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Ross Hall 456, Washington, DC 20037. 994-2745.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, full-time, Radiologic Sciences and Technology. (Individual with a basic background in physics and engineering and post-graduate training to at least a master's level. Interest and expertise in image processing and pattern recognition techniques are sought in the applicant. Background and knowledge in medical imaging and medical sciences will be helpful. The successful applicant will be expected to work 75 percent on the project and interact with radiologist(s) and medical imaging physicist(s). The project will be related to the general topic of research and utilization of Digital Image Networks and Picture Archiving and communication systems at GW and cooperating institutions and government agencies.) Send resume to: Geri Rosen, grants manager, Radiologic Sciences and Technology, GWUMC, 2300 Eye Street, NW Washington, DC, 20037.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, full-time, Department of Emergency Medicine. (Registered Nurse to coordinate the clinical research activities of the Department of Emergency Medicine at GWUMC. Responsible for recruiting, screening and enrolling patients in clinical research. RN with master's or equivalent experience. Previous emergency and research experience preferred. Current DC license.) Contact James Scott, 994-3878.

ASSISTANT RESEARCH PROFESSOR/RESEARCH SCIENTIST, full-time, Department of Biochemistry. (Individual with Ph.D. in organic chemistry with excellent skills in organic synthesis to work with a group of virologists and enzymologists to develop antiviral drugs based upon new therapeutic principals. Position offers good opportunities for promotion and independent research.) Contact: Dr. Martyn Bailey, Department of Biochemistry, Washington, DC 20037. 994-3518.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

June 29, 1987

GW Report

(477)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING APPRENTICE PROGRAM BEGINS

"Research is always exciting because it's always changing," Dr. Louis Cameron, director, Army Research and Technology, Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Army (Research, Acquisition and Development) told more than 400 participants in the University's Science and Engineering Apprentice Program (SEAP) at its June 22 opening session.

"I'm always interested in the future of young scientists," he said. "Every country in the world is trying to grab our technology so the Department of Defense sponsors these types of programs to get you interested. . . The DOD's goal is peace. There is nothing more thrilling in the world than to have a soldier tell you that you saved his life," he declared. Noting that what research engineers do is very widespread, he pointed out benefits to society as a whole that have come from government-sponsored research such as capability in night vision, medical advances in immunization, freeze-dried food, and greater aviation safety through radar. "If you have a capability and awareness, you can have outstanding careers," Dr. Cameron assured the participants.

Vice Admiral Jon L. Boyes, USN (Ret.), who spoke next, told the young people, "Some of the greatest fun I've ever had in my life has been in a lab, not silly fun but the joy of discovery." He praised Marylin Krupshaw, director of the program, saying, "She had a perception of tomorrow, of the need for this kind of program." Admiral Boyes continued, "That's what it's all about . . . to use your mind, your drive, your perception. You are the future of the free world. If you are not prepared, the future isn't going to be very bright."

Both Dr. Cameron and Admiral Boyes, who is now president of the Armed Forces Communications and Electronics Association, spoke of the opportunities they have had in their careers for professional development, travel and advanced study.

SEAS Dean Harold Liebowitz expressed the welcome of the University to the participants and their families. SEAS administers the DOD-sponsored program, which places academically talented high school students as summer apprentices in DOD laboratories for eight weeks of work. The paid apprenticeships provide "hands-on" research experience for students interested in science, engineering and mathematics. Students are also given the opportunity to apply for one of two selected freshman engineering summer courses offered by SEAS. The program will continue through August 14.

SEAP PARTICIPANTS -- L to R, Jill Merchant of Woodward H.S., Rockville, Md.; Brent Taylor, West Potomac H.S., Fairfax Co.; Melanie Moses, Annapolis Senior H.S.; and Nicole Mull of Broadmark Senior H.S. in Annapolis.

OFFICE FOR CIVIL RIGHTS EXPERT ON CAMPUS TODAY AND TOMORROW

A representative of the Office for Civil Rights (OCR) of the Department of Education is making a visit to the University today, Monday, June 29, and tomorrow, Tuesday June 30.

The purpose of the visit is to conduct a review of the University's policies and practices in regard to undergraduate recruitment and admissions. OCR conducts these visits periodically to assure non-discrimination in various facets of the programs of colleges and universities.

Mr. Steve Pearlman from OCR will be on campus both today and tomorrow. Anyone wishing to speak with him between the hours of 9 am and 5 pm may do so by visiting him in Room 305 of Rice Hall or by telephoning him at 994-3979.

CAMPAIGN FOR GEORGE WASHINGTON REACHES MIDWAY POINT EARLY

L to R, Vice President for Development Michael J. Worth, Campaign Chairman Oliver T. Carr Jr., Professor Susan J. Tolchin, and President Lloyd H. Elliott.

The Campaign for George Washington has reached the monetary halfway mark at the end of two years in its five-year time frame. Half the funds have been raised in 40 percent of the time.

At a June 18 announcement reception in the Willard Inter-Continental Hotel, Campaign Chairman Oliver T. Carr Jr. said that as of that day, the campaign had received $37,670,000 in gifts and pledges, including seven gifts of $1 million dollars or more. Some $4.8 million was raised during the University's 1986-87 annual fund drive, which is part of the overall campaign. This includes a record $1.6 million from alumni contributors.

"Our success so far is a credit to the efforts of President Elliott and Chairman Carr, as well as to the more than 600 volunteers who have worked on this campaign," commented Vice President for Development Michael J. Worth.

"I feel that the second half of the campaign will be equally successful," declared Chairman Carr, adding, "My personal goal for the campaign would be for us to raise the rest of the funds in 30 percent of the time." He paid tribute to the outgoing annual fund chairman, Trustee Robert G. Perry, calling him "eloquent, effective and hardworking."

Trustee Perry said, "I think it's quite important to see what's happened. The members of the university family truly believe in academic excellence. You can see it."

Susan J. Tolchin, professor of public administration, and chairman of the Campus Committee, said in brief remarks, "On behalf of the faculty, I'd like to thank all of you for making the thrust of the campaign academic excellence. This has really energized the faculty. The campaign amount we have raised from the faculty has a special meaning. I can see the faculty getting more and more involved."

In introducing President Elliott, Trustee Carr spoke of his "infectious enthusiasm."

President Elliott said that "We did indeed make a 10-strike" in getting Trustee Carr to serve as campaign chairman. "I don't believe there is an institution in America that can look at itself with the same pride we can -- that would match this university that we hold in common," the president stated. Pledging his best effort in the next year, he smilingly concluded, "Tomorrow we'll be calling everybody here."

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS SPONSORS BASKETBALL CAMP

The Women's Athletic Department is sponsoring a summer basketball camp directed by Head Women's Basketball Coach Linda Makowski July 13-17, Monday through Friday, at the Smith Center.

The five day camp, which emphasizes fundamental basketball skills and includes lectures, demonstrations and one-to-one instruction, is open to junior and senior high school girls. Instruction will last from 9 am to 4 pm daily. Camp registration closes Tuesday, June 30. For more information call Ext. 4-6751.

BORIS BELL HONORED

PRESENTATION -- Olympia Salas of Venezuela, left, presenting ceremonial mask to the Marvin Center, in honor of Boris Bell, right, center director.

Among the gifts and honors received by retiring Marvin Center Director Boris C. Bell recently was a plaque presented by the GW Muslim Students Committee at a June 10 reception. Ghulam Nabi Fai, president of the Muslim Student Association of the United States and Canada came from Philadelphia for the occasion. Bell also received a Pakistani lamp from the Engineering Council, as well as a GW rocking chair and an original rendering of the Marvin Center, presented to him at a small dinner given by close friends.

In addition, a famous tapestry and a large ceremonial mask were presented to the Marvin Center in Bell's honor on behalf of the Venezuelan students' association, Grupo Cultural Venezuela, and the Venezuelan Government. The tapestry, depicting two intertwined birds, is a brilliantly colored, hand-dyed work by the well-known Venezuelan artist Luis Montiel. The devil's mask is a traditional head dress worn at a yearly religious festival in Venezuela. Olympia Salas, an Ed.D. candidate in the School of Education and Human Development, presented Bell with these gifts and expressed her appreciation for the assistance he has lent to student organizations occupying the Marvin Center.

In April, the University's Departments of Communication and Theatre, Music and the GW Dance Company dedicated the arts festival, The 12 Days of April, to him.

Boris Bell came to the University in 1968 as the Marvin Center's first director. He was instrumental in the establishment of the Marvin Center Program and Governing Boards as well as the establishment of the GW Information Center. In 1971 he served as the president of Association of College Unions-International. From 1972 to 1982, Bell was a member of the association's Committee on Minority Programs and in 1974 he received the Butts-Whiting Award which is the association's highest honor. The University recognized Bell's dedication to his work by honoring him with a GW Award in 1982.

Bell says his immediate preoccupation upon retiring will be to "catch up on a considerable amount of home redecorating and landscaping." His plans are also to keep active with a physical fitness program and to volunteer his time to special projects.

WEST AFRICAN DANCE CO. TO PERFORM JULY 3

Kankouran, a dance company from Senegal, West Africa, will present "A Visit to Africa" on Friday, July 3, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. Assane Konte is the troupe's choreographer and Abdou Kounta, its musical director.

The event is sponsored by the Dance Production Groups, Department of Human Kinetics and Leisure Studies. Tickets are available at Wonderful Things, 616 E Street, NW, and at the news stand on the lower level of the Marvin Center. For further information call 544-7612.

BRIEFLY...

Kings Dominion Coupons -- The Hospital Council National Capital Area is offering discount coupons for Kings Dominion amusement park in Virginia entitling the purchaser of a regular admission ticket to a $5.25 discount July 3-6 and July 11-12. Coupons are available at the news stand on the lower level of the Marvin Center.

'Meet and Greet' the Class of 1991 -- Members of the University faculty and staff are invited to attend informal receptions for the new members of the class of 1991 and their families as part of the Summer Advance Registration Program (SARP). The receptions will take place from 5 to 6 pm, today, June 29, and July 6, July 9, and July 13 in the Marvin Center Third Floor Ballroom.

Hotel Discount Rates -- The Procurement and Supply Department has received corporate discount rate schedules from three area hotels: The Westin, Marriott, and One Washington Circle. Discount rates are available at these locations to visiting parents and the University and Medical Center community on an individual or group basis. For more information call Ms. Patterson or Mr. Stafford at 4-6865.

HOSPITAL WOMEN'S BOARD GIVES MONEY AND TIME

More than $165,000 has been donated to the Medical Center this year by members of the GW Hospital Women's Board to purchase an Argus Laser; support a part-time coordinator for a pilot program in the oncology unit; and to purchase equipment for Ross Hall and additional equipment for the Himmelfarb Library's microcomputer laboratory.

Board of Trustees Chairman Everett H. Bellows attended a recent Hospital Women's Board luncheon to thank the members for their generous donation as well as for their work throughout the years.

Since the board was founded in 1898, its members have made many contributions, including money to help furnish the hospital's Meyer Pavilion, redecorate waiting rooms, and purchase needed equipment.

The board raises money in a variety of ways. "Our primary source of income is the gift shop in the hospital lobby," says Thelma Weaver, President of the Hospital Women's Board. "Profits from the gift shop are invested and the principal and income are available for equipment purchases and other uses." Volunteer board members take shopping and book carts around to patients' rooms twice a week and there are baking and book sales. Members dedicate time and energy to making patients feel at home and helping visitors who want to choose a get-well gift for a friend or relative. Every year the Hospital Women's Board donates funds it has raised to buy new medical books for the library and equipment for the Medical Center.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Center for Family Research, Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences. (Individual needed to assist with field research project involving families relocated due to a natural disaster; travel is required, sometimes on short notice; B.A. required in psychology or related social science, with strong background working with families in clinical and research interview situations and extensive knowledge of recruitment and data collection procedures. Experience with SAS computer package.) Send resume to Dr. Ellen Gerrity, Ross Hall/Room 613, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Washington, DC 20037

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Microbiology Department. (Individual with B.S. and experience in biological science to work in research laboratory. Duties will include, but not be limited to, maintenance of the laboratory supplies and equipment; maintenance of tissue culture cell lines; injection of and handling of laboratory animals and a variety of immunological assays. Position available July 1. Salary commensurate with experience.) Contact: Dr. Phyllis Kind, Microbiology Department, GWUMC, 727 Ross Hall, Washington, DC 20037, Ext. 42908.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Lipid Research Laboratory. (Individual with B.S. and laboratory experience to process and analyze blood samples for lipids and lipoproteins.) Contact: Phyllis Mitchell, Ext. 42991.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, National Health Policy Forum. (One or two individuals to participate in the development of educational seminars and workshops on a range of health policy issues for federal government health policy-makers. Duties include monitoring federal and state policy matters; helping develop sessions across the full range of health policy issues; and writing issue briefs. Excellent writing skills essential. Master's degree preferred but not required if candidate has appropriate prior work experience in the policy arena. Applicant must have some understanding of the policy process and a familiarity with current issues and trends in health care delivery. Knowledge of in the Washington policy process would be a plus.) Send resume to: Judith Miller Jones, Director, National Health Policy Forum, Suite 616, 2100 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20037. Writing samples may be included but are not required.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Science Communication Studies, Division of Continuing Education. (Individual will be responsible for maintaining and expanding bibliographic and investigator data bases; searching the scientific literature for relevant publications; overseeing, obtaining and classifying publications; carrying out research projects as required; and producing research reports and bibliographies. Bachelor's degree and some experience in bibliographic data bases required.) Send resume to: F. Ronald Dutcher, 515 22nd Street, NW, Suite 402, Washington, DC 20037.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, full-time, Lipid Research Clinic, (Individual with master's degree will be responsible for overall management of data collection system for outpatient research facility. Experience in clinical trials, data systems and computer knowledge required.) Send resume to: Lipid Research Clinic, Ross Hall, Room 202, 2300 Eye Street, NW Washington, DC 20037.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, full-time, Department of Physiology. (Individual to work in cellular physiology laboratory. Duties include performing carbon isotope tracer experiments and preparing hepatocytes. Minimum requirements: M.S. degree, advanced degree desired.) Send resume to Joanne K. Kelleher, Ph.D., Department of Physiology, GWUMC, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Washington DC 20037.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

July 13, 1987

GW Report

(478)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

GW PEOPLE RECOGNIZED JUNE 26 AT SERVICE AWARDS LUNCHEON

OUR RETIREES -- L to R, Martin M. Roudabush, Lillian Hinton, Alverta Green, Nola Webster, Mary Fenner, Alice Montague, Mary Rue and Detroy Haigler. (Not pictured - Mary McCrimmon and Isaac Hunter).

"If all those eligible to receive awards and recognition were here, including retirees, there would be 136 people with a total of 1,523 years of service," Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl declared at the Service Awards Luncheon sponsored by his office on June 26 in the Marvin Center.

"This university is fundamentally about people and each and every one of you in this room is important," said Vice President Diehl, continuing, "important as members of one large team of people who are working together to make The George Washington University a very special place and I've enjoyed working with you in my 17 years."

President Lloyd H. Elliott had wanted to be there to express his appreciation to everyone, Mr. Diehl announced, but he was away for a few days.

The retirees who were recognized numbered 10. They were: Martin M. Roudabush, former senior resident consulting engineer, 36 years; Mary Fenner, Alverta Green, Mary McCrimmon and Mary Rue, all of Housekeeping, 22 years; Alice Montague of Housekeeping, 21 years; Isaac Hunter of Transportation, 20 years; and also of Housekeeping, Lillian Hinton, 15 years; Nola Webster, 13 years; and Detroy Haigler, 12 years.

Singled out for special recognition was Assistant to the Treasurer William N. Rydholm of Sponsored Projects with 35 years service. Assistant Treasurer Margaret P. Greene said of him, "Bill is always willing to help, very efficient, always willing to do whatever needs to be done, far beyond the necessary."

Three people received recognition for 30 years service: Clarence Chappelle and James Pearson, both of Housekeeping, and Rufus Sanders of Transportation.

James Cheeks of Transportation and William Melton of Physical Plant were thanked for 25 years service.

From Mr. Diehl's office, Gearldean (Deana) Ormonde and Bobbye Pratt were recognized for 15 and 5 years respectively. Assistant Treasurer Vicki J. Baker, director of the Office of Student Financial Aid, was thanked for 15 years service and in turn took part in recognizing Ruth Hoch, assistant director, loan collections, for 10 years service.

Robert Longshore of Telecommunications was recognized for 10 years with the University and together with Mr. Diehl, expressed appreciation to Rhonda Montague for five years service.

From Sponsored Projects, Ivette Alvarez and Bernardo Reyes, received 10-year certificates, and Patricia Hauser a five-year certificate.

From Printing and Graphics, Harvey Brasse and Joseph Jackson both received 20-year awards.

Joseph Berney of the University Mail Service received a 10-year award and also provided music on the piano before lunch.

From University Parking, Willy Peterson and James Whitaker, had 20-year awards.

John Fenner of Lisner Auditorium received a 15-year award.

From the University Bookstore came Alton Mervin with 15 years service and Irving Jones with 10 years.

Larry Bethel and Carol Tawiah of Procurement and Supply were both thanked for 10 years service.

Cathleen (Cathy) Allen of the Business Office was recognized for five years work.

From Planning and Construction came Robert Grant with 20 years, Darla Koch with 10 years and Cecilia Gonzalez, John Pang and Michael Terwilliger with five years each.

From the Physical Plant Department, the 20-year group included Nannie Brooks, Burl Burkhammer and Mary Jennings. Receiving 15-year recognition were James Austin, Catherine Calliste,

(continued on back)

ASSISTANT VICE PRESIDENT FOR UNIVERSITY RELATIONS NAMED

Dina Dorich, currently director of public relations at Trinity University in San Antonio, Texas, has been named to the newly created position of assistant vice president for university relations here at the University. She will assume her responsibilities on or about September 1.

In announcing the appointment, Vice President for Development and University Relations Michael J. Worth said, "We are fortunate to have a person of Ms. Dorich's talent and capabilities join us here at George Washington." Dr. Worth also announced that effective July 1, the name of the Office of News and Public Affairs was changed to Office of University Relations. The new name more accurately conveys the mission of the office and the broad scope of its programs, he stated.

Ms. Dorich has over 15 years of experience in higher education public relations. Her programs have been nationally recognized for their effectiveness. At Trinity University, she has been recognized for increasing the institution's national visibility by more than 500 percent. This visibility was evident in the print media in articles in Time magazine, U.S. News and World Report and Forbes magazine and in the electronic media on CBS Sunday Morning and on the NBC Nightly News.

She received her Bachelor of Arts degree from West Liberty State College in 1967 and a Master of Arts from Kent State University in 1968. She also pursued doctoral studies at Kent State between 1969 and 1971.

Before going to Trinity in 1984, Ms. Dorich was director of public relations at Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania (1979-1984), at Schnectady Community College in New York (1975-1979) and at West Virginia Northern Community College (1972-1975).

During the years from 1967 to 1972, she held various teaching positions in secondary schools and institutions of higher learning, some of them while concurrently enrolled in graduate school.

Active at the national level in the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE), she was Institutional Relations Program Chair for the 1986 CASE National Assembly. Over a 10-year period, she has been a speaker for various CASE national and district conferences. She was also an active member of the College and University Public Relations Association of Pennsylvania and the State University of New York College and University Relations Council, holding various offices and serving on committees. She was a board member of both the Gettysburg and Schnectady chapters of the American Association of University Women (AAUW).

Her publications have included "Extending the Campus," in H.R. Rowland (ed.) Effective Community Relations, Jossey-Bass, 1980, and "From the Producer's Chair: A View of Cable TV," in CASE Currents, April 1978, which was reprinted in Making Your News Service More Effective: A CASE Handbook, 1978, and in Building Voluntary Support for the Two-Year College (CASE), 1979.

Ms. Dorich is quoted frequently in articles written by professional colleagues. Her memberships, in addition to CASE, include Women in Communications, Inc. (WICI), Public Relations Society of America (PRSA) and the National Association of Female Executives (NAFE).

SARP -- Jonathan Altenberg of Racine, Wisconsin, left, a Columbian College entering freshman, and his father, center, discussed curriculum with Professor of Political Science and Public Affairs John A. Morgan Jr. at the July 6 Summer Advanced Registration Program reception.

SEHD IN JOINT EFFORT WITH FAIRFAX COUNTY

The School of Education and Human Development has signed an agreement with the Fairfax County Public School System to begin an innovative teacher training program.

This program will make it possible for liberal arts and science graduates to receive secondary school teacher certification after one year's training in Fairfax County's Public Schools.

The joint effort, to begin in late August, is designed to attract more people to the teaching profession and to provide high quality substitute teachers for Fairfax County. "The program offers an advantage to both the student and the system," says Jay R. Shotel, acting dean, SEHD.

Similar to an apprenticeship, GW's intensive 12-month program will place graduate students in Fairfax County secondary schools where they will work as substitute teachers under the supervision of some of the county's best educators. Students in the program will complete their required course work at GW during the afternoons, evenings and weekends.

"We are looking for college graduates with non-education backgrounds, who, after completing four years of college, decide to become teachers," explains Mary Louise Ortenzo, admissions coordinator, SEHD.

Tuition and fees will be paid through a scholarship program, administered by the University with funds received from the Fairfax County Public School System.

In addition, the students will receive a monthly stipend of approximately $450.

SERVICE AWARDS LUNCHEON

(continued from front)

Leroy Larry, Robert Scott and Melvin Webb. In the 10-year group were Jeffery L. Arneson, William F. Bowers, Mildred Caperton, Lawford Edwards, Rayburn Fisher, Donald Gibson, Herman Porter, Genevieve Quick, Harry Sanders and Beatrice Smith. There were 33 members of Physical Plant recognized for five years service.

ServiceMaster and SAGA/MARRIOTT employees who have served the University, although not directly employed, were also recognized for their service. A 10-year ServiceMaster award went to Joyce Proctor. In the SAGA group, a 20-year award went to Dorothy Drummond and 15-year recognition to Elena Izquierdo, Addie Jones, Belle Jones and Petro Prytula. Four people had 10-year awards: Conrado Aguilar, Steve Charnessurag, Ricky Elum and Rosa Hernandez. Seven were recognized for five years service.

The Reverend Leroy O. Payton, housekeeping manager, dormitories, gave the invocation and the benediction for the occasion.

GAYLE M. TYSON WINS ENGINEERING AWARD

GAYLE M. TYSON, SEAS senior, left, receiving National Association of Minority Engineering Program Administrators Scholar's Award from Terry Whittaker, chairman-elect of Region A of the national association.

Gayle M. Tyson, a School of Engineering and Applied Science senior majoring in electrical engineering, has been selected as the winner of this year's Region A National Association of Minority Engineering Program Administrators (NAMEPA) Scholar's competition.

Gayle has distinguished herself by maintaining an excellent academic record throughout her academic career at GW. She has made the Dean's List since 1984, and has been a member of the electrical engineering honor society. She is also a member of the Society of Women Engineers and the GW chapter of the National Society of Black Engineers. She is also artistic director of the GW Caribbean Students' Association and a member of GW Troubadours.

NAMEPA was formed in 1979 to coordinate the efforts of universities/colleges, industry, public school districts and minority action organizations to assure maximum awareness of needs and opportunities for ethnic minority students in engineering.

The scholar's award was designed to recognize students' achievements in engineering curricula and to assist them in the pursuit of their career goals. The award carries with it a financial prize of $750 and a plaque.

Students from Region A, which extends from Maine to Washington, DC, are selected for their outstanding achievement, involvement in engineering-related extracurricular activities, community service, cooperative educational work in engineering and recommendations from the faculty and staff of their institutions.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

BAYARD L. CATRON, professor of public administration, chaired a panel at the American Society for Public Administration (ASPA) conference on "Technical Rational and the Culture of Organizations," in Boston, Massachusetts, March 28-April 1.

HOWARD GILLETTE, professor of American civilization, presented a lecture, "Greenbelt on Film," at the Greenbelt 50th anniversary conference, May 2. He also participated in a round table discussion for Smithsonian staff at the Museum of American History on the history and impact on American life of the Vietnam war, April 29.

MICHAEL M. HARMON, professor of public administration, presented a paper entitled "What If Anything, is Teleology?: The Ambiguous History of 'Purpose' in Organizational Thought," at the American Society for Public Administration conference in Boston, Massachusetts, March 28-April 1.

JAMES C. KING, professor of German, spoke on "Interlibrary Loan between St. Gall and Reichenau in the Early Eleventh Century" on May 9 at the 22nd International Congress on Medieval Studies held at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, Michigan.

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history, chaired a session at the third annual "Talks on American Architecture," at the Buell Center for the Study of American Architecture, Columbia, University, on March 28. He gave a paper on "Continuity in American Commercial Architecture," at the monthly colloquium on architectural history and design sponsored by the office of Allan Greenberg, Architect, New Haven, on April 16; delivered the John Beach Memorial Lecture, entitled "The Drive-In Markets of Southern California," for the Berkeley Architectural Heritage Association, Berkeley, California, on April 21; chaired a session on expert testimony given by architectural historians at the annual meeting of the Society of Architectural Historians, San Francisco, on April 23; and gave a paper on "Social Reform Through Housing" at the Greenbelt Conference on New Towns, Greenbelt, Maryland, on May 2.

CYNTHIA J. McSWAIN, associate professor of public administration, presented a paper, co-authored with Orion F. White, entitled "The Individual-Organizational Conflict: Lessons from Interpretivism and Analytical Psychology," at the American Society for Public Administration conference in Boston, Massachusetts, in March.

KATHRYN E. NEWCOMER, associate professor of public administration, presented a paper, co-authored with Lucille Dickinson, entitled "Forgotten Founders: Susan Myra Kingsbury," at the American Society for Public Administration conference in Boston. In addition, she presented a paper entitled "Planning for Quality in Continuing Education." At the conference, Professor Newcomer became the Chair of the ASPA section on "Public Administration and Education." She will serve one year.

SUSAN J. TOLCHIN, professor of public administration, spoke on "Foreign Investment and Its Impact," at a seminar on foreign direct investment at the Brookings Institution, Washington, DC, on April 1.

PUBLICATIONS

LYNN BARNETT, assistant director of the ERIC Clearinghouse on Higher Education, an introduction entitled "Indexing and Retrieval in ERIC: The 20th year," in the 11th edition of the Thesaurus of ERIC of ERIC Descriptors, Winter, 1987.

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, co-edited (with Henry Steele Commager and Maldwyn A. Jones) a volume on Post-Vietnam America (Orbis, London), to which he also contributed an essay on "The National Spirit," pp. 67-81.

JOHN EFTIS, professor of engineering and applied science, a paper, "Load Biaxiality and Fracture: A Two-sided History of Complementing Errors," in the journal Engineering Fracture Mechanics, Vol. 26; No. 4, pp. 567-592, 1987.

FARIBORZ GHADAR, professor of business administration, a co-authored book (with William H. Davidson and Charles Feigenoff) entitled U.S. Industrial Competitiveness: The Case of the Textile and Apparel Industries, Lexington Books. The book concludes that, although beleaguered, the U.S. manufacturing sector has proven itself capable of significant structural adjustment. The book was supported by a grant from the National Chamber Foundation.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANTS (2), part-time, Department of Civil, Mechanical and Environmental Engineering. (Individuals to assist in areas of stochastic dynamics and active control. Responsibilities include sponsored research in the area of earthquake mitigation and development of necessary computer programs. Minimum requirements: B.S. degree and two years related experience. Regular part-time benefits included.) Send a detailed resume to: Professor J.N. Yang, Department of Civil, Mechanical and Environmental Engineering, GW, Washington, DC 20052.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

July 27, 1987

GW Report

(479)

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

DIRECTOR OF WOMEN'S ATHLETICS LYNN GEORGE TO RETIRE, MARY JO WARNER TO SUCCEED HER

Lyndale H. George, associate professor of human kinetics and leisure studies, will retire from the University on August 31.

Director of the program in Intercollegiate Athletics for Women since its establishment in 1975, she came to the University in 1959.

Lyndale H. George

Mary Jo Warner, who has been assistant director since 1977, will become director September 1.

President Lloyd H. Elliott said of Lynn George, "The University is indebted to her for guidance and leadership in developing our women's athletic program and in providing each student the opportunity to develop her abilities to the fullest, while at the same time excelling in the academic arena."

At the University she has been honored with a General Alumni Association Alumni Service Award and a George Washington Award, both in 1983. An active participant in sports herself, in 1986 she was named to the Greater Washington Fast Pitch Softball Hall of Fame.

Under Professor George's direction, an eight-sport program has been developed to meet the needs and interests of GW women students who regularly compete at regional and national levels. The GW Women's Athletic Program is now seen as one of the top NCAA Division I programs on the East Coast. In the 1986-1987 year, the Badminton Team has placed second in the national tournament; the Volleyball Team is second in the Atlantic 10 Conference; and the Basketball Team is fourth in the Atlantic 10 Conference. In 1984, the Women's Tennis Team won the Atlantic 10 Conference Championship, becoming the first and only GW team to win an Atlantic 10 championship.

Associates note that Professor George has consistently provided equality of opportunity for each of the eight sports and that she was responsible for the creation of the Women's Athletic Advisory Council designed to provide student athletes with leadership opportunities and to ensure continuing communication between the athletes and program faculty and staff.

The sports in the program are basketball, volleyball, soccer, gymnastics, swimming, tennis, badminton and crew. Frequently the womens' teams play host to visiting foreign teams and have traveled to other countries for competition. In 1982, an audience of nearly 5,000 in the Smith Center watched as the Women's Athletics Program sponsored an Olympic-type volleyball match between the U.S. and Chinese Women's National Teams.

Professor George was the founder of the Colonial Women Booster Club and saw the group grow to over 400 members in a five-year period. She initiated contact with over 500 GW women graduates who participated in sports, many of whom have attended alumnae athletic events. Among student activities she has lent cooperation are Martha's Marathon of Birthday Bargains and Project Visibility.

A George Washington graduate with two degrees (B.S. with a major in physical education, 1948, and M.A. in secondary education, 1952), she holds a GW advanced professional certificate in secondary school guidance and administration (1959).

Prior to joining the University faculty, she taught twice in the District of Columbia Public Schools and served in the United States Navy as a communications officer and an athletic officer. She attained the rank of lieutenant.

Active in professional organizations, she has served as secretary of the Gamma Chapter of Alpha Kappa Delta, international honorary education fraternity for women and as chairman of the D.C. Board of Women's Sports Officials. Among her University committees have been the Faculty Senate Committee on Athletics and the Atlantic 10 Conference Sports Advisory Committee.

Mary Jo Warner, currently assistant director, holds the degrees of B.S. in physical education and aquatics education (1975) and M.A. in exercise science (1977), both from Western Michigan University, and an M.S. in health-fitness management from American University (1982). Before coming to GW, she coached swimming at Western Michigan and taught at the International School of Geneva, Switzerland. At GW, she has served as intramural director for women and as assistant women's swimming coach. She was listed in Outstanding Young Women of America in 1983 and is the GW corporate representative to the American Association of University Women.

SIX OF D.C.'S TOP STUDENTS TO ENTER GW IN FALL SEMESTER

DC STUDENTS -- Yvonne Gray, center foreground; second row, Althea Evans, left, and Narda Newby; third row, l to r, Julie Reed, Marsha Anderson, Valerie Littlejohn.

Six of the District of Columbia's top high school students will enroll at the University in the fall as part of the class of 1991. The students, entering GW under the auspices of the University's Educational Opportunity Program (EOP), were graduated either first or second in their classes.

"It's encouraging to see so many top area graduates coming to GW. This will allow the DC community to identify even more closely with the University's commitment to academic excellence," says EOP Director Valerie Epps.

Our Educational Opportunity Program provides support in higher education for minority and other DC residents who would not otherwise have the financial resources to attend GW. Since its inception in 1969, EOP has furnished financial, academic and social support for more than 1,000 students.

All six of this year's top students entering GW from the DC high schools through EOP are women. They are currently on campus Monday through Friday taking part in EOP's Pre-College Review and Enrichment Program.

Marcia Anderson, salutatorian at Anacostia High School, who will enter Columbian College, has not decided on a major. Her favorite subjects are science and English and she enjoys playing the flute.

Althea Evans, valedictorian at Anacostia, will also enter Columbian College and plans to major in communications. English and the Humanities are among her principal interests. In her free time, reading, writing, cheerleading and student government take her attention.

Yvonne Gray, salutatorian at Holy Spirit High School, will pursue a liberal arts course in Columbian College. English and history are her favorite subjects and her hobbies include drawing and reading.

Valerie Littlejohn, salutatorian at Eastern High School, will major in pre-science/chemistry in Columbian College. She prefers courses in mathematics and science. Reading, swimming, traveling and skating occupy her leisure hours.

Narda Newby, valedictorian at All Saints High School, will study in the School of Government and Business Administration. She plans to major in business administration. Her favorite study areas are English, business law and accounting. She enjoys dance, art and sports.

Julie Reed, valedictorian at McKinley High School, will be entering the School of Engineering and Applied Science. She plans to major in pre-medical engineering. Her favorite classes have been in chemistry, trigonometry, geometry, biology and English. Julie is interested in singing, design, writing short stories and drawing.

GRANT OPPORTUNITY FROM NATIONAL SCIENCE FOUNDATION

The National Science Foundation has announced a competition for the Presidential Young Investigator Awards. The awards, which will support young science and engineering faculty, are intended to improve the capability of universities to respond to the demand for qualified scientific and engineering personnel for academic and industrial research.

Nominees must have begun their first post-Ph.D. tenure-track faculty position after April 30, 1984. The application deadline is October 1, 1987. For further details, contact Helen Spencer, Office of Sponsored Research, 46255.

GW TO OFFER WRITING WORKSHOP IN AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL FICTION

A writing workshop in autobiographical fiction will be offered this fall on Tuesday evenings from 8 to 10 pm, from September 8 to December 8. The workshop is free and open to the public.

The workshop will be taught by Richard McCann, a visiting lecturer under the auspices of the Jenny McKean Moore Fund for Writers at GW. His stories and poems have been published in The Atlantic Monthly, Shenandoah, The Virginia Quarterly Review, and Best New Stories of 1987. He has had a book of poems published titled Dreams of the Traveler, and he is currently working on a novel, Border Town, to be published by Viking Penguin.

Anyone interested in applying should submit a letter giving name, address, home and work telephone numbers, along with a brief personal history and a writing sample, a story or stories, not to exceed 25 pages, to: Free Workshop, Department of English, GW, Washington, DC 20052. Applicants should include a self-addressed, stamped envelope for return and indicate whether they have participated in previous Jenny McKean Moore workshops. Applications must be received by August 18.

McCann will also be teaching an advanced fiction workshop in the fall. For more information call 46180.

PRESENTATION -- L to R, Ruth Meyer, immediate past president of GW Columbian Women, Marguerite Rawalt, and John Jenkins, associate dean for external affairs, National Law Center, at the recent presentation to the University of Miss Rawalt's biography "Be Somebody." A GW alumna (Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws, both 1933, and Master of Laws, 1936) Miss Rawalt received an Alumni Achievement Award in 1965.

BRIEFLY...

CD Catalog Workshop -- Faculty members are invited to a "hands-on" introduction to the compact disk catalog in the Gelman Library. Sessions will be held Tuesdays at 12 noon and Wednesdays at 4 pm, from July 14 through August 12 in Gelman, Room 208. Faculty members may also contact their subject specialists for a personal training session.

Parking Note -- The temporary on-campus summer parking program will end on Sunday, August 16. Kennedy Center parking will be available beginning Monday, August 17. Employees who wish to use the Kennedy Center parking facility should pick up the current information and purchase the appropriate parking tickets in the Parking Office.

Lisner at Noon -- Singer, pianist and songwriter "Becka" will perform folk, pop, blues and funk tunes on Thursday, August 6, at 12:15 in Lisner Auditorium. "Becka" can frequently be heard at Gallagers #1 and #2, and Food for Thought. Admission is free. Bring your lunch if you like.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

JOHN C. LOWE, professor of geography and regional science, was interviewed on April 3 on a half-hour weekly radio show "Focus: Education" on the subject of geographic education on station WLUW in Chicago. He was also quoted in an article on geographic illiteracy and geographic education in the March 30 issue of Insight. As a follow up, he was interviewed on the morning news and talk show of radio station KLGB in Austin, Texas, on March 25.

DORN C. McGRATH, professor of urban and regional planning, was interviewed by The Bureau of National Affairs on airport capacity problems. The interview appeared in Noise Regulation Reporter Vol. 13, No. 18, January 30.

ANNE SCAMMON, public relations coordinator, Career Services Center, was interviewed April 27 by WJLA-TV for the 11 pm news concerning GW student and alumni interest in interviewing with CIA representatives during campus recuriting season.

SHARON WOLCHIK, associate professor of international affairs and political science, was interviewed concerning recent protests in Hungary on Cable News Network, March 16, 1987.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

ROLF H. CLARK, professor of engineering and applied science, is a volunteer science and mathematics teacher in the District of Columbia school system. He was invited to teach five classes at Roosevelt High School, and lectured on "The Use of Functions, Graphs, and Models in Communicating."

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, lectured on "The Invention of the Presidency," for a symposium ("Teaching the Constitution") organized by the Smithsonian Institution's Office of Elementary and Secondary Education, at the National Museum of American History, on May 16, 1987.

DONALD GROSS, professor of operations research, spoke at Pennsylvania State University to a graduate colloquium on April 7. His topic was "The Randomization Technique for Obtaining Transient Solutions to Markovian Queuing Systems."

PHILLIP D. GRUB, Aryamehr Professor of Multinational Management, was the keynote speaker at the ASEAN International Symposium on Information Technology, Management, and Human Resources Development in Bangkok, Thailand on March 30. In addition to attendees from the six countries (Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia, Brunei and the Philippines) participants were drawn from an additional 31 countries. His address, "The Information Technology Explosion: A Look to the Year 2000," focused on the ability of nations to absorb technology in the development process and how the rapid pace of industrial development on a global scale is requiring the development of sophisticated information systems to remain competitive. He spoke on "Technology Transfer and Its Impact on the Pacific Rim" at a seminar sponsored by the Institute of International Relations of National Chiao Tung University and participated in a seminar discussion of Pacific Rim economic development at the Chung-Hua Institution for Economic Research on March 2 and 3. On March 4, he addressed the National Defense Management College of Taiwan, speaking on "Leadership and Technological Innovation: The Challenge of the Year 2001." While in Taiwan, he also met with the GW Alumni Association of the Republic of China, addressing the group on recent developments at GW.

MURLI M. GUPTA, associate professor of mathematics, participated as National Judge of the 4th National Mathcounts Competition May 14-15, at the Sheraton Washington Hotel. Mathcounts Competition is open to 7th and 8th grade students nationwide. Vice President George Bush was present at the competition finale and presented gold, silver and bronze medals to the three top winners. National media covered this event.

JILL F. KASLE, associate professor of public administration, attended the American Association of Public Administration conference in Boston, March 28-April 1. While in Boston she gave a guest lecture at New England School of Law, March 30, on the Department of Public Administration's telecommunication program.

MARK E. KEANE, distinguished visiting professor of public administration, presided at the presentation of the National Public Service awards in Boston, March 29. The awards were made at the opening session of the Annual Conference of the American Society for Public Administration. Keane serves as chairman of the Board of the National Academy of Public Administration.

LEO P. RIBUFFO, professor of history, delivered a paper, "God and Jimmy Carter," at a conference on "Transforming Faith: The Sacred and Secular in Modern American History," at the University of Maryland on May 1. He also delivered a lecture, "The New Right in Historical Perspective," at Yale University on April 23.

PUBLICATION

EUGENE W. KELLY JR., professor of education, a co-authored article, "The Relationship of Steady Dating to Self-Esteem and Sexual Identity Among Adolescents," in Adolescence, Spring 1987, pp. 213-245.

PERSONNEL NOTICE

RESEARCH ASSISTANT OR ASSOCIATE, full-time, Economics Department. (Individual with experience in health-related research needed to work on research project on the economic implications of AIDS for Medicare and Medicaid. Duties: assist with survey of published and unpublished research on AIDS epidemiology, treatment costs and third-party payment policies; assist with telephone survey of private insurers; organize project meetings; help with preparation of research reports. Minimum requirement: B.A. or B.S. degree.) Salary and title commensurate with experience. Send resume to: Mary Ann Baily, Ph.D., Department of Economics, GW, 2201 G Street, NW Washington, DC, 20052.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

August 10, 1987 (480)

GW Report

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

PLIGHT OF WORKING POOR STUDIED BY LEVITAN, SHAPIRO

The plight of the working poor has been ignored in the recent welfare debate, according to a new analysis released by Sar A. Levitan and Isaac Shapiro of The George Washington University Center for Social Policy Studies.

"Because so many of the poor move from low wage jobs to welfare and back again, Congress cannot hope to successfully reform the welfare system unless it seriously addresses the plight of the working poor," says Dr. Levitan, director of the center.

Authors Levitan and Shapiro suggest that if welfare reforms are to work, an additional $10 billion is needed annually to aid the working poor. "While the price tag is substantial, the costs of inattention may be even higher in the long run," comments Levitan.

Specific proposals in their analysis include:

*Indexing the minimum wage to half the average private sector wage rate--an increase of more than one dollar an hour above the current minimum--to be phased in over several years;

*Increasing investment in job training programs, and reinstating a public employment program to alleviate job shortages; and

*Supplementing with welfare benefits the earnings of poor workers who are heads of families.

"These proposals reward work, enlisting the efforts of both business and government. Most importantly, they promote upward mobility and serve to alleviate deprivation--goals which are consistent with the American promise," emphasizes Levitan.

Due to sluggish economic growth and federal inattention, there were almost nine million impoverished American workers in 1986--an increase of nearly 40 percent since 1979, according to Levitan and Shapiro.

Federal aid policies designed to help the working poor have never been generous, say the authors. "In fact, with the exception of the 1986 tax reform bill, federal policies have provided even less assistance during the 1980s than in the previous decade--despite the increase in the number of working poor," they note.

"In a nation as affluent as the United States, the prevalence of the working poor challenges the fairness of both private wage and public income distribution practices," states Levitan. "While federal policies are only one element in ameliorating the difficulties faced by the working poor, federal leadership is critical in remedying the problem," he says.

The authors' study Working but Poor is to be published by the Johns Hopkins University Press. An article based on the study's findings appears in the July/August 1987 issue of Challenge. The study and analysis were conducted under an ongoing grant from the Ford Foundation to the University's Center for Social Policy Studies.

WAITING FOR HONORS -- Saranga Senaratna of Sri Lanka heads a line of children waiting to be welcomed into the nobility during the medieval feast July 31 which concluded the Summer Program for Gifted Children sponsored by the Reading Center.

HARVEY FEIGENBAUM RECEIVES FULBRIGHT GRANT FOR 1987-88

Associate Professor of Political Science Harvey Feigenbaum has been awarded a Fulbright Scholar Grant for 1987-88. He will travel to France and Germany during the 1988 spring semester to research the effect of political authority on the economics of nuclear energy in advanced industrial states.

Professor Feigenbaum suggests that there is a direct correlation between government centralization and economic efficiency in the nuclear power industry. He will examine this proposition by comparing nuclear energy programs in France, Germany, Japan and the United States.

Dr. Feigenbaum, who came to George Washington in 1981 as a member of the Political Science Department, is an expert on comparative politics and the political economy of advanced industrial states. The author of The Politics of Public Enterprise: Oil and the French State (Princeton University Press, 1985), Feigenbaum has written extensively on French politics and the politics of energy.

A graduate of the University of Virginia (B.A., foreign affairs, 1971) he holds a Diplome en Relations Internationales from the Institut d'Etudes Politiques de Paris (1973) and earned his Ph. D. from the University of California at Los Angeles (1981).

Those selected for the Fulbright Scholars Program on the basis of their academic and professional qualifications are chosen also because of their ability and willingness to share ideas and experiences with people of diverse cultures. The program, established in 1946 thanks to the initiative of former Senator J. William Fulbright, a GW law graduate (LL.B. 1934), observed its 40th anniversary last year.

FIRST MASTER'S DEGREE AWARDED IN ASSOCIATION MANAGEMENT

James P. Madigan III is the first recipient of the Master of Association Management degree to be awarded by the University. He received the degree at this spring's commencement of the School of Government and Business Administration from Dean Norma Maine Loeser. The 14-course program was initiated at George Washington in the fall of 1984.

Madigan is now Governor's Liaison for Chapter Relations at the American College of Cardiology, where he started as a temporary office worker shortly after enrolling in the master's program.

A 1984 graduate of the University of Maryland, Madigan decided work with associations was the best vehicle for accomplishing his career goals in the health care field.

Madigan says that his studies have benefitted not only himself but also his employer. "Daily I seem to be able to draw on the resources of my graduate education at The George Washington University," he comments. He points to the areas of management, marketing, analytical research and computer methods where he has drawn directly from the classroom for applica-

(continued on back)

SIA STUDENT LORI RENZ SELECTED FOR GERMAN INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

Lori V. Renz, an SIA graduate student, has been selected by the German Programs organization for a three-month internship this fall with the West German Federal Parliament (Bundestag). She was among 16 students chosen after a nationwide competition among advanced undergraduates and graduate students attending American colleges and universities.

The Bundestag internships were established some 20 years ago. They provide work-study experience to students seriously interested in German affairs. Interns may have a background of study in social science or the humanities or both. They must be fluent in German.

While contributing to the work of the offices to which they are assigned, interns gain a better understanding of the functions of those offices and of current issues. Bundestag interns receive an overview of the administrative, legislative research, and party and Fraktion sides of the Federal Parliament.

Lori Renz, who received her B.A. from George Washington in 1983 in international affairs, will serve her three-month internship from September to December.

EXPERIENCE -- Dr. Donald Gubser, head, Metal Physics Branch, Condensed Matter and Radiation Sciences Division, Naval Research Laboratory (NRL) standing, assists Jim Meyer of Robinson High School, Fairfax, Virginia, in assembling a piece of laboratory equipment during Meyer's internship at the NRL. Meyer was one of more than 500 area high school students placed in internships as part of SEAP, the Science and Engineering Apprentice Program, administered by SEAS for the Department of Defense.

ASSOCIATION MANAGEMENT

(continued from front)

tions to problem solving in his office. Madigan praises the broad-based combination of core courses in association management, coupled with courses from SGBA's Departments of Public Administration, Business Administration, Management Science and Accountancy.

George Washington's Master of Association Management degree program was the first of its kind in the nation. It is planned for those who work with associations and who plan careers in the management of associations. The program's 14 courses are selected from six fields: comparative institutions; marketing strategies and association representation; communications, media and information systems; association management; finance and fund accounting; and analytical and research methods.

SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING APPRENTICE PROGRAM CLOSING

The closing session of the Science and Engineering Apprentice Program (SEAP) will be held on Friday, August 14, from 10 am to 12:15 pm in Lisner Auditorium. By that date some 560 high school students will have completed their eight-week laboratory apprenticeships.

Keynote speakers will be Dr. Marvin K. Ross, director, Office of Naval Research, and Dr. Ronald L. Kerber, deputy under secretary of defense for research and advanced technology. The greetings of the University will be extended by President Lloyd H. Elliott and Program Director Marylin Krupshaw.

Members of the University community are cordially invited to attend this closing session.

BIKE-AID DAY IS AUGUST 13

A group of some 150 Bike-Aid '87 cyclists, who have come across the country in travels begun on the West Coast June 17, will gather in GW's Marvin Center Ballroom before going on to New York and the United Nations.

Bike-Aid is a project of the Overseas Development Network (ODN), a national student organization committed to alleviating hunger and poverty worldwide and to educating Americans about development issues. ODN started at Stanford and Harvard Universities in 1983 and has since expanded to 50 chapters nationwide, including one at GW.

The bicycle trek is a fundraising project to help solve world hunger. For information call William DeSalvo or Channing Arndt at 331-7816.

PAKISTANI VARIETY SHOW

A Pakistani Variety and Comedy show, sponsored by the Shalimar Entertainment Group and the Pakistani Students Association of The George Washington University, will be presented on Saturday, August 16, at 7 pm in Lisner Auditorium. For more information, call 994-7411 or 337-6693.

FUTURE JOURNALISTS -- Tracy Baker of Smithfield, Virginia, a junior at Norfolk State University, left, and David Cummings of Montclair, New Jersey, a student at Morehouse College in Atlanta, Georgia, center, conferred with Visiting Associate Professor of Journalism Charles W. Puffenbarger during the six-week Academy of Future Journalists, Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism Summer Minority Program. This is the first time the five-year-old program has been conducted in Washington. The GW Journalism Department's facilities were used (June 21 to July 31). Puffenbarger was one of three instructors for the program's 13 students.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor, served as moderator for the forum "Achieving a Priority Agenda for Urban America" in May during the National Urban Coalition's 20th Anniversary Convocation. On May 28, he presented a paper on "Adapting to Unpredictability" at the Seventh International Symposium on Forecasting in Boston. He was the recipient of an honorary doctorate of humane letters from the Governors State University on June 7, 1987.

JOSEPH L. GASTWIRTH, professor of statistics and economics, presented a paper at the Royal Statistical Society's Conference celebrating the 150th anniversary of its charter. He also presented a seminar at the University of Pennsylvania on the same topic, "The Accuracy of Medical Screening Tests: Application to the Polygraph and AIDS Antibodies Tests."

JOSEPH A. GREENBERG, professor of education, delivered a number of lectures at Korean universities in June. His speeches dealt with current issues in American higher education and adult learning. He visited three different cities, Kangnung, Taejun and Seoul and spoke to audiences ranging in size from 50 to 350. His final speech was delivered to the Saemahool Undong, a movement including 18 million members, which works toward rural and regional development to improve the quality of living for millions of Koreans.

DONALD GROSS, professor of operations research, organized a workshop, sponsored by the Systems Theory and Operations Research Program of the Electrical, Communication and Systems Engineering Division of the National Science Foundation, held at Airlie House from May 31 to June 3. Twenty-four prominent researchers and practitioners from academia and industry attended. A "white paper" on the current prospective of important research areas in operations research over the next 10 years will result.

SHELDON E. HABER, professor of economics, has been awarded an American Statistical Association/National Science Foundation/Census Bureau Fellowship. Beginning September 1, he will be working at the Bureau of the Census for 12 months. There he will be developing a methodology for valuing employer-provided health insurance benefits.

ALF HILTEBEITEL, professor of religion, delivered the George V. Bobrinskoy Lecture at the University of Chicago on May 29. His subject was "When Draupadi Walked on Fire." The lecture was presented by the South Asia Students Association of the University of Chicago's Graduate School Program.

JOHN W. KENDRICK, professor of economics, spoke on the economic outlook to members of the Executive Program at the University of Wisconsin in Madsion in April. In the same month, he spoke to the Advisory Committee of The American Council on Capital Formation in Washington. In June, he gave a seminar on productivity, cost and price developments and outlook at Northeastern University in Boston.

ANN-MYONGSOOK LEE, studio instructor in voice, was presented in a recital in her native Korea in May at Seoul's Sejong Cultural Hall. Her appearance was sponsored by the Korean musical journal Auditorium and the concert was entirely sold out.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Intergovernmental Health Policy Project. (Individual to work for a non-profit, university-based research project and information clearing-house focusing on health policy activities in the 50 states. The assistant's principal function will be to assist Research Associates in fulfilling their primary research functions. This includes such activities as data gathering, survey work, monitoring and summarizing legislation. The assistant will also be expected to respond to specific information needs of the Project's constituents and to be responsible for preparing brief summaries of recent trends in state legislation with respect to at least two important health policy topics. Qualifications: B.A. or B.S. degree with some course work related to general health policy issues or enrollment in M.A. program in public health or health care administration; some research experience or prior work within a state government or the federal government is helpful. Salary commensurate with experience. Mail resume to: Richard E. Merritt, Director, Intergovernmental Health Policy Project, 2100 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Suite 616, Washington, DC 20037. Application deadline: August 31.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR, full-time, Women's Athletics. (Individual with bachelor's degree in physical education, or a related field, or business administration required; master's preferred. Position requires knowledge of NCAA regulations, experience in college-level administration, fund-raising, and promotions. Excellent organizational and communication skills desirable.) Contact: Mary Jo Warner at 46282.

ASSISTANT WOMEN'S BASKETBALL COACH, (two positions) full-time, Women's Athletics. (Individuals with demonstrated coaching experience at the college level and ability to communicate and work effectively with students required. Playing experience at the collegiate Division I level preferred. Bachelor's degree required, master's preferred, in physical education or related field.) Send resume to: Mrs. Lynn George, Women's Athletic Director, Smith Center, Room 202.

RESEARCH ASSISTANTS, part-time, Department of Civil, Mechanical and Environmental Engineering. (Responsibilities to include sponsored research in the area of earthquake mitigation and the development of necessary computer programs. Minimum requirements: B.S. degree and two years related experience.) Send detailed resume to: Professor J.N. Yang, Department of Civil, Mechanical and Environmental Engineering, GW, Washington, DC 20052.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Department of Biochemistry. (Individual to perform biochemical experiments on tumor cells and conduct library research. Requires a B.S. degree and at least one year of experience in a research or clinical laboratory.) Contact Dr. Gary Fiskum at 994-8819.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

August 31, 1987

GW Report

(481)

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

OPENING CONVOCATION IS FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 11

To celebrate the beginning of the 1987-88 academic year, the University's seventh annual Opening Convocation will be held on Friday, September 11, at 12 noon in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre. The entire University community is invited to attend.

The theme for this year's convocation is "Washington the City: Celebrating Our Community." The event will feature an address by University Trustee Oliver T. Carr, Jr., chairman of the current Campaign for George Washington, who was chosen by the Greater Washington Board of Trade as "Man of the Years."

A musical and visual prelude, titled "Sights and Sounds of Washington," will be presented by The John Philip Sousa Junior High School Band under the direction of Willie Johnson, with music of Sousa, and Professor of Urban and Regional Planning Dorn C. McGrath, Jr., with projected color pictures. A color guard from the GW NROTC unit will lead the academic procession into the Marvin Center.

Following the announcement of the convocation by University Marshal Robert G. Jones and an invocation by Judy Schwartz Rodenstein, chairman of the Board of Chaplains, Jerlys D. Thompson, president of the Black People's Union, will welcome those attending. President Lloyd H. Elliott will make brief remarks as will GW Student Association President Adam Freedman. Faculty greetings will be extended by Professor of Art Lilien F. Robinson, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Faculty Senate. General Alumni Association President John R. Manning will bring alumni greetings.

Barry Manilow Scholar in Music Imelda B. Aycud, soprano, a student from the Philippines, will give a musical selection by American composer Samuel Barber. Her accompanist will be Frank Conlon, adjunct assistant professor of music. Keith L. Pettigrew, a 1987 GW graduate (B.A.) and first recipient of the University's Martin Luther King Medal for students, will read a poem he has written for the occasion, "My how you've changed, D.C.!" Special platform guests will be six honor graduates of D.C. high schools who are entering in the class of 1991.

The convocation will conclude with the singing of GW'S alma mater and a benediction by the Reverend Doctor Wendell Phillips Russell, pastor of the Matthews Memorial Baptist Church, Faculty Marshals for the occasion will be Professor of American Civilization Howard F. Gillette, Jr. and Professor McGrath. Linda Donnels, assistant dean of students for educational services, has served as chairman of the Opening Convocation Planning Committee.

Everyone is invited to a reception in the third floor of the Marvin Center following the ceremony.

NEW TERRITORY -- Kechaing Li, left, and Lioh Bunhuei, both SEAS graduate students from the People's Republic of China, studied a Washington city map to get their bearings for the Fall Semester at an August 25 reception sponsored by International Student Services.

FRESHMAN COUNT

According to an August 22 tabulation of the Office of Admissions, 1,242 freshmen students are expected for the Fall Semester. A report prepared by Brian Selinsky, director of academic advising, Columbian College Student Services, says that 803 students were registered during the Summer Advance Registration Program (SARP).

C. SFERRAZZA ANTHONY TO SPEAK SEPTEMBER 9

The GW University Club will host breakfast with Carl Sferraza Anthony on Wednesday, September 9, from 8 to 9:30 am. He will be speaking on his forthcoming new book about First Ladies in the White House. The author is a GW alumnus, B.A. '82,. For reservations, call the GW Club at 46610.

DIMOCK GALLERY TO SHOW WORK OF GRAPHIC DESIGNERS

In conjunction with the 10th anniversary of the Visual Communications Program of University's Art Department, Associate Professor of Art Sam Molina has organized an exhibition of the work of graphic designers who are alumni of the program.

The exhibition will be on view in the Dimock Gallery from September 10 to October 8. Most of the graduates of the program are employed as graphic designers in the Washington area. The works on display will include examples of graphic design, done by these alumni as free-lance graphic designers or produced by their respective organizations. Posters, booklets and logos are among the types of work that will be on display.

The hours of the gallery, located off the lower lounge of Lisner Auditorium, are: Tuesday through Friday, 10 am to 5 pm; Saturday, noon to 5 pm; open for special Lisner Auditorium performances; closed to the public on Monday.

GW ANNOUNCES MERGER WITH BENJAMIN FRANKLIN UNIVERSITY

SIGNING -- Vice Chairman of Benjamin University's Board of Trustees Joseph Gamble, left, and President Lloyd H. Elliott signing the merger agreement.

Officials of The George Washington University and of Benjamin Franklin University signed an agreement on August 14 merging Benjamin Franklin University (BFU), a Washington, D.C., school of accountancy and financial management, into The George Washington University effective today, August 31.

"The agreement provides an excellent opportunity for qualified Benjamin Franklin University students to continue their educations," said President Lloyd H. Elliott.

Under the agreement, Benjamin Franklin University will transfer all of its assets to GW. The transfer does not include the building which now houses BFU, located at 1100 16th Street, NW.

Benjamin Franklin undergraduate and graduate students who meet GW admissions requirements are being admitted to the School of Government and Business Administration for the fall semester. These students will receive credit for the satisfactory completion of comparable courses at BFU.

"Benjamin Franklin University has a long and distinguished history of serving the community which we are confident will continue under GW's capable direction," said Joseph Gamble, vice chairman of BFU's board of trustees.

Recognizing the tuition differences at the two schools, the University will provide substantial assistance to defray the additional tuition expenses of students who transfer from BFU to GW.

Merger talks were initiated last March because of new requirements of state accountancy boards in Virginia and Maryland which would prevent BFU students from taking the certified public accountancy examination. As a single-discipline school, BFU did not have the academic accreditation required by the two states.

Although the District of Columbia accountancy board did not change its accreditation requirements, Ben Franklin officials felt the standards of all three jurisdictions needed to be met because its graduates worked in all three.

Founded in 1925 by the late John Thomas Kennedy, a law graduate of The George Washington University, Benjamin Franklin University has had a current enrollment of more than 300 students in its undergraduate and graduate programs.

GAMBINO NAMED RECREATIONAL SPORTS DIRECTOR

Stephen Gambino was named recreational sports director at GW effective August 1. Former assistant director of recreation services at the Ambler and Tyler campuses of Temple University in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Gambino will be responsible for intramural sports and campus recreation at GW.

In making the appointment, Charles E. Smith Center Director Michael Peller said, "Mr. Gambino's skills and experience will be a tremendous asset to recreational sports programming at GW."

Gambino earned a master of education degree from Temple University and is currently completing requirements for a doctorate in education from the same institution. He is a member of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation and of the National Intramural/Recreation Sports Association.

HELGA PICTURES TOPIC OF FIRST WEDNESDAY LECTURE

Anne Palumbo, assistant professorial lecturer in art, will open the First Wednesday Lecture Series with a slide/lecture on the Wyeth Helga pictures, which are currently displayed at the National Gallery of Art. She will speak on September 2 at 8:00 pm, in the President's Room of the University Club. The Alumni Relations Office is sponsoring the event.

The lecture will be preceded by dinner in the Main Dining Room, at the University Club, beginning at 6:30 pm. Both members and nonmembers may make reservations with the Club, 994-6610.

NOMINATIONS DUE FOR ACHIEVEMENT AWARDS

The General Alumni Association is now accepting nominations of GW alumni meriting consideration for Distinguished Alumni Achievement Awards.

The awards honor alumni who have an earned degree and who have attained notable achievement in their field(s) of endeavor.
Members of the University's Board of Trustees, faculty members and staff are not eligible for this award.

Those submitting nominations should give as much information as possible and fill out a nomination form available from the Alumni Relations Office. Although nominations may be submitted throughout the year, they must be received by Friday, September 18, to be considered for presentation at the February, 1988, Winter Convocation.

Nominations should be addressed to the Alumni House, The George Washington University, Washington, DC, 20052, Attention: Distinguished Alumni Awards Committee.

CLASSICAL GUITARIST IN LISNER AT NOON CONCERT

"Lisner at Noon," a series of free midday concerts at Lisner Auditorium, presents classical guitarist William Marple at the first performance of the fall on Wednesday, September 2.

Marple will perform works of J.S. Bach, Mauro Guiliani, Luis de Narvaez and Francesco da Milano. A student of Christopher Parkening and Manuel Barrueco, and a graduate of Catholic University's school of music, Marple has performed for First Lady Nancy Reagan as well as a wide range of audiences.

The half-hour concert begins at 12:15 pm. Everyone is invited to bring a bag lunch, relax and enjoy the music. For more information, call Lisner Auditorium at 994-6800.

REGGIE BROWN of H.D. Woodson High School, left, worked with PPD's Jimmy Thrower in the Carpentry Shop from July 1 to August 14 as a participant in the Mayor's Summer Youth Employment Program. Based on recommendations, evaluations and work performance, Reggie was chosen the program's number one student worker for the summer of 1987. Acting SEHD Dean Jay R. Shotel was the principal investigator for the program's grant. Students participating in the program, attending special classes and gaining work experience, numbered 41.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

PHILLIP D. GRUB, Aryamehr professor of multinational management, was interviewed on WTKN-Pittsburgh Independent Network News, June 15, in a discussion of the recent Japanese takeover of many U.S. corporations. In Business Week, July 13, he was quoted in the "Top of the News" section on Korea's 'Democratic Coup'. On July 23, David Thorn of Radio KNX, Los Angeles, interviewed Dr. Grub concerning the current Middle East situation. He was also the guest on a one-hour live radio talk show on the same subject on the Wisconsin Public Radio, as well as a guest on station KGW, an ABC affiliate, in Portland, Oregon, June 23. On June 19, Grub was interviewed by the Minneapolis Star Tribune on the Dart Group take-over of Dayton's in Minneapolis.

DORN McGRATH, JR., professor of urban and regional planning, was interviewed in July's issue of Regardie's magazine regarding the latest developments in the Anacostia D.C. project, which he and a number of graduate students have been working on for more than three years.

JONATHAN D. MORENO, associate professor of philosophy and of health care sciences, was interviewed on CBS Nightwatch, July 16, on the ethical issues arising from brain cell transplants to treat Parkinson's Disease and other neurological disorders.

BENJAMIN NIMER, professor of political science and international affairs, spoke on the Channel 4 Six O'Clock News, July 22, regarding changes appearing in South Africa since the declaration of a state of emergency.

FRANCES LUMBARD, director of continuing education's CCEW Career Certificate Program in Landscape Design, was featured on the WMET-AM Radio show, "Landscaping With Lerner." The director discussed general landscaping and gardening concerns of homeowners as well as the Landscape Design and other career certificate programs of CCEW. Caller's questions were answered on the air.

CONTRAST -- This view of the University's original College building on College Hill, constructed in 1820-1822, will serve to show newcomers to campus how far the institution has come since its early years.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JUDITH BUTLER, assistant professor of philosophy, was one of 36 chosen from 280 to receive a fellowship from The American Council of Learned Societies. The fellowship is awarded to recent recipients of the Ph.D. for research in the humanities and related social sciences for the period of six months to a year. Her research topic is "Gender, Identity, and Desire: Foundational Issues in Philosophy and Feminism."

JAMES COSTANTINO, assistant dean of the Division of Continuing Education, has been elected chairman of Professional Engineers in Education for the District of Columbia of the National Society of Professional Engineers. By promoting high standards for engineering registrants and practicing professionals, NSPE Engineers in Education propose to enhance undergraduate, graduate, and continuing education programs in the nation's schools of engineering.

PETER CAWS, university professor of philosophy, addressed a Congressional Forum sponsored by the Federation of State Humanities Councils on "Public and Legislative Access to the Cumulative Network of Human Knowledge," May 7, on Capitol Hill. Seventy representatives from thirty-five State Humanities Councils were joined by three senators, twenty-eight representatives and forty-five staff people representing their members of Congress for the program.

JAMES DEUTSCH, lecturer in American civilization, spoke on "Philosophical Origins of the American Constitution" to open a one-week workshop entitled "Teaching the Constitution," sponsored by the National Portrait Gallery and the Smithsonian Institution's Office of Elementary and Secondary Education, July 6.

VALERIE EPPS, director, Educational Opportunity Program, was invited to serve on the Mathematics/Science Initiative Task Force on Thursday, May 28, for the D.C. Public School System. The three-year goal is to develop a program that will enhance student interest and achievement through participation in innovative programs that provide formal and informal opportunities to learn experientially.

ULF GRAHN, associate professorial lecturer in music, and ROBERT PARRIS, professor of music, compositions "Images" and "Metamorphic Variations", respectively, were performed by the Contemporary Music Forum at the Corcoran Gallery of Art's Francis and Armand Hammer Auditorium, April 20.

DONALD GROSS, professor of operations research, with Mohamad Ahmed, co-presented a paper, "Composite Analytical/Simulation Modeling in Multi-echelon Repairable Item Inventory Systems" at the Multi-echelon Inventory Conference, University of Pennsylvania, June 29-30.

FARIBORZ GHADAR, professor of business administration, spoke at the Council on Foreign Affairs in New York City, April 22. His address, "Privatization in the Oil Industry: Is It Here to Stay?," discussed the forces that produce privatization in the oil industry in developed and developing nations. In addition, Professor Ghadar spoke on March 26 at the annual meeting of the Petroleum Equipment Suppliers Association in Houston, where he was a featured panelist. In his talk on "Key Roles in International Markets for the Oilfield Service, Equipment and Supply Industries," he discussed the situation in the Middle East and OPEC's role in prices. Also participating on the panel were Calvin D. Sholtess, Executive Vice President, Hughes Tool; Fu Ahi-Da, Foreign Office, People's Republic of China; and Laura Zieira, Hughes Tool do Brazil.

PHILIP GRUB, Aryamehr professor of multinational management, was the Keynote Speaker at the Symposium on Foreign Exchange Management, Capital Markets, Technology Transfer and Economic Development in Shanghai, May 25. His address was entitled "China's Role in the Pacific Rim: Foreign Investment, Global Markets and Economic Development." Other key speakers in the three-day conference included ALEX ANCKONIE, associate professor of Business Administration, who spoke on "Managing Foreign Exchange Risk at the Enterprise Working Level." Grub and Anckonie also presented seminars for executives from China International Trust and Investment, the People's Bank of China, and the Ministry of Finance, on May 22. Also, Grub gave an address on recent developments at George Washington University at the inaugural meeting of the George Washington University Alumni Chapter in Bangkok, Thailand.

FREDERICK GUTHEIM, adjunct professor of urban planning and American civilization, was honored by Mary Washington College's Center for Historic Preservation as a Trustee of America for his contributions to both the conservation of the cultural and the natural heritage of the nation. Gutheim gave the concluding speech at the 50th Anniversary Conference of Greenbelt, Maryland, and the principal address at the annual meeting of the Florida Historical Confederation in St. Augustine.

ROBERT A. HADLEY, associate professor of history, gave an illustrated lecture, "Antiquities of Syria," April 30, to the Washington Society of the Archaeological Institute of America. The lecture was an introduction to the exhibition, "Art and Archaeology of Ancient Syria, from Ebla to Damascus," now on view at the Museum of National History.

ANITA HEAD, professor of law and GW Librarian, served as co-director with Roberta Shaffer of the Library of Congress for the ninth international Association of Law Libraries Course on Law Librarianship, "Crossroads in Comparative Constitutional Law Development," June 28-July 2, at the GW National Law Center. The 45 registered participants represented some 10 countries. One-third were from the United States while several attended from Japan, three western European nations, Australia, Nigeria, Barbados, West Indies, The Republic of China, and Israel.

DEAN CAROL HOLDEN, professor of education, was one of four educators selected by the National University Continuing Education Association to represent the organization at the annual NUCEA meeting in Salford, England, April 13-16. Participants in the three-day conference at the University of Salford included deans and directors of adult and continuing education from the major British higher education institutions, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, Parliament, and the U.K. education ministry. The American visitors discussed the state of adult and continuing education in the U.S. Dean Holden focused on urban, private institutions. The seminar participants discussed proposals for cooperative efforts and current concerns of the U.K.

DENNIS H. HOLMES, associate professor of education, co-chaired with Dr.Michael Kane, President of the Citizen's Council on Education, a panel discussion on "Restructuring the Teaching Profession", July 13-15, at the invitational Conference of National Experts sponsored by the Superintendent and Board of Education of the District of Columbia Public Schools, in Washington, July 13-15. Participants included educational leaders from federal, state and local agencies.

MALCOM LOVELL, distinguished visiting professor of government and business, participated in the National Governors' Association Task Force on Jobs, Growth and Competitiveness Roundtable Discussion on "Approaches to Increasing Productivity in the Workplace," in Cleveland, May 12. Co-chairman of the conference were Governors Gerald L. Baliles, Terry Branstad,and Michael S. Dukakis.

PRESIDENTIAL VISIT -- President Kamel Ajlouni of Jordan University of Science and Technology, center, and Dean, Faculty of Medicine Sa'ad S. Hijazi of the Jordan University, shown with President Lloyd H. Elliott, visited the University on August 5. After discussions with Dr. Elliott, they went to the GW Medical Center and SEAS.

DORN McGRATH, JR., professor of urban and regional planning, was on a panel at the Airport Noise Compatibility National Planning Conference held in Washington June 1-3. The topic was "Airport Compatibility Planning-The Land Side." Professor McGrath also moderated a panel discussing "Part 150 Experiences."

CHRISTINE MELONI, instructor in English for International Students, received a special award at the May meeting of WATESOL (Washington Area Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages) for establishing the WATESOL Working Papers and editing this publication for the past four years. She presented a paper at the 21st annual convention of International TESOL entitled "Designing a Technical Communication Course for Advanced EFL Students" in Miami, Florida, in April.

JONATHAN D. MORENO, associate professor of philosophy and of health care sciences, has been appointed a Fellow of the Joseph and Rose Kennedy Institute of Ethics, Georgetown University.

MARIANNE R. PHELPS, professor of education, chaired the National Conference for College Women Student Leaders and Women of Achievement, held at GW June 5-7. The event drew students from over 160 colleges and universities. The planning committee consisted of Cheryl Biel, Ethel Bothuel and Ann Webster. Gail Hanson, Colleen Jones, Claudia Derricotte, Kathy Kigin and Kathleen Jordan presented workshops at the conference.

THE RESIDENCE HALL ASSOCIATION received the National Research Award at the National Association of College and University Residence Halls Conference, May 23. This award honors a pilot study done by GW undergraduates R. Gumby Elin, Karen Scheibel and Michelle Thompson and commits them to extend the study nationally in the next year. They will present the results at the associations national conference next year as well as the 1988 Association of College Personnel Administrators National Conference in Miami.

MAURICE M. ROUMANI, associate research professor of political science, served as a discussant of papers and chaired the panel, "Political Parties and Ethnic Groups in Israel," at the Third Annual Meeting of the Association for Israel Studies which met at the University of Vermont, June 8-9, 1987. He also delivered a paper entitled "The Anti-Jewish Riots in Libya: Their Origins and Consequences" at the First International Convention of Libyan Jews held in New York City on June 7, 1987. This paper based on archival material, documents and interviews, is part of a larger project research on Jewish-Arab relations in Libya between 1911 and 1967.

ANNE SCAMMON, public relations coordinator for the Career Services Center, was a panelist on the "Wall Street Calling" program at the Middle Atlantic Placement Association/East Coast Placement Officers "Best of Both" Conference, June 14-16, at Fairleigh Dickinson University in New Jersey. The panel discussed media relations in university and college placement offices.

FREDERIC R. SIEGEL, professor of geochemistry, attended the 12th International Geochemical Exploration Symposium, in Orleans, France, April 22-26, 1987. He attended a workshop on Geochemical Anomaly Selection and talked on cumulative frequency plots applied to small sample populations. Dr. Siegel presented a paper with W. Yang (M.S. GW 1985) titled "Geochemical Exploration for Chromite Deposits, Piedmont Upland Province, Mayland," and another titled "Geochemistry and VLF-EM in a Sphalerite Mineralization Find, near St. Jovite, Quebec, Canada." Dr. Siegel also co-chaired the symposium session on data processing.

NOZER SINGPURWALLA, professor of operations research and statistics, has been elected a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He was cited for outstanding research in the statistical theory of reliability, particularly for the theory and practice of software reliability, and for the application of Bayesian statistical theory to expert systems.

GEORGE STEINER, professor of music, received the St. Patrick's Senior Award on May 16 from St. Patrick's Senior Center. The award celebrates his musical contributions to the Washington community over the past 50 years and includes a citation and substantial cash presentation. Professor Steiner recently completed his 22nd season as music director of the Alexandria Symphony Orchestra and has announced his retirement from the position. He conducted his final concert on May 31.

PETER F. THALL, associate professor of statistics, delivered a speech at the eighth annual meeting of the Society for Clinical Trials in Atlanta in May. He spoke on "A Two-stage Design for Choosing Among Several Experimental Treatments and a Control in Phase III Clinical Trials."

ROBERT H. WALKER, professor of American civilization, was a lecturer and consultant in April, May and June in seven nations sponsored by four Fulbright Commissions, the United States Information Agency, the Japan-U.S.-Friendship Commission, and several individual universities. Also, his paper "The U.S. Constitution and Social Change: From Liberties to Rights," was the plenary lecture at the Nordic Association for American Studies, and was also delivered at the Sorbonne, the Free University of Berlin, Shanghai International Studies University, Doshisha and Kansai Universities in Japan. While in Bergen, Norway, Walker addressed "The Non-Directions of Contemporary Fiction," while in Oslo, Norway and Uppsala, Sweden he addressed "The Religious and Political New Right." At the Swiss National Technical Institute in Zurich, the subject was "The Cultural Origins of U.S. Foreign Policy," and "Reform and American National Character" at Sophia University, Tokyo.

WILLIAM B. WEGLICKI, professor of medicine and of philosophy, presented a research paper at the Fourth International Congress on Oxygen Radicals, June 27-July 3, entitled "Spin Trapping in Models of Cardiac Injury." Weglicki also co-chaired a session on "Free Radical Generation and Inhibition in Cardiovascular Injury" and presented an overview of progress in this area. Held at the University of California, San Diego, the meeting was attended by more than 400 scientists from Asia, Europe, U.S.A. and other countries. In addition, Weglicki was invited to be a member of the organizing committee of "Oxygen Society" for scientists working in this rapidly progressing field.

LAWRENCE WINKLER, professor of education, was a member of the Committee on Accreditation and Training at the American Psychological Association meeting for Counseling Psychologists, Atlanta, Georgia, April 3-6. This is the third national meeting in 35 years to chart the course for upcoming years in the counseling psychology field. Winkler also chaired the School Guidance evaluation for NASCEC of the University of the District of Columbia, April 7-9.

PUBLICATIONS

EDWARD D. BERKOWITZ, associate professor of history, a book, Disabled Policy: America's Programs for the Handicapped, The Cambridge University Press, New York, London and Sidney, Australia. The publication carries the imprimatur of the Twentieth Century Fund.

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, a book review of More Die of Heartbreak by Saul Bellow, in Washington Post Book World, June 7. Also, a new edition of The Presidency (Houghton Mifflin), first published in 1968 (American Heritage), subsequent editions printed 1972, 1976, by McGraw-Hill.

HERBERT J. DAVIS, associate professor of business administration, a co-authored article, "Managerial Values and Multiculturalism: Some Implications for Cross-Cultural Management and Practice" in RVB Research Papers, Vol. 7, No. 2, June, 1987, pp. 3-10 (published by the Research Institute of Management Science, Delft, the Netherlands.)

RON DUTCHER, research scientist, science communication studies, Continuing Education Division, a co-authored article, "Plants in Space" in the Annual Review of Plant Physiology, Vol. 38, 1987.

THE DEPARTMENT OF ENGINEERING ADMINISTRATION was featured at the May meeting of the Transportation Research Forum, International Chapter, devoted to "Current Research Activities at the GW Department of Engineering Administration." Three doctoral students described their dissertation research: Alexander Tsolakis, factors influencing ship size in U.S. bulk trades; Nabil Fahd, structure of liner freight rates; and Louai A. Alassar, accident characteristics of large trucks. The three dissertations are under the direction of Robert C. Waters, professor of engineering administration.

JOSEPH L. GASTWIRTH, professor of statistics and economics, and SAMUEL W. GREENHOUSE, professor of statistics, a paper, "Estimating a Common Relative Risk: Application in Equal Employment," in Journal of the American Statistical Association, Vol. 82, No. 397, March 1987.

JOHN W. KENDRICK, professor of economics, two articles: "Service Sector Productivity" in Business Economics, April 1987; and "Happiness is Personal Productivity Growth," in CHALLENGE Magazine of Economic Affairs, May/ June, 1987.

ALI M. KIPER, professor of engineering, two co-authored research papers, "Optimal Control of Energy Utilization in Continuous Heating Furnaces," and "Optimal Heating Conditions of Fuel-Fired Batch Furnaces." The papers were presented at the Metallurgical Society of AIME annual meeting in Denver, February 23-26.

SAR A. LEVITAN, professor emeritus of economics, and ISAAC SHAPIRO, research associate, an article, "What's Missing in Welfare Reform?," July-August issue of CHALLENGE, Magazine of Economic Affairs.

S. ROBERT LICHTER, assistant research professor of political science, an article, "Elite Ideology and Risk Perception in Nuclear Energy Policy," American Political Science Review, Vol. 81, No. 2, June, 1987.

J. HOUSTON MILLER, associate professor of chemistry, a co-authored paper, "Chemistry of Molecular Growth Processes in Flames," recently published in Science, Vol. 236. The paper received the National Bureau of Standard's top honor for technical exposition, the Edward Uhler Condon Award.

JOHN D. MORENO, associate professor of philosophy and health care sciences, an article, "Moral Equity or Cultural Integrity: A Dilemma of Genetic Counseling," in Seminars in Perinatology, 11:3, July 1987.

BENJAMIN NIMER, professor of political science and international affairs, an article, "National Liberation and the Conflicting Terms of Discourse in South Africa: An Interpretation" in Political Communication and Persuasion, Vol. 3, No. 4, 1986.

WALTER ROBERTS, diplomat in residence, SIA, a book, Tito, Mihailovic and the Allies, 1941-1945, third edition, paperback, Duke University Press, 1987.

STEPHEN C. SMITH, assistant professor of economics, a co-authored article with Meng-Hae Ye, "The Behavior of Labor Managed Firms Under Uncertainty" in Annals of Public and Cooperative Economy, Vol. 57, No. 1, March, 1987.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT/PROGRAMMER, full-time, Biostatistics Center. (Individual to assist in data management and analysis for medical research projects. Applicants should have programming experience in SAS and strong analytical skills. B.A./B.S. required.) Rockville work site. Send resumes to Brenda Russo, GW Biostatistics Center, 6110 Executive Boulevard, #750, Rockville, MD 20852. No phone calls, please.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Department of Pharmacology. (Individual to investigate the effects of drugs on brain noradrenergic neurons. B.S. degree in science and experience in single unit recording from CNS neurons is required. A knowledge of neuroanatomy, histology and operant behavior is helpful.) Call Dr. Valentino at 994-2918, or send curriculum vitae to Dr. Valentino, Department of Pharmacology, George Washington University Medical Center, 2300 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Institute for Disease Prevention. (Individual responsible for a special project involving bile acid metabolism and colon carcinogenesis. Must have a B.S. in biological science. Experience is therefore required in gas-liquid chromatography (GLC), high pressure liquid chromatography (HPLC), thin layer chromatography (TLC), and liquid scintillation counting of radioactive bile acids; analysis of lipoproteins using density gradient ultracentrifugation, column chromatography and polyacrylamide gel electrophoresis; and statistical analysis using SAS.) Salary is negotiable according to experience. Contact Oliver Alabaster, M.D. or Hans Fromm, M.D., Department of Medicine, 421 Ross Hall, 994-2888 or 994-4418.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Institute for Disease Prevention. (Individual with a strong background in chemistry, with at least five years relevant experience. The successful candidate will have extensive familiarity with the radioimmunoassay of polypeptide hormones, the radio-labeling of hormonal antigens, and the development of specific antisera. In addition, broad experience is required in protein analysis methodology, including high performance liquid chromatography, gel filtration, affinity chromatography, and electrofocussing techniques. Duties will include the development of new radio-immunoassays for gastrointestinal polypeptide hormones, study of the immunoheterogeity patterns of these hormones, and an exploration of their secretogogue controls and physiological actions. Responsibilities will include data collection and analysis, literature surveys, and administration and modification of experimental procedures. Salary is negotiable.) Qualified candidates should send a resume to Dr. Ken Becker, Chief of Endocrinology, George Washington University Medical Center, 2150 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington D.C., 20037.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, half-time, Science Communication Studies, Division of Continuing Education. (Individual responsible for conducting literature searches and library research, abstracting scientific articles, writing and editing scientific reports in the biological, medical, and aerospace sciences. Bachelor's degree in biology or related field and knowledge of the library is required.) Send resume to F. Ronald Dutcher, 515 22nd Street, Suite 402, Washington, D.C. 20037.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, full-time, Department of Anatomy. (Individual to conduct research involving mechanisms of interaction between polypeptide hormones and the central nervous system. Applicants should possess a Ph.D. in a biological science and have prior experience in the techniques of radiolabelling and purification of protein compounds, in vitro radioreceptor assay, autoradiography, cell fractionation, and light and transmission electron microscopy.) Applicants should send resume to Dr. Raymond J. Walsh, Department of Anatomy, George Washington University, 2300 I Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, full-time, Department of Medicine, Division of Infectious Diseases. (Individual to research in tropical disease laboratory. Bachelor's degree and five years experience required. Must have experience in parasitology, tissue culture, and immunochemistry.) Call for interview: Dr. S. James, George Washington University, 994-8849.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

September 14, 1987 (482)

GW Report

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

FRENCH OUTLINES PROGRESS AND GOALS AT FACULTY ASSEMBLY

In remarks at the September 9 meeting of the Faculty Assembly in Lisner Auditorium, Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French took note of what he called "the simultaneous emergence of a stunning cluster of technological developments on the campus, each with great potential for enhancing our academic programs."

Dr. French enumerated our "state of the art" telecommunications system with its capability for voice, data and video communications; the compact disc catalog in the Gelman Library; the completion of the television and radio teaching facility in the former church and parsonage on 20th Street; and the current activity at GWTV in putting on teleconferences as well as the station's coming capability to link 120 classrooms and conference rooms for the reception of instructional video materials.

The University will subscribe to a network that provides the campus daily with seven hours of foreign language news broadcasts in Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, French, German, Japanese, Chinese and Russian, Vice President French announced.

On July 1, the old Center for Academic and Administrative Computing was divided into three units for administrative purposes. The section responsible for academic computing now reports to Dr. French's office, and he has appointed an Advisory Council for Academic Computing and Information Services.

"The prospective integration of all these information-related technologies begins to be exciting," he commented, adding, "We need to be conscious of the changes (the technologies will bring about), to understand them and direct them in ways that enhance rather than subvert what is valuable in the university tradition."

Reporting on the University Seminars, monthly meetings of groups composed of half GW faculty and half counterparts from other area institutions, he said that four seminars continue from last year and that two will be added. Professor of Psychiatry and Public Policy Jerrold Post will be the convener for a University Seminar on Political Psychology. University Professor of Philosophy Peter Caws will convene a seminar on the Human Sciences.

In announcing the inauguration of the University's new Distinguished Scholars Program, Dr. French said, "The first two alumni who will be honored are truly stellar figures: Harden McConnell, the Robert Eckles Swain Professor of Chemistry at Stanford, and Michael Kammen, the Newton C. Farr Professor of American History and Culture at Cornell." Both will come to campus later in the semester, meet with students and faculty in the appropriate departments and deliver public lectures.

Commenting on enrollments, Vice President French reported that thanks to initiatives by the Admissions Office and the help of student and faculty volunteers, the number of black students in this year's entering class is 50 percent larger than last year. French announced the appointment of Keith Pettigrew, a May graduate of Columbian College, as a special assistant in the Office of Academic Affairs. Pettigrew was the first student recipient of GW's Martin Luther King medal last January.

Speaking of the planning process now underway within the University, he observed, "Launching this process is an undeniable exertion but I am confident it will bring rewards not to be obtained in any other way." Among these rewards he listed the fact that "we finally will put ourselves in a position

continued on back

ELIZABETH CLARK-LEWIS IS 1987-88 BANNEKER PROFESSOR

Elizabeth Clark-Lewis

Elizabeth Clark-Lewis, a postdoctoral research associate at the National Museum of American History and professor of history at Northern Virginia Community College, is the University's Banneker Professor for this academic year. She is the seventh person to occupy the post. The Banneker Professorship is sponsored by the GW Center for Washington Area Studies which was established in 1980. It is named for Benjamin Banneker, a black man who was an early surveyor in the city of Washington. Since July 1, the Center for Washington Area Studies has been organizationally located in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

Professor Clark-Lewis will tach a course on the history of Washington, DC, in the fall semester.

An authority on family history and oral history research, she is a graduate of Howard University (B.A. and M.A., both in American history) and of the University of Maryland (Ph.D. in the area of American studies). Her doctoral research centered on gender and sex role socialization, ethnohistorical and ethnographic research in American culture and contemporary African-American community development. Dr. Clark-Lewis is a family history research associate, Genealogy and Local History Division of the State Library of Pennsylvania.

Associated with Northern Virginia Community College since 1973, she has also taught at the University of the District of Columbia. In 1979-80, she was colloquium coordinator at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University/Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond. She has been a research associate at the Alexandria, Virginia, Archeological Research Center, and coordinator for the "Discovering Community Through the Humanities" Project of the Alexandria City Public Schools. In 1983-84, Professor Clark-Lewis was historical research director for the Gums Springs Museum Project, Center for the Study of History Now, in Haddonfield, New Jersey.

Awards she has received are the Letitia Woods Brown Memorial Publication Prize from the Association of Black Women Historians (1986) and the J. R. Clarke Award for excellence in instruction from the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges (1985).

Dr. Clark-Lewis's publications include a section, "This Work Had A End: African-American Domestic Workers in Washington, D.C., 1910-1840" in Women and Work, edited by Mary Beth Norton and Carol Groneman (Ithaca: Cornell University Press, 1987).

A frequent speaker at professional meetings and conferences, Dr. Clark-Lewis holds memberships in the American Historical Association, the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History, Afro-American Historical and Genealogical Society and Oral Historians of the Mid-Atlantic Region.

CBS CORRESPONDENT Bob Schieffer, left, shared a laugh with MBA candidates Kelly Pratt, center, and Scarla Blackwell, before interviewing them September 3 for a network spot on advances of women professionals. SGBA Dean Norma Maine Loeser was also interviewed by Schieffer for that day's evening news.

LIBRARY SYMPOSIUM TO BE WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23

"The Library Catalog--bringing Order to the Universe of Knowledge" is the topic for the day-long symposium sponsored by the University Librarian and the Vice President for Academic Affairs on Wednesday, September 23. The free symposium will be held in the Marvin Theatre from 10 am to 5 pm.

"Knowledge Systems and the 3 x 5 Card" will be the subject of the morning session (10 am). Mary Briggs, assistant professor, School of Library Science, Columbia University, will speak and a discussion will follow. Respondents will be: GW Professor of Philosophy William B. Griffith; George Mason University Professor of Information Systems and Systems Engineering Larry Kerschberg; and Director Robert G. Zich of the Planning Office of the Library of Congress.

"Riding the Tail of the Comet: Technology and the Expanding Intellectual Universe" will be discussed at the afternoon session (2 pm). Martin L. Ernst, research affiliate, Program on Information Resources Policy, Harvard University, will speak. Respondents will be Georgetown University Professor of Chemistry Joseph E. Early; Associate Director Patricia Molholt of Folsom Library, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute; and GW Associate Professor of Management Science Philip W. Wirtz.

University Librarian Sharon J. Rogers will serve as moderator for the symposium sessions,

A celebration of the completion of the remodeling

continued on back

CARL TROESTER RECEIVES AWARD OF HONOR IN CANADA

The Canadian Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation (CAPHER) has presented its award of honor to Carl Troester Jr., professorial lecturer in human kinetics and leisure studies, in recognition of his "distinguished service to the profession and his unremitting zeal in promoting its aims and objects." This is the first time the award has gone to an individual outside Canada. Created in 1948, the award has been given to 108 recipients since that date.

The presentation took place in Vancouver, British Columbia, at the June meeting of CAPHER, held jointly with the International Council for Health, Physical Education and Recreation. Present at the event were 750 delegates from 27 countries.

A 1937 graduate of Kirksville State Teachers College in Missouri, Troester received his doctorate in education from Columbia University in 1942. He has been active in health, physical education and recreation organizations since 1948. At that time, he left the faculty of Syracuse University to accept the position of executive secretary and treasurer of the American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. In 1957, he was instrumental in organizing the International Council on Health, Physical Education and Recreation. He has been honorary secretary general of the International Council since its establishment 30 years ago. Professor Troester came to George Washington in July, 1976.

JOB FAIR ON CAMPUS FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 18

Job seekers and newcomers to the Washington, DC, area can learn more about local employment and community service opportunities at the second annual Job and Community Services Information Fair Friday, September 18, between 11 am and 4 pm in the Marvin Center.

Sponsored by the GW Career Services Center and the Ethiopian Community Center, the event, titled "Jobs and Services '87--New Opportunities for Newcomers," is designed to provide immigrants and refugees with information on community services and employment opportunities available in DC. The job fair will recognize the effort of the District government and major employers of immigrants and refugees at a 4:30 to 6:30 pm reception in Room 413 of the Marvin Center. For more information, call 328-3102.

LIBRARY SYMPOSIUM

continued from front

of the Gelman Library is planned for 4 pm in the library, 2130 H Street, NW.

At 4:30 pm, there will be a reception to mark the opening of an exhibition of works by GW faculty authors in the Special Collections area in the library's second floor. The exhibition and opening are sponsored by the Friends of the Libraries and the Faculty Senate Committee on Research.

All the day's events are open to everyone in the University community.

ANNE PALUMBO, professorial lecturer in art, engaged in a lively discussion with her audience following her September 2 First Wednesday lecture on Wyeth's Helga pictures.

MEN'S ATHLETICS MARKETING-MEDIA STAFF RESTRUCTURED

The Men's Athletic Department has announced a restructuring of its administrative staff which affects three staff members, according to Steve Bilsky, director of athletics for men.

Ed McKee, formerly director of sports marketing, has been named director of sports marketing and media relations, an expansion of duties in the area of media relations. Named to the newly created position of coordinator of sports marketing and promotions is Rob Goodman. Continuing as director of sports information is Doug Gould. Gould and Goodman will report to McKee.

McKee joined the University last year after 15 years of experience at Special Olympics, Inc. headquarters here in Washington, in the Indiana Pacers' front office and at Indiana State University.

Goodman most recently served as director of media relations for the Kansas City Royals' Triple A minor league affiliate at Omaha. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Temple University, 1984 and 1986 respectively.

Gould is entering his 19th year as sports information director for the Colonials. He is a 1965 graduate of the University of Maryland.

It has also been announced that Jim Rota, men's wrestling coach for the past 10 years, will also coach men's golf. New office manager in Men's Athletics is Jeanne Hurst. She replaces long-time office manager Sarah Mundy, now executive secretary to Smith Center Director Michael Peller.

BRIEFLY. . .

A Booksigning Session is scheduled for tomorrow, Tuesday, September 15, from 12:30 to 1:15 pm with with Jean McGarry, assistant professor of English, signing copies of her book The Very Rich Hours.

Jenny McKean Moore Writer-in-Residence Richard McCann will present a reading tomorrow, Tuesday, September 15, at 8 pm in Room B-120 of the Academic Center. Admission is free.

FRENCH OUTLINES PROGRESS

continued from front

to make truly comparative decisions on resource allocation and, most important, everyone will know the criteria and procedures by which these decisions have been made."

In closing, Dr. French emphasized "our University's unique responsibility for civic education in this society. . . . There is no institution better positioned than GW to take the lead in public discourse." Furthermore, he continued, "education and democracy share one powerful conviction: confidence in the self-corrective powers of human intelligence. This frames the unique civic task of our institution. Our graduates should constitute a continuous stream of new citizens not only well informed, not only capable of running the system, but committed to the progressive improvement of the conduct of the public's business. I ask all members of the faculty to reflect on the relationship between their particular teaching and research and the formation of a new citizenry."

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Department of Medicine, cardiovascular research. (Individual to perform surgical procedures, cellular isolation, subcellular fractionation/centrifugation, enzymology, blood gas measurements, animal anesthesia and ICU, maintaining inventory of laboratory supplies, and collection/analysis of experimental data. A bachelor's degree in the biomedical sciences and at least one year experience with small animal surgery and cardiac arrest models is required.) Please send resume to Dr. W. Weglicki, Department of Medicine, GWUMC, Ross Hall Room 409, 2300 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

---

National Law Center Faculty will be honored at the September 17 luncheon of the DC chapter of The George Washington Law Alumni Association at the National Lawyers Club. NLC Dean Jermoe A. Barron will speak on "The State of Legal Education." For more information, call 46420.

The GW Club September 17 Round Table Dinner Discussion will revolve aroud the Constitution. NLC Dean Jerome A. BArron will lead the discussion. Call 46610 for reservations.

The Wellness Resource Center is sponsoring a free Quit Smoking Workshop from September 21 to October 1 from noon to 1 pm. Pre-registration is required. Call 47247. There is also a Low Impact Aerobics Class in progress. The class is free. Call 47247.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

ARVIL V. ADAMS, professor of education policy and of economics, was interviewed on August 28 by WTKN-Pittsburgh. He commented on growing labor shortages among service workers.

LINDA GRANT DePAUW, professor of American history, was interviewed for an article which appeared in the Chicago Tribune on Sunday, July 26. The article featured Professor DePauw's views on the government's promise of equal pay and equal opportunity for advancement for women who enlist in the military.

SEYYED HOSSEIN NASR, university professor of Islamic studies, was interviewed by Smithsonian World host David McCullough on aspects of Islam as part of a PBS special on Islam which examined the history of Muslim culture. The special aired nationally on the PBS network on July 22.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JOHNATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, delivered a lecture, "Poetry, Painting, Calligraphy--The Scholarly Arts of East Asia," to the Luce Scholars at Princeton University on August 25.

LINDA GRANT DePAUW, professor of American history, spoke at a summer institute "Women And The Constitution 1787-1987," July 20-24, in Charlottesville, Virginia. The institute was sponsored by the Virginia Council on the Status of Women, the Virginia Women Attorneys Association, the Curry School of Education, and the University of Virginia. Professor DePauw also addressed the Navy Women's National Convention Association at its second annual conference during the week of July 27. She discussed women and the military.

JANET C. HEDDESHEIMER, professor of education and research professor of psychology and behavioral science, delivered an address June 26 at the National Conference on Medical Student Indebtedness, sponsored by the Association of American Medical Colleges.

SYLVIA KOHRN, manager of Lisner Auditorium, was one of more than 900 managers attending the 1987 International Association of Auditorium Managers (IAAM) 62nd Annual Conference and Trade Show, August 1-4 in Washington, D.C. The conference included programs and seminars on providing better service and marketing.

PETER F. KLAREN, professor of history, has been appointed for a three year term (1987-1990) to the screening committee for Fulbright scholar awards in Latin American history of the Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES).

September 21, 1987

GW Report

(483)

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

TRUSTEE CARR SPEAKS AT OPENING CONVOCATION

"Washington, the larger city that includes parts of Maryland and Virginia has truly begun to emerge as a complete capital city only in the last two decades," University Trustee Oliver T. Carr Jr. said at the University's Opening Convocation, September 11 in the Marvin Theatre. His subject was "Washington, the City: Celebrating our Community."

"The capital city includes a rich, diverse accumulation of people working at a broad variety of tasks in an environment supportive of the possibilities for a very good life," he continued. "There is no reason to believe the city will not continue to flourish, especially as it turns more toward a constantly growing financial activity. . . . All signs point towards the continuing development of a strong, diverse, well-balanced economy with at least three major factors. One is obviously the presence of the federal government. The second is the amassed brain power concentrated in our area -- with it properly focused and active, we can accomplish anything -- and third, the presence of the international community, both residentially and institutionally."

The arts, Trustee Carr said, have flourished in the past decades and "are a significant element in the life of our community." He drew attention to Arena Stage, the Kennedy Center, "a dramatically improved National Symphony Orchestra and our wonderful galleries."

"As we celebrate our progress, we must acknowledge our problems," he commented, stating, "even with the prosperity that is currently almost overflowing the region, approximately 100,000 citizens are poor, unemployed, ill and institutionalized. They need to be better included in our very affluent society, not ostracized from it; and all of us need to be working at that task."

"Like the city," Carr said, "the university is undergoing a dramatic change. It is emerging as a significant center of learning. Enough cannot be said of the faculty and administration who have labored diligently to bring the University to its present position of being poised to pursue its goal of academic excellence." President Elliott, he said, "deserves our respect and acclaim not only for his past efforts but for his wholehearted support of this goal. . . . There is a pervasive feeling of newfound energy. Like the city, the university is emerging as a significant force in the region and the nation. Both have the possibility of becoming major participants on the international stage as

continued on back

University Trustee Oliver T. Carr Jr., left, talked with President Lloyd H. Elliott before the September 11 Opening Convocation.

NEW FACULTY ASSOCIATES IN PUBLIC POLICY

Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French has announced the appointment of five new faculty associates in public policy for the Graduate Institute for Policy Education and Research. Those appointed are: Professor of Economics James R. Barth; Associate Professor of Urban and Regional Planning Dennis E. Gale; Associate Professors of Public Administration Jill F. Kasle and James E. Kee; and Assistant Professor of Political Science J. Philip Rogers.

Faculty members are appointed as faculty associates in public policy on the basis of their participation in public policy research, teaching of courses taken by public policy students, and their involvement in the programs and activities of the Graduate Institute for Policy Education and Research. The Steering Committee of the Graduate Institute solicits nominations based on these criteria from current faculty associates and department chairs. Appointments are made by the Vice President for Academic Affairs upon the recommendation of the Dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

The new appointees bring the total number of faculty associates in public policy to 56. The Graduate Institute for Policy Education and Research was established in 1986 by the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences to further the improvement of government and public policy through research and education. Its programs and activities provide support for policy research by both faculty and students, promote interaction between the academic and policy communities, and seek to expand the resources available for graduate studies in public policy at the University. The director of the Graduate Institute is Professor of Education Policy and of Economics Arvil Van Adams.

HEALTH FAIR IS SEPTEMBER 30

The third annual GW Health Fair will be held on Wednesday, September 30, from 12 noon to 6 pm, in the Charles E. Smith Center's main arena.

Over 30 free health screening and active learning centers will offer information on blood pressure, fitness, oral health, vision, foot health, diet analysis, cancer risk appraisal and more. There will be mini-workshops on massage at 12:30, 1:30 and 4 pm. Samples of healthy food, an alcohol awareness van and the seatbelt "convincer" will be other attractions.

Health Fair '87 is free. The entire University community is invited (ID required). The fair is sponsored by the Wellness Resource Center, Department of Human Kinetics and Leisure Studies. For more information, call 46927.

TWO NEW DEPARTMENTS FORMED

The former Department of Communication and Theatre was divided into two new departments, effective July 1: the Department of Communication, chaired by Robert S. Fortner, associate professor of communication; and the Department of Theatre and Dance, chaired by Alan G. Wade, associate professor of theatre.

Department of Communication regular faculty members are Jane Ashton, Dona Durham, Robert Fortner, Steven Keller, Ellen Murray, William Reynolds, Christopher Sterling, Joan Thiel, Mark Tolstedt and Marie Travis. Departmental secretary is Fiona Burnett. The department is located in Building YY, 812 20th Street, NW, telephone, 994-6350.

Department of Theatre and Dance regular faculty are Nathan Garner, Leslie Jacobson (on leave 1987-88),

continued on back

CHRISTENSEN NAMED ASSISTANT VICE PRESIDENT FOR GW TELEVISION

Ted J. Christensen has been named to the newly created position of assistant vice president for GW Television (GWTV), effective Fall Semester 1987.

As director of the University's multichannel broadcast facility, Christensen is responsible for further development of campus-wide efforts in the use of televised instruction. His duties include expanding GW's national and international teleconference programs and developing degree programs as well as continuing professional education programs for off-campus broadcast.

"Mr. Christensen's appointment could not be more timely nor his background more appropriate. He arrives in the very semester when GW's information system network becomes operational and our Communication Department begins operating out of its new teaching facility," Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French said.

Christensen comes to GW from the University of Wyoming where he was manager of Telecommunications Services. Prior to that he served as station manager, and later as assistant general manager of Arizona State University's KAET-TV. At Arizona State, he also served as coordinator of instructional television programs. A former president of the Western Educational Society for Telecommunications, he served on the board of the Arizona Adult Education Association.

Ted J. Christensen

Christensen earned both a bachelor's and master's degree in speech with emphases in instructional broadcasting, and radio and television from Utah State University.

CARR SPEAKS AT CONVOCATION

continued from front

well. To achieve success at each level of activity, the city and the university must continue the important support of linkage that now exists between the citizens of the region and the members of the university family." Trustee Carr emphasized the need for training young citizens for leadership, particularly in the field of business. "The young must, once again, be given the opportunity to learn that service in business can be honorable, productive and profitable," he stated, adding that all students should have a rich, varied experience and preparation for civic responsibility in their educations.

President Lloyd H. Elliott, in brief remarks, looked back 17 years and referred to what he characterized as "a misunderstood and misdirected criticism" by an architectural critic of the Marvin Center as "a defiant anti-urban fortress." He declared, "Time and use of this facility have proven Wolf Von Eckardt wrong. Over the years, I have seen this acquaintance of community to campus become a partnership. Fortunately this great city and this aspiring University have found an expanding common concern. Increasingly, each strengthens the other, and while tensions will ebb and flow, the mutuality of benefit accrues to all members of both town and gown."

Professor of Art and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Faculty Senate Lilien F. Robinson, in welcoming new students, called attention to the rich diversity of the members of the faculty as well as to the cultural resources of the city.

General Alumni Association President John R. Manning said he hoped all students would aspire to membership in the "exclusive" alumni association and noted there are some 90, 000 GW alumni on Planet Earth.

GW Student Association President Adam Freedman observed, "Every year at George Washington we have more and more to celebrate. As the city has changed with the help of Mr. Carr, our campus has changed with the help of Dr. Elliott. I am proud to say that more and more of our students are coming from the DC community and clearly we need to continue to attract more and more of the best and the brightest the DC School System has to offer."

Keith Pettigrew, assistant to the Vice President for Academic Affairs, in reading his poem written for the occasion, ended with the words, "My how you've changed DC, I'm proud to call you home."

NEW FACULTY member Rodica Simion, assistant professor of mathematics, right, talked with President Lloyd H. Elliott at the opening of the Dimock Gallery's exhibition of works by graphic designers who are alumni of the visual communications program. The exhibition continues through October 8.

THE "NEW" GW CLUB INVITES MEMBERS

The GW Club has undergone extensive renovation over the summer and invites members of the University community to visit.

"We think you will like what you see,"says Harvey Snyder, club membership chairman, "and we invite you to consider membership." He points out that the club provides a place on campus away from offices, laboratories and classrooms. He says that while the University provides a significant degree of support, very modest individual membership dues make it possible to provide a wide range of programs there might not be otherwise. Lectures, breakfasts with speakers, afternoon teas and receptions, dinner programs and special holiday events are planned regularly. Complimentary coffee for members is served daily in the "Tavern" from 10 to 11 am.

For more information on membership, call 46610, or visit the GW Club on the third floor of the Marvin Center, at 800 21st Street, NW.

TWO NEW DEPARTMENTS

continued from front

Nancy Johnson, William Pucilowsky, Bradley Sabelli, James Slaughter (visiting 1987-88), Alan Wade and Maida Withers. Executive aide is Judy Anis. Departmental secretary is Juanice El. Shop supervisor is David Coles. Departmental address is Room 227, Marvin Center, telephone, 994-8072.

NEWSNOTES

PUBLICATIONS

HOWARD GILLETTE JR., professor of American civilization, and RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history, articles, "The City in American Culture," and "Architecture and the City," respectively, in American Urbanism, Greenwood Press, 1987. Gillette served as co-editor of the book with Zane L. Miller

S.H. NASR, university professor of Islamic studies, Three Muslim Sages, Urdu translation by M. Monawwar, Lahore, Islamic Cultural Centre, 1987.

CHARLES T. STEWART, professor of economics, a book, Technology Transfer and Human Factors (Lexington Books, 1987) which received the Ohira Memorial Foundation prize, awarded in Tokyo June 12.

BRIEFLY. . .

A lecture on "The Mind of the Terrorist: Implications for Anti-Terrorist Policy," will be given by Professor of Psychiatry and Public Policy Jerrold Post, tomorrow, Tuesday, September 22, in Room 405, Marvin Center. The 2 to 4 pm lecture, and discussion following, are sponsored by the Security Policy Studies Program.

At the GW Club tea, Wednesday, September 30, the Honorable Maria-Teresa Butler, minister counsellor, deputy chief of mission, Embassy of the Commonwealth of the Bahamas, will speak on life in the Bahamas. There is no charge for the 3:30 to 5 pm event, but reservations are required. Call 46610 by Monday, September 28.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE, half-time, Medical Center, "Attention Shifting and Hypnosis" research project. (Individual to investigate the relationship between voluntary and involuntary attention shifting rate and hypnotizability. Responsibilities will include recruiting research participants, administering procedures in accordance with the study protocol and data collection and analysis. M.A. or Ph.D. in psychology or related field with training or experience in hypnosis and interviewing techniques required.) A one-year position. Contact William D. Fabian, Jr., Ph.D., George Washington University Medical Center, (202) 944-3312.

RESEARCH SCIENTIST, part-time, Intergovernmental Health Policy Project (IHPP). (Individual responsible for ongoing knowledge of significant health policy developments in 10 states, conducting research projects and preparing summaries of trends in state legislation. Other responsibilities include responding to information needs of project constituents, assisting with the Project's newsletter and developing workshops and conferences. Some representation at functions may be required. A master's degree in health care administration, economics or public policy and three to five years of health policy experience required. Excellent research, writing and verbal skills, as well as a familiarity with general health policy issues, federal and state Medicaid policies required. Prior experience in state or federal government and computer knowledge helpful.) Application deadline, October 2. Send resume to Richard E. Merritt, Director, Intergovernmental Health Policy Project, 2011 I Street, N.W., Ste. 200, Washington, D.C. 20006.

RESEARCH SCIENTIST, full-time, Intergovernmental Health Policy Project (IHPP). (Individual to produce at least two policy research papers on AIDS during the year, assist with the Project's AIDS newsletter, respond to numerous information requests, conduct research projects, prepare summaries of recent trends in state legislation and represent the Center at appropriate occasions. A master's degree in health care administration, economics or public policy and three to five years of health policy experience is required. Must have excellent research, writing and verbal skills and general knowledge of health policy issues.) Application deadline, October 2. Send resume to Richard E. Merritt, Director, Intergovernmental Health Policy Project, 2011 I Street, N.W. Suite. 200, Washington, D.C. 20006.

RESEARCH SCIENTIST, full-time, Intergovernmental Health Policy Project (IHPP). (Individual to work with the IHPP director in establishing and maintaining a clearinghouse on state AIDS policy initiatives and to produce a newsletter summarizing related policy developments. Responsible for formulating a major agenda for the Center, addressing requests for technical assistance, maintaining working relationships with AIDS interest organizations and representing the Center at functions and public presentations. A master's degree in public health, health care administration, economics, or public policy and three years of experience with policy research on AIDS required. Needs excellent research, writing and verbal skills and familiarity with general health policy issues.) Application deadline, October 2. Contact Richard E. Merritt, Director, Intergovernmental Health Policy Project, 2011 I Street, N.W. Suite 200, Washington, D.C. 20006.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

September 28, 1987

GW Report

(484)

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

ROSALYNN CARTER SPEAKS AT 10TH ANNIVERSARY OF PROGRAM FOR THE GIFTED

"I can't tell you how much the program means," said former First Lady Rosalynn Carter in informal remarks at the September 19 celebration of the 10th anniversary of the Reading Center's After School Program for Gifted Children. She was introduced by Dr. Florence Hesser, Reading Center director, who originated the program and suggested to President and Mrs. Carter that their daughter Amy, then 10 years old, participate.

"Jimmy always said," Mrs. Carter continued, "that if a child read, it didn't matter what else they did. That would always stay with them." She went on, "This experience helped Amy, not only in reading. She had a mental block about math." Mrs. Carter praised Amy's teacher, Florence Fasanelli, who "unblocked whatever it was that was holding Amy back in math. It was a wonderful experience for her." Amy Carter participated in the program for all four years she was in Washington. During that time she was a student at nearby Stevens School.

Jason Stauffer, who was a member of the original group of 16 children with Amy, said the program provided stimulation. "If you have a stimulator, you learn to expand your horizons," he observed, "and eventually you set your own limits: that is, you can be unlimited. It's like trying to read by a very dim light and someone turns on a very bright light; you just make much better progress. I still fool around a bit with magic," he said. "The performances in the program are important. They help with self-esteem." Now in his second year at Columbia Union College, Jason is majoring in business and enjoying it and also has his own catering business.

Dr. Hesser announced that the occasion marked the beginning of a fund-raising effort for the program. "Today we want to establish three funds," she explained, "a young scholars fund; a fund for an excellence in teaching program to pay teachers; and a research validation project, to validate the program for replication."

The group of some 250 attending the event was made up of former participants and their families, teachers, staff and friends, including Carol Koch, also one of the original 16. Carol is a clerk/typist in the Grounds Division of the Physical Plant Department. She is currently enrolled in I-PREP, an intensive college preparatory course in the Reading Center. The 4 to 6 pm event was held at the Georgetown home of Mrs. Alfred Friendly, where the first meeting for the program was held 10 years ago.

ROSALYNN CARTER, left, was greeted by Reading Center Director Florence Hesser, center, and Program Director Judy Findlay when she arrived for the 10th anniversary celebration of the After School Program for Gifted Children.

NEW FULL-TIME, NON-MEDICAL FACULTY THIS FALL

New members of the full-time, non-medical faculty as of September 1, 1987, are:

AMIT P. AGRAWAL, visiting assistant professor of engineering and applied science;
GULAY ASKAR, associate research professor of engineering and applied science;
SYLVEN SEID BECK, visiting assistant professor of education;
DJAMEL BELLOUT, visiting assistant professor of statistics;
NATHAN JUDE BROWN, assistant professor of political science;
SHEILA MARY CAHILL, instructor in special education;
VIVIAN MARTEL CAMERLENGO, visiting assistant professor of education;
JANE TURNER CENSER, visiting associate professor of history;
NEAL ERIC CHALOFSKY, visiting assistant professor of human resource development;
ELIZABETH CLARK-LEWIS, Benjamin Banneker Professor of Washington Area Studies, visiting associate professor of American civilization;
ROGER CLARKE, visiting professor of economics;
JOEL W. COOK, visiting associate professor of business administration;
SUZANNE N. CORY, visiting assistant professor of accountancy;
LYNN H. CUENIN, assistant professor of special education;
SARAH LEACH DAVIS, visiting assistant professor of art;
KALVIR S. DHUGA, assistant professor of physics;
RICHARD G. DONNELLY, associate professor of management science;
S. WATSON DUNN, distinguished visiting professor of business administration;
ELLEN SUE FABIAN, instructor in human services;
MARGARET G. FARRELL, visiting professor of law;
MARVIN H. FIRESTONE, Harold and Jane Hirsh Professor of Health Care Law;
TRACY KATHRYN GINTER, visiting instructor in counseling;
EDWARD GORDON, Visiting Lobingier Professor of Comparative Law and Jurisprudence;
VALENTINA HARIZANOV, assistant professor of mathematics;
DONNA MARIE HIRABAYASHI, associate professor of naval science;
BOB SHIVER HODGES III, associate professor of administrative sciences and academic director, Administrative Sciences Program, Tidewater Center;
BETTY C. HORN, assistant professor of accountancy;
BIJAN JABBARI, visiting associate professor of engineering and applied science;
GERYES MOUSSA JABBOUR, visiting instructor in business administration;
JOHN JOSEPH JACKSON, assistant professor of naval science;
MOHAMMAD JAMSHIDI, distinguished visiting professor of engineering and applied science;

continued on back

BARKLEY CLARK IS OCTOBER FIRST WEDNESDAY LECTURER

"A Revolution in Banking Law" will be the topic addressed by Professor of Law Barkley Clark in October's First Wednesday Lecture, sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office.

Professor Clark will discuss the effect of deregulation on the banking industry; the push toward interstate banking, the bank as a financial services supermarket, and the possible impacts of such changes.

The lecture will be given at 8 pm in the Continental Room, third floor, Marvin Center. Admission is free but those planning to attend should call 46435 for seating. Dinner, for both members and nonmembers of the GW Club will be served before the lecture beginning at 6:30 pm. Call 45510 for dinner reservations.
The lecture is October 7th.

BRIEFLY. . .

The Health Fair, set for Wednesday, September 30, is open to all members of the University community. The location is the Charles E. Smith Center's main arena. Hours are 12 noon to 6 pm. There will be 30 free health screening and active learning centers. Admission is free. Bring your ID.

The Afternoon Tea, planned for Wednesday, September 30, from 3:30 to 5 pm, will feature a talk on life in the Bahamas by the Honorable Maria-Teresa Butler, minister-counsellor, deputy chief of mission, Embassy of the Commonwealth of the Bahamas. There is no charge, but call 46610, today, to say you are coming.

An Exhibition on Spanish Dance at GW will open on Thursday, October 1, in the Colonnade Gallery. The display will include costumes, photographs and accessories. The exhibition will continue through November 5. Hours are 10 am to 7 pm daily.

A MEDIEVAL DANCE was presented by three young participants at the Reading Center's celebration of the 10th anniversary of its After School Program for Gifted Children.

NEW FULL-TIME, NON-MEDICAL FACULTY

continued from front

SARAH BRYANT JENKINS, assistant professor of business administration;
CHRISTINA JACQUELINE JOHNS, visiting assistant professor of sociology;
GARY JOHNSON, assistant professor of naval science;
APOSTOLOS K. KAKAES, assistant professor of engineering and applied science;
KALPANA KAPPAGANTULA, assistant professor of economics;
MARK S. KLOCK, visiting assistant professor of finance;
JAMES D. KNOKE, research professor of statistics;
ZEKI CEMAL KURUOGLU, visiting associate professor of physics;
JAMES C. LAMB III, distinguished visiting professor of engineering and applied science;
JUDITH ANN LANDAU, visiting instructor in education;
WILLIAM FRANCIS LYNCH, visiting assistant professor of education;
HAROLD G. MAIER, Visiting Lyle T. Alverson Professor of Law;
OWEN C. MARTIN JR., professor of naval science and chair, Department of Naval Science;
RICHARD McCANN, Jennie McKean Moore Visiting Lecturer in Creative Writing;
RAY K. METZKER, Smith Distinguished Visiting Professor of Art;
DAVID WILLIAM MORRIS, assistant professor of biological sciences and of genetics;
ELLEN M. MURRAY, intructor in communication;
BHAGIRATH NARAHARI, instructor in engineering and applied science;
DENNIS R. NOLAN, visiting professor of law;
WILLIAM H. PAINTER, Theodore Rinehart Professor of Law;
TODD D. PETERSON, associate professor of law;
JEFFREY LYN PORTER, assistant professor of English;
EULALIA C. RACH, instructor in travel and tourism;
NASSER RASHIDNIA, visiting assistant professor of mechanical engineering;
MOUSTAFA M. RATEB, distinguished visiting professor of engineering and applied science;
LEO M. ROMERO, Visiting Howrey Professor of Trial Advocacy;
MATTHEW ROSENSHINE, distinguished visiting professor of operations research;
TERRANCE C. RYAN, distinguished visiting professor of engineering administration;
JOHN M. SCHNIZLEIN, visiting assistant professor of engineering and applied science;
PAUL SCHOLLMEIER, visiting assistant professor of philosophy;
DANIEL J. SCHROETER, visiting assistant professor of history;
HIKMET SENAY, instructor in engineering and applied science;
RODICA SIMION, assistant professor of mathematics;
JAMES SLAUGHTER, visiting associate professor of theatre;
REFIK SOYER, assistant professor of management science;
BRYAN L. SUDWEEKS, visiting assistant professor of business administration;
PATRICIA ANN SULLIVAN, visiting instructor in human kinetics and leisure studies;
HOWARD J. WIARDA, visiting professor of political science and international affairs;
ABDOU YOUSSEF, instructor in engineering and applied science.

OPEN ENROLLMENT PERIOD FOR HEALTH PLANS

An open enrollment period for all University employees eligible for our health plans is scheduled from Monday, October 12, through Friday, November 13. During this time employees will have the opportunity to make changes in their current health care coverage or to enroll, if not currently enrolled in any of the plans offered. Coverage selected during this period will become effective as of January 1, 1988.

Representatives from all of the health plans will be present at a series of health care meetings to answer questions about the various types of coverage available. A comparison chart of the major benefit features will be available. Everyone is encouraged to attend one of these meetings.

The schedule is as follows:

| Date | Time | Place |
|---|---|---|
| Monday, Oct 12 | 8 am to 10 am1:30 to 2:30 pm | Hospital Auditorium23rd Street entrance |
| Tuesday, Oct 13 | 8 am to 10 am | Hospital Auditorium23rd Street entrance |
| Monday, Oct 19 | 8 am to 12 noon | Marvin CenterBallroom |
| Tuesday, Oct 20 | 10 am to 4 pm | Marvin CenterBallroom. |

All changes in coverage must be submitted to the Records and Benefits Office by Friday, November 13. If you need further information, call the Records and Benefits Office at 44480.

CHINESE SCHOLARSHIP HOLDER Xiaofeng Xu, an SGBA graduate student in international business, right, talked with Professor of Education Dorothy Moore at a September 16 reception for the eight recipients of scholarships established by the University last year for students from the People's Republic of China.

MINORITY STUDENT RECEPTION -- At the September 14 annual Minority Student Reception, Assistant Vice President for Academic Affairs Anthony Coates, left, talked with Charlie Moore, a Columbian College junior and a member of GW Myth Men, black men's organization to foster self-esteem among black students.

NEWSNOTES

PUBLICATIONS

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, an article, "Reading the Painting: Levels of Poetic Meaning in Chinese Pictorial Art," in Asian Art, Vol. 1, No. 1 (Fall/Winter, 1987-88), pp. 6-29. The publication Asian Art is a new journal published by the Arthur M. Sackler Gallery of the Smithsonian Institution. This inaugural issue includes three articles; the other two are by Thomas Lawton, the director of both the Sackler Gallery and the Freer Gallery; and Anne Yonemura, assistant curator of Japanese art for both galleries.

CHRISTOPHER J. DEERING, associate professor of political science, a chapter, "Damned If You Do and Damned If You Don't: The Senate's Role in the Appointment Process," in G. Calvin Mackenzie, ed., The In-and-Outers: Presidential Appointees and Transient Government in Washington (Baltimore, Johns Hopkins University Press, 1987).

AHMED K. NOOR, professor of engineering and applied science, two chapters in a book Finite Element Handbook, edited by H. Kardestuncer and D.H. Norrie, McGraw-Hill, New York, 1987, "Survey of Some Finite Element Software Systems," A.K. Noor, pp. 4.259-4.310; and "Algorithms and Software Development," A.K. Noor and O.O. Storaasli, pp. 4.209-4.233. Also four papers: "Model-Size Reduction for the Analysis of Symmetric Structures with Asymmetric Boundary Conditions in International Journal for Numerical Methods in Engineering, Vol. 24, 1987, pp. 913-926, co-authored with S.L. Whitworth; "Quality Assessment and Control of Finite Element Solutions," in Finite Elements in Analysis and Design, Vol. 3, 1987, pp. 1-26; "Advances and Trends in Computational Structural Mechanics," in AIAA Journal, Vol. 25, No. 7, July 1987, pp. 977-995; "Exploiting Symmetries in the Modeling and Analysis of Tires," in Computer Methods in Applied Mechanics and Engineering, Vol. 63, 1987, pp. 37-81, co-authored with C.M. Andersen and J.A. Tanner.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Department of Pharmacology. (Individual to investigate the effects of drugs on rodent and human tumor cell lines; B.A. or B.S. degree in biological sciences required; experience in tissue and cell culture essential; experience with anticancer drugs and their interactions with cellular components desirable.) Send resume to Dr. K. Kennedy, Department of Pharmacology, GWU, 2300 I Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Department of Medicine, Division of Infectious Diseases. (Individual to work with schistosomiasis. Duties include life cycle maintenance which involves snail breeding and infection, infection and portal perfusion of mice; immunological studies involving macrophage activity against various stages of infection as measure of host defense and cell culture. Candidates should have a bachelor's degree in biological sciences and work experience in the field of parasitology and immunology.) Send resume to Division of Infectious Diseases, GWU, 2150 Pennsylvania Avenue, Room 502, Washington, D.C. 20037 or call 994-4716.

RESEARCH ASSISTANTS, full-time, Flow Cytometry Facility, Department of Medicine. (Three individuals with experience in tissue culture, phlebotomy and/or in the operation of flow cytometers. Training in the performance of assays of the immune function, i.e. proliferative response to mitogens and antigens, interleukin 2 bioassay, etc., is highly desirable. A medical laboratory technologist or bachelor's or equivalent degree in immunology, microbiology or related field is required.) Contact Dr. Marcelo B. Sztein, Flow Cytometry Facility, Division of Hematology/Oncology, Department of Medicine, Ross Hall, Room 705, telephone, 994-8290.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

October 5, 1987 (485)

GW Report

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

JAPANESE VICE MINISTER OF FINANCE Toyoo Gyohten, left, talked with Hobart Rowen of the Washington Post, center, and Peter Kilborn of the New York Times before his September 25 speech here at GW.

JAPANESE VICE MINISTER OF FINANCE SPEAKS AT GEORGE WASHINGTON

"The United States is like a lion with well-balanced, powerful forelegs," said Japanese Vice Minister of Finance Toyoo Gyohten in a September 25 speech here at the University. "Compared to the U.S., Japan is like a kangaroo," he continued, "his hind legs are strong but his forelegs are comically short."

The vice minister spoke at a Washington Briefing of the U.S./Japan Economic Agenda, cosponsored by the School of International Affairs and the Carnegie Council on Ethics and International Affairs in the GW Club.

His subject was "Financial Investments in the United States and Japan." In a wide-ranging discussion, he outlined the recent and current economic situations in Japan and gave some of his views of what is needed in the future. He described the measures the Japanese government is taking to attract foreign investors and noted that due to computer technology, his country has greatly enriched the variety of financial commodities. Minister Gyohten stated his opinion that the yen should play a much greater role so that it could share a burden with the U.S. dollar. He said that the yen is already playing the second most important role together with the deutsche mark in world currency.

In a discussion of the capital flow between Japan and the United States, the minister said, "The Japanese surplus is now definitely narrowing. . . . I am of the view that our external imbalance has as last started to be improved and I can strike a cautiously optimistic note about the near future of the situation. If we succeed in maintaining the momentum of improvement we have generated, we will be able to secure a solid starting point for the long time future.

. . . My hope and dream is that the difference between the U.S. and Japanese markets does not get out of control and become a political problem," Minister Gyohten said.

He was introduced by the Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers Beryl Sprinkel, who spoke of him as "my articulate and persuasive friend."

COLLOQUIUM ON HIGH TEMPERATURE SUPERCONDUCTIVITY IS OCTOBER 9

The Institute for Technology and Strategic Research of the School of Engineering and Applied Science will sponsor a colloquium on High Temperature Superconductivity -- Prospects and Challenges on Friday, October 9.

Dr. Edward Teller, honorary director and co-founder of the institute, will give the keynote address. Topics and speakers will be: "The Physical Basis and Applications of High Temperature Superconductivity," Dr. Fernand Bedard of the National Security Agency; "Bulk High Temperature Superconductivity," Dr. Elton N. Kaufmann of the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory; and "Thick Film, Thin Film, and Very Thin Film," Dr. Donald U. Gubser of the Naval Research Laboratory. Workshops on various aspects of high temperature superconductivity will be held following the presentations.

The colloquium will be held at the Department of State, 2201 C Street, NW,

continued on back

GELMAN LIBRARY HOLDS SYMPOSIUM, CELEBRATES RENOVATION, OPENS FACULTY AUTHORS EXHIBIT

In a series of events on Wednesday, September 23, the Gelman Library sponsored a symposium, "The Library Catalog -- Bringing Order to the Universe of Knowledge"; celebrated the completion of the library's remodeling; and opened an exhibit, "Documenting GWU Faculty Research," in its Special Collections Department.

Dr. Mary Briggs of the School of Library Science, Columbia University, speaking on "Knowledge Systems and the 3 x 5 Card," took her listeners back some three centuries and then brought them up to the present in a historical tracing of record keeping.

"Riding the Tail of the Comet: Technology and the Expanding Intellectual Universe" was the topic addressed by Marvin L. Ernst, research affiliate, Program on Information Resources Policy, Harvard University. "Conversion to disk is a very significant step," he said. "It's also the road to the future."

A balanced picture of what has happened in the last 10 or 20 years concerning the use of technology in libraries, Ernst said, can be gained from a study he did while he was associated with Arthur D. Little, Inc. A series of four group interviews were done with combinations of librarians and professional people. Three main conclusions were reached: 1) librarians were far ahead of library users and were urging them to use the new technology; 2) with one exception, all of the professional people relied on librarians almost entirely for information retrieval from computer technology (the exception being a group of analytical chemists who already had computers); 3) without exception, the professional groups had a strong preference for print, wishing to read material away from a screen and to be able to annotate. Ernst noted there are areas in which computers have had much

FACULTY AUTHORS Ruth Wallace, professor of sociology, left, and David McAleavey, associate professor of English, center, talked with Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French at the September 23 opening of the exhibition, "Documenting GWU Faculty Research," in the Special Collections Department of Gelman Library. The exhibition runs through October 23.

continued on back

JERROLD POST SPEAKS ON TERRORIST POLICY

"We need to be thinking of long range solutions to terrorism," said Jerrold Post, professor of psychiatry and public policy in a speech, "The Mind of the Terrorist: Implications for Anti-Terrorist Policy," on September 22 in the Marvin Center. The speech and the discussion following were sponsored by the Security Policy Studies Program.

"We have not been able to identify a unique terrorist mind-set," he continued. Stating that the target of violence is not necessarily the immediate victim, he quoted a professional colleague who said, "A television camera is a weapon waiting to be used," and "Terrorism is a particularly vicious species of psychological warfare waged through the media." Dr. Post observed, "Our strategies have not sought to counter their use of the media. I cannot emphasize this enough. The media see themselves as reporters. The media are targets of manipulation." He went on, "We should not be thinking of terrorists in the singular, but terrorisms in the plural."

Dr. Post explained that the three major types of terrorists -- criminals, crazies and crusaders -- have been observed to share certain personality attributes. They tend to be self-centered, stimulus-hungry, easily bored and action oriented. When things go wrong in their lives, they seek a target to blame. Terrorists are characterized by "splitting," that is dividing up good from evil, then idealizing the terrorist group as all good and projecting all evil out into society. In joining a terrorist group, some individuals may feel, for the fist time, that they truly belong. This belonging sets the stage for the power of group dynamics so that the group becomes important in itself and may diverge from stated goals to unrelated terrorist acts.

Terrorist rhetoric, according to Dr. Post, says, "It's not us, it's them (who are making things bad) it's up to us to destroy them before they destroy us."

In discussing implications for anti-terrorist policy, Professor Post said, "The best way is to keep the potential terrorists from joining in the first place. Then we need to encourage terrorists to leave the group. The average terrorist is 22 and a half years old. It's a phenomenon of youth. Italy had an amnesty policy for welcoming back reformed terrorists into society. We need to reduce external support, so that terrorists do not find a welcoming environment. We need to promote dissension within the terrorist group and, given the paranoid mental attitudes of terrorists, this should not be hard."

Pointing out that more than 50 percent of the

continued on back

GELMAN LIBRARY HOLDS SYMPOSIUM,

continued from front

success being used by brokers, for reservations and order forms. In areas where needs are best served by print, electronics will not be used, he stated.

Convenience was among the user needs the speaker mentioned. "People want to be able to handle things," he said. "We want the legal status, timeliness and currency. We want confidence in the viability of information systems and use but there are whole series of interactive operations where electronics clearly is dominant. We use electronics in all aspects where manipulation and extreme timeliness are important. Print dominates as ergonomic factors -- our comfort, confidence in status -- enter in."

Examining the question of what would have to happen for electronics to become dominant in the dissemination of information, Ernst told his listeners the first kind of change needed is a high-quality, easily carried and adjusted flat-paneled display, not too different from a book in size and shape. He said the Japanese television manufacturers are putting money and emphasis into the development of such a display panel. "This is where the money is," he commented. Comparable in size to a portable radio, such a panel would have many uses, he added.

On the subject of files, Ernst commented, "I think it's nonsense to say that the user will know how to organize files. . . . What we are really dealing with is a fundamental organization of knowledge. Even if libraries change, librarians' skills will continue to be important. We are moving to a new era of a totally different form of literacy. The future will call for new skills associated with the new technology -- and for our ability to operate it, appreciate it, use it and communicate with it. . . . Most important will be a knowledge of all the tools that are available. The role of libraries and librarians in the future is enormous and their role will be greatly involved with all these problems. Libraries and librarians have a great deal to contribute."

Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French, in remarks at the celebration of the remodeling completion in Gelman, cited the article by Professor of Engineering and Applied Science James D. Foley on "Interfaces for Advanced Computing" in the October issue of Scientific American. Foley states, he said, that the next realization in computers will see power increase tenfold in 10 years and that this power will network and advance interfaces to transform technology further. French quoted the last line of Foley's article, which refers to "the type of research which is needed to determine whether the promise of artificial realities is more than an illusion." He recommended this approach to everyone as we move into further use of technology.

University Librarian Sharon J. Rogers announced at the opening of the exhibit on faculty research that Gelman Library has received a Title II-C Grant from the U.S. Department of Education which will make it possible to create a multi-institutional research data base at GW for the study of Washington, D.C.

POST SPEAKS

continued from front

terrorist actions in the world are directed against the United States, Dr. Post said, "What is necessary in many of these countries, where terrorist acts take place, are security measures coupled with positive cooperative programs between the host country and the United States government. We need constructive political programs which inhibit them from joining and facilitate their leaving."

COLLOQUIUM

continued from front

Room 1912, from 9 am to 3:15 pm. Admission is free. Registration will begin at 8:15 am at the 21st Street entrance of the State Department. Advance reservations are recommended. Call the Institute for Technology and Strategic Research (202) 965-0211.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

AHMED K. NOOR, professor of engineering and applied science, has been elected as an associate editor for the Journal of Applied Mechanics of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

RAYMOND L. PICKHOLTZ, professor of engineering and applied science, was the leader of a delegation of 23 experts in Data Communications from four countries in July to the People's Republic of China. The delegation was invited by the China Association of Science and Technology, the Chinese Institute of Communications, the Computer Federation of China, the Ministry of Post and Telecommunications and the Chinese Academy of Sciences. The delegation had technical meetings, presented papers and visited the major universitites, research institutes and computer and communications centers in Beijing, Shenjeng, Shanghai and Nanjing. The results of these interactions will be published in 1988.

GEORGE W. SMITH, professor of education and chair, Department of Educational Leadership, presented a paper, "The Role of the Private Sector in the Development and Implementation of the Work-Oriented Curriculum," at the World Assembly of the International Council on Education for Teaching at Eindhoven, The Netherlands, on July 23.

CHARLES T. STEWART JR., professor of economics, gave seminars in May/June on Technological Change and Productivity Growth, Structural Change and Unemployment at University College, Dublin; Instituto de Pesquizas Economicas and Largo Caballero, Madrid; University of Barcelona and Caixa de Barcelona, Barcelona; Seville Chamber of Commerce; and Polish Economic Society in Warsaw and Katowice.

PUBLICATIONS

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor, two articles: "Toward a Kantian Soci-Economics" in Review of Social Economy, Vol. XLV, No. 1 (April, 1987), pp. 37-47; and "How Rational Are We?" in Sociological Forum, Vol. 2, No. 1 (Winter, 1987), pp. 1-20.

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history, a book, The Buildings of Main Street: A Guide to American Commercial Architecture, Washington, D.C, Preservation Press, 1987; and "Architecture and the City," in Howard Gillette Jr., and Zane Miller, eds., American Urbanism: A Historiographical Review, Westport, Connecticut, Greenwood Press, 1987, pp. 155-194.

ALEX ZWERDLING, university professor of English, a review of Walter Kendrick, The Secret Museum: Pornography in Modern Culture, titled "Sex and the Censors: Moral Merry-Go-Round," Washington Times Magazine, July 6, 1987.

INTERVIEW

BEN BURDETSKY, professor of personnel and labor relations, was interviewed on USA Tonight News, Channel 20, WDCA, regarding Labor Day and the current status of American workers. On September 8, he was interviewed on USA Tonight concerning the collective bargaining impasse in professional football and where it is leading.

BRIEFLY. . .

The Academic Association for the Quincentenary 1492-1992 will hold its third annual celebration in commemoration of the 12th of October on Friday, October 9, at the GW Club, from 5 to 6:30 pm. The speaker will be Professor Emeritus Emilio Gonzalez Lopez of the City University of New York. His Excellency Julian Santamaria, Ambassador of Spain, will present the second annual prize "Spain and America in the Quincentennial of the Discovery," 1987. The celebration is open to the public. A dinner will follow, for which there is a charge. Call 46339.

The Gelman Library Update Meeting will be held on Wednesday, October 7, at 10:30 am in the Gelman Library, Room 202. George Washington University department chairs as well as departmental library representatives will be informed of the many library activities which support teaching and research. All of the Gelman Library subject specialists will attend the meeting to answer questions about Gelman's professional information services.

The National Security Colloquium features speaker Philip Peterson, senior specialist from the Department of Defense, on "Soviet Military Power and Evaluation Speed," on October 6, from 2 to 4 pm, in Lisner Auditorium. The event is sponsored by SIA and admission is free. For more information call 46240.

The Videoconference on interactive videodisc technology, cosponsored by the GW Department of Communication and the International Interactive Communications Society, will be held Friday, October 9, from noon to 5 pm in the George Washington Room, Academic Center. For additional details call 46350. Admission is free.

IT'S UNIVERSITY RELATIONS NOW

Just a reminder that the Office of University Relations was established as of July 1 and replaces the office formerly called News and Public Affairs. We are still located in Gelman Library, 705, and we welcome information from throughout the University community.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, half-time, Department of Pathology. (Individual for pathology research investigating the role of steroids, receptors, growth factors and oncogenes in human breast and colon carcinoma. M.S. degree with experience in chemical, biochemical and pathological laboratory techniques, including, but not limited to, preparation of tissue samples, homogenization, estrogen receptor evaluation, immunoperoxidase methods and record keeping. Computer experience helpful but not necessary.) Send resume to Dr. Arnold Schwartz, George Washington University Medical Center, 2300 I Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037.

RESEARCH/PROGRAM ASSISTANT, part-time (24 hours per week), Rehabilitation Counseling and Services. (Individual needed to assist program faculty in program development, research and teaching. A master's degree in rehabilitation counseling is preferred. Good research, marketing and organizational skills are needed. Knowledge of rehabilitation fields is essential.) Send resume to: Dr. Donald C. Linkowski, professor and director, Rehabilitation Counseling and Services, 603 Rome Hall, Washington, D.C. 20052.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

October 12, 1987

GW Report

(486)

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

CONSORTIUM LIBRARY TO BE LOCATED IN PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY

"This is a project which makes a lot of economic sense for the institutions and it makes good common sense for users and libraries," said Maryland Congressman Steny Hoyer at an October 5 press conference at the National Press Club, held to announce the location of a library center for the Washington Library Consortium in the Collington Center of Prince George's County.

Prince George's County Executive Parris Glendenning said, "As a part-time teacher at the University of Maryland for some 20 years, I can attest from first-hand experience how important this will be. As county executive, we clearly view this as a major addition, part of that renaissance the county has been experiencing. Congressman Hoyer has been active with regard to this project and Senator Mikulski has been very, very supportive."

The Washington Library Consortium (WLC) is a cooperative venture among several institutions of higher education in the Greater Washington Metropolitan area. The WLC project will result in the enhancement of library services to students, faculty and staff of participating institutions as well as to the community in general.

"The project dates back four or five years," said Father John Whalen, executive director, Consortium of Universities of the Washington Metropolitan Area. "The plan came about through meetings of the head librarians of the Consortium institutions. The initiative for the project and the intelligence that stands behind it came from them. Most important was to combine the records of all the Consortium institutions into one massive electronic catalog. This created one library out of the several. Now any one of our 160,000 students will have access to our seven million volumes and other library holdings. This will be the third largest research library in the country. In addition, we collectively purchase almost 260,000 volumes a year."

Father Whalen stated that the library will have one of the 50 largest data bases in the country, once it is compiled. This is expected to take from three to five years. The George Washington University and George Mason University will be the first to begin to enter their records into the software system. Whalen said the software system chosen for

continued on back

Architect's rendering for Consortium Library

HEALTH FAIR -- Karen Thomas, left, HKLS graduate student in exercise science, had her blood pressure checked by Health Fair Volunteer Dana Brown at Health Fair '87 on September 30. Over 400 people came to the fair.

DISTINGUISHED ALUMNI SCHOLARS TO SPEAK OCTOBER 19 AND 26

Michael Kammen, Newton C. Farr Professor of American History and Culture at Cornell University, and Harden M. McConnell, Robert Eckles Swain Professor of Chemistry at Stanford University, are the first two alumni selected to return to campus as Distinguished Alumni Scholars under the program established last year. The program provides for a campus visit of a day and a half with a public lecture given by the scholar and meetings with students and members of the nominating department.

Kammen's topic will be "The Problem of Tradition and the Role of Democracy in American Culture." He will speak on Monday, October 19, at 3:30 pm in Marvin Center, Room 405.

McConnell's subject will be "Pictures of Chemistry in Two Dimensions." His lecture will be given on Monday, October 26, in the Naeser Room of Corcoran Hall, 725 - 21st Street, NW.

Kammen, who received his undergraduate degree from George Washington in 1958 (B.A. with a major in history), completed his graduate studies at Harvard University (M.A. 1959, Ph.D. 1964). After teaching a year at Harvard, he joined the Cornell University faculty in 1965. Elected to Phi Beta Kappa at GW, Kammen received the Bowdoin Prize at Harvard in 1964 and the Pulitzer Prize for History in 1973. In 1987, he was awarded both the Francis Parkman Prize and the Henry Adams Prize. He received the Distinguished Alumni Achievement Award from George Washington in 1974.

Dr. Kammen is a prolific author. His most recent books include Selvages and Biases: The Fabric of History in American Culture (Cornell University Press, 1987) and A Machine That Would Go Of Itself: The Constitution in American Culture (Alfred A. Knopf, 1986), which was selected by The New York Times as one of the 10 best works of non-fiction published in 1986. He has held fellowships at The Johns Hopkins University, the National Endowment for the Humanities and was a John Simon Guggenheim Fellow.

McConnell received his B.S. degree in 1947 from George Washington with a major in chemistry and a minor in mathematics. He earned his Ph.D. in 1951 from the California Institute of Technology. McConnell has been a national research fellow in the Department of Physics at the University of Chicago (1950-52); a research chemist with the Shell Development Company in California (1952-56); and a member of the faculty of California Institute of Technology (1956-64). He joined Stanford University as professor of chemistry in 1964 and was named Robert Eckles Swain Professor in 1969.

Dr. McConnell has been the recipient of numerous awards and honors. He was elected to the National Academy of Sciences in 1965. In 1971, he was the 21st Renaud Foundation Lecturer and the same year received the Irving Langmuir Award in Chemical Physics and the Distinguished Alumni Achievement Award from George Washington. In 1980, he was made an honorary member of the Swedish Biophysical Society and in 1982, was elected a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He has served on a number of editorial boards and serves currently on those of BioOrganic Chemistry, Journal of Membrane Biology and Journal of Supramolecular Structure. He is a founder of the Molecular Devices Corporation, Palo Alto, California.

FALL'S GW FORUM WILL EXPLORE THE AMERICAN MIND

"Are colleges producing a generation morally unambitious and intellectually shallow?" The GW Forum editorial board is interested in your views of this and other related questions asked by University of Chicago Professor of Social Thought Allan Bloom.

Author of The Closing of the American Mind, How Higher Education has Failed Democracy and Impoverished the Souls of Today's Students, Bloom states that, "A good program of education feeds the student's love of truth and passion to live a good life." The author contends that universities have adopted the permissiveness of society, catering to students' desires and forgetting their needs. Career-oriented curriculum has replaced any full program of general education. Students are therefore robbed not only of knowledge but also of a thirst for knowledge.

According to Bloom "Our universities... no longer provide the knowledge of the great tradition of philosophy and literature that made students aware of nature and of man's place within it. Higher education fails to arouse or to nurture the self-knowledge that has always been the basis for serious, humane learning."

The Forum editors ask, "Are our universities indeed failing both democracy and today's students?" The Forum is accepting personal essays of 1,000 to 2,000 words until Monday, October 26. The essays selected will be published in the Forum's fall issue. Send manuscripts to Professor A.E. Claeyssens at the English Department and call 47355 with any questions.

CONSORTIUM LIBRARY

continued from front

the data base is called NOTIS, a system developed at Northwestern University. There are to be 1,200 terminals located throughout the participating institutions. Books may be ordered from the terminals and the plan is to have any book delivered to the user's library within 24 hours. This will apply to seldom-used books to be housed at the Collington location as well as to books in the participating Consortium libraries.

The Leo A. Daly Company, a planning, architectural and engineering firm, has been selected to build the library at Collington. The building will be in modular form and will have 40,000 feet of space. The computer center, study carrels and the seldom-used books will be located in it. Of the 20 acres given by Prince George's County for the library, 10 will be used at first. It is estimated that in about 20 years, there will be a need for another wing or module.

"We are beginning a fairly, major fund-raising effort," Father Whalen announced. "It will be 18 months before we break ground. During that time we will be very active. We will need about 21 million dollars for the entire project. We have about seven million in hand now. The money will come from gifts and government grants and entitlements. The county has offered to be listed for a bond."

Congressman Hoyer said he is hopeful that Senators Sarbanes and Mikulski and others in Virginia can work together to get help from the federal government. "We are proud that Prince George's County can provide you a piece of property worth almost half a million dollars," he commented.

FEYDEAU FARCE OPENS THEATRE AND DANCE SEASON

The University's newly established Department of Theatre and Dance will open its season with performances of Georges Feydeau's French farce "A Flea in Her Ear."

The classic situation comedy will be presented in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 15, 16 and 17 at 8 pm. There will be a Sunday matinee on October 18 at 2 pm. The play will be directed by Alan Hawkridge of London and his wife, Patricia Tulli-Hawkridge. Set designer is Earl Ginzel. Costume designer is Cheryl Neeley and lighting is by Eric Hagenbarth.

Tickets are $6 general admission, $3 for students and senior citizens. Call 46178.

BRIEFLY. . .

A COLONADE GALLERY RECEPTION, in conjunction with the current exhibition there on Spanish dance at the University, will be held Thursday, October 15, from 5 to 7 pm, third floor, Marvin Center. GW Spanish dancers and guitar players will perform briefly. All members of the University community are invited.

TOUGH REALISM: INVITATIONAL PAINTING EXHIBITION IN DIMOCK

An exhibition of paintings in the Dimock Gallery by selected Washington area artists, works borrowed from private collections and works from the University's permanent collections will address the theme of "tough realism." The show will run from October 15 through November 5.

The exhibition will feature a painted triptych (6 1/2' x 19 1/2') by Fred Folsom, entitled "Last Call" (at the Shepherd Park Go Go Club). This oil painting, which took four years to complete, will be shown to the public for the first time.

Artists represented in the exhibition include Robert Birmelin, Lisa Brotman, Fred Folsom, George Green, Sidney Goodman and Joe Shannon.

MAGAZINE WRITER'S WORKSHOP

The Journalism Department is sponsoring a Reader's Digest/George Washington University Magazine Articles Writers' Workshop Friday and Saturday, October 30 and 31. Registration deadline is Friday, October 16.

Associate Professor of Journalism Robert C. Willson, workshop director, has editors from publications that buy free-lance material lined up to speak and to meet with workshop participants. Magazines represented include Glamour, Parents, Good Housekeeping, Redbook, Family Circle, National Geographic and Travel-Holiday.

Judith Martin, the syndicated Miss Manners, will be the Saturday luncheon speaker.

Professor Willson emphasizes that all editors will be available for conversation and discussions at meals and coffee breaks during the two-day workshop. There is a registration charge which covers all meals. Registration is open to any interested free-lance writer. Call 46225 for more information.

PARENT'S DAY IS OCTOBER 17

Members of the faculty and administrative staff are especially invited to attend the President's Reception which has been planned as part of Parents' Day, Saturday, October 17.

The reception will provide an opportunity for parents and students to visit with faculty members and administrators. The 4 to 5:30 pm event is scheduled for Market Square, first floor, Marvin Center. Those who plan to attend are asked to call the Student Activities Office, 46455.

THE OPEN ENROLLMENT PERIOD FOR HEALTH COVERAGE begins today, to continue through Friday, November 13. Representatives from all of the health plans will be present at Health Care Meetings to answer questions about the various types of coverage available through the health plans. This week's meetings are scheduled for Monday, October 12, from 8 am to 3 pm and Tuesday, October 13, from 8 am to noon. Meetings, both days, will be held in the Hospital Auditorium, 23rd Street entrance. For further information, call the Records and Benefits Office at 44480.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR EDWIN L. STEVENS IS FRIDAY

There will be a memorial service for the late Professor Emeritus of Speech Edwin L. Stevens on Friday, October 16, at 11 am in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre.

JUDITH MARTIN, SYNDICATED COLUMNIST MISS MANNERS, will give the Stephen Holly Bronz Annual Lecture on Friday, October 16, at 5:30 pm in the Continental Room, Marvin Center, third floor. Her subject will be, "Manners in College and in the Media." Ms. Martin is the author of Common Courtesy and Miss Manners' Guide to Excruciatingly Correct Behavior. The lecture is co-sponsored by the Journalism Department and the Columbian College Alumni Association. For more information, call 994-6130. The event is open to the University community.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

BEN BURDETSKY, professor of personnel and labor relations, has been appointed by Secretary of Labor William E. Brock to serve on The Honorary Committee on the 75th anniversary of the U.S. Department of Labor.

JOHN EFTIS, professor of engineering and applied science and adjunct professor of applied mathematics, received an ASEE-NAVY Summer Faculty Research Fellowship Award for 1987 at the Naval Research Laboratory, Washington, DC. The research activity involved study of fracture induced by shock loads.

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor's book Capital Corruption, was the subject of a session called "Author Meets Critics" at the American Sociological Association's annual meeting, August 18, in Chicago.

THOMAS FLEETER, clinical instructor in orthopaedic surgery, participated in the joint world conference of CAPHER (Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation) and the International Council for Health, Physical Education and Recreation with JEANNE SNODGRASS, professor of human kinetics and leisure studies, and HONEY W. NASHMAN, assistant professor of human kinetics and leisure studies. The GW representatives spoke on the subjects of knee surgery; "Higher Education's Role in Health and Fitness of the 21st Century" and "A Connection Between Professional Burnout and University Teaching Styles" respectively. Over 700 delegates from 27 countries attended the conference in Vancouver in June.

MURLI GUPTA, associate professor of mathematics, visited the Institute for Computational Mechanics in Propulsion at the NASA-Lewis Research Center in Cleveland and spoke on "Spectrum Transformation Techniques for Divergent Iterations", on August 21.

continued next column

GAIL S. HANSON, dean of students, has been selected as a member of the planning group of the Network of Drug Free Colleges. The charge of the group is to work with the staff of the Office of Education Research and Improvement (OERI) to develop specific activities for establishing a Network of Drug Free Colleges.

DORN McGRATH, professor of urban and regional planning, addressed the Metropolitan Airport Commission of Minneapolis/St. Paul, Minnesota, August 20 concerning plans for a second airport for that metropolitan area. Professor McGrath, who chairs a working group on the development of an airport macrosystem for the United States under the National Academy of Sciences National Research Council, reviewed a study done by the working group for the Metropolitan Airport Commission.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Medical Center, Department of Medicine. (Individual responsible for data coordination of various clinical research trials. Duties to include patient scheduling, collection and compilation of data and completion of study report forms. Close interaction with physicians, nurses and laboratory technicians. Some travel may be required within Washington metropolitan area and previous research experience is a plus. A bachelor's degree is required, along with some microcomputer spreadsheet experience.) Please contact Jeffery Stallings at 994-2293.

RESEARCH ASSISTANTS/PROGRAMMERS, one part time and three full-time positions, The Biostatistics Center. (Individual to assist statisticians in management and analysis of data from major medical research projects. All require a BA/BS degree and experience in SAS programming. Knowledge of statistical methods and SAS/GRAPH desirable. One full-time position involves dBase III+ and Crosstalk programming, writing manuals and instructing staff in use of PC's. Three other positions involve generating routine reports using SAS, reviewing medical records and conducting analyses. Rockville site.) Send letter and resume to Peter Gilbert, The George Washington University, Biostatistics Center, 6110 Executive Boulevard, #750, Rockville, MD 20852. No phone calls please.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

October 19, 1987

GW Report

(487)

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

DR. EDWARD TELLER, left, distinguished nuclear scientist, talked with John Fairclough, Chief Scientist, center, and Sir David Philips, Chairman, Scientific and Technological Affairs, both of the Embassy of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, following Teller's keynote address at the October 9 colloquium on high temperature superconductivity sponsored by the Institute for Technology and Strategic Research (ITSR) of the School of Engineering. Dr. Teller, who was a member of the GW faculty from 1935 to 1941, is honorary director and co-founder of ITSR.

COUNCIL FOR ACADEMIC COMPUTING AND INFORMATION SERVICES

Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French has appointed a Council for Academic Computing and Information Services.

The council is charged with maintaining cognizance of the entire range of academic computing around the campus and with making recommendations both for the enhancement of central facilities and services and for University-wide collaboration where appropriate. The council is to be a recognized, continuing forum for the discussion of issues which cut across and/or require cooperation among the several school-based computing facilities.

Voting members of the council are:

Morton F. Taragin, Chair, pro tem, associate professor of physics
Shelley Bader, director, Himmelfarb Health Sciences Library
Barkley Clark, professor of law
Jeff Cohen, student member (undergraduate)
John P. Coyne, associate professor of management science
Joel Gerstein, student member (graduate)
David A. Grier, assistant professor of statistics
John R. Harrald, associate professor of administrative sciences
Larry Linn, DCE, administrative manager for budget analysis and fiscal planning
Arnold G. Meltzer, professor of engineering and applied science
Joseph Pelzman, professor of economics and Teresa J. Rosegrant, associate professor of special education.

Non-voting council members are:

Ted J. Christensen, assistant vice president for GWTV
Robert L. Longshore, director, Telecommunications Systems
William Lynch, director, Center for Education and Computing
F. William Rambo, director, University Computing Center
Donald E. Rickert, manager, CIRC/US (Computer Information Resource Center/User Services)
Sharon J. Rogers, university librarian
Ann E. Webster, director, Housing and Residence Life
Michael P. White, manager, SEAS Computing Facility and Wayne A. Wray, manager, SGBA Computing Center.

Serving as staff to the council will be Michael B. Feldman, assistant for academic computing to the vice president for academic affairs and professor of engineering and applied science.

MICHAEL KAMMEN SPEAKS TODAY

Michael Kammen, the first Distinguished Alumni Scholar to return to campus under the program established last year will speak today, Monday, October 19, at 3:30 pm, in Room 405 of the Marvin Center. His subject is "The Problem of Tradition and the Role of Democracy in American Culture." Kammen, who earned his undergraduate degree at GW (B.A. 1958) is currently Newton C. Farr Professor of American History and Culture at Cornell University. His lecture is open to the University community.

RICHARD McCANN IS JENNY McKEAN MOORE VISITING LECTURER

This year's Jenny McKean Moore Visiting Lecturer in Creative Writing is Richard McCann.

Assistant professor of English at Mary Washington College, he has been associated with the college since 1983. A Fulbright Lecturer in American Studies at Goteborg University in Sweden in 1982-83, he was lecturer in English and film at the University of Maryland in 1981-82. At the University of Maryland European Division in Heidelberg, he was lecturer in English, radio, television and film from 1978 to 1981. At the University of Iowa, he was a teaching assistant in the American studies and literature programs (1977-78) while he was a graduate student there. He has also taught in the Department of Art History at Virginia Commonwealth University and in the Department of English at George Mason University.

McCann holds four degrees: a B.A. in English literature from Virginia Commonwealth University (1972); an M.A from Hollins College (1972) with an emphasis on creative writing and modern literature; an M.A. from the University of Iowa (1979) in American studies; and a Ph.D. from the University of Iowa (1984) with the major areas of emphasis American literature, American Studies theory and methodology, and documentary film.

His Dream of the Traveler, a book of poems, was published by Ithaca House, New York in 1976. A work of fiction, Border Town, is forthcoming from Viking Penguin, New York.

Professor McCann's poems have appeared in a number of periodicals, among them The Virginia Quarterly Review, The Atlantic Monthly, Shenandoah, Poetry Northwest, The Iowa Journal of Literary Studies and New Virginia Review.

His short story "My Mother's Clothes: The School of Beauty and Shame" will be included in the anthology Editor's Choice: Best New American Stories of 1987, edited by George E. Murphy Jr. and scheduled for January, 1988, publication by Bantam Books, New York.

Honors for Professor McCann have included the Hollins Critic Fiction Prize in 1970 and Dean's Letters of Merit for excellence in teaching at the University of Maryland in 1981 and 1982. He was named master poet by the Virginia Commission on the Arts in 1974. Dr. McCann has held many important grants and fellowships including one to the MacDowell Colony in June of this year.

Richard McCann

McCann is the 12th Jenny McKean Moore Visiting Lecturer. The Jenny McKean Moore Fund for Writers is coordinated through the English Department. The fund, left in trust by the late Jenny McKean Moore, provides for a writer of drama, fiction or poetry to teach two semesters at the University.

CHERYL BEIL IS DIRECTOR OF ASSESSMENT PROGRAMS

Cheryl Beil, assistant dean of students, now holds responsibilities in both the Dean of Students' and the Provost's Offices.

As director of assessment programs, she is working part-time for Associate Provost Marianne Phelps. Dr. Beil has conducted various surveys of the undergraduate student body and has studied student retention. Her new role is designed to enable the associate provost to collect information which can be more systematically related to planning in academic and administrative units.

Dr. Beil will be developing and conducting various surveys which the Committee on Coordinated Planning has approved. The surveys are part of a program of assessment activities which will be carried out over the next several years. These include: periodic surveys of entering freshmen and graduate students to learn more about our student body and its expectations; periodic surveys of seniors and graduate students, close to completing degrees, to obtain feedback on various aspects of their experience at the University; periodic surveys of alumni five and 10 years after graduation to obtain their views on the relationship of their education to their experiences after graduation; and periodic surveys of alumni 15, 25, and 35 years after graduation to gather information on their achievements.

Deans and directors will be contacted for input on questions and survey design. However, anyone interested in these surveys should contact Dr. Beil at 46710.

continued next column

TOUGH REALISM -- "Fire on Seventh Avenue," by Robert Birmelin, acrylic on canvas, 70" x 78,"is one of 15 paintings in the Dimock Gallery's current invitational exhibition.

TIAA/CREF SEEKS FEEDBACK

TIAA/CREF has published a Draft Report of the Special Trustee Joint Committee, which presents recommendations including new financial services, the addition of new funds, new product flexibilities, and modification of fund transferability. The purpose of this draft record is to encourage public comment and reaction.

GW employees are invited to read this report and provide feedback to the committee. Segments of the report can be found in the October 7 issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education. A summary of the report and the complete 150-page report are available on a limited basis from the receptionist in the Records and Benefits Office, 2125 F Street, NW.

After reviewing the report, individuals may direct written comments to:

Special Trustee Joint Committee
c/o Dr. Clifton R. Wharton, Jr.
TIAA/CREF
730 Third Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10017

by Friday, October 30.

ADVISORY BOARD ON LIBERAL ARTS EDUCATION FORMED

Thursday, September 17, was the founding date for a newly established Advisory Board on Liberal Arts Education for the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences. Student leaders and selected faculty members were invited to meet the initial five members of the board. More members will be invited to join the board in the future.

The first five board members are: Dr. Elaine El-Khawas, vice president for research at the American Council on Education; Edward Masters, president of the National Planning Association and a retired foreign service officer; Jerome Perlmutter, president of the public relations firm of Perlmutter Associates; Jacob Stein, Esq., senior partner in the law firm of Stein, Mitchell & Mezines; and John Thorne III, executive vice president of Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, New York advertising firm. All five are GW alumni.

The board will meet formally twice a year at the University. The role of the board will be to advise the dean and faculty of Columbian College on appropriate ways to prepare liberal arts students for advanced study or for success in many professions.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT BEGINS FACULTY RECITAL SERIES

The Department of Music will present the opening concert in its 1987-88 Faculty Recital Series on Monday, October 26, at 8 pm in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre.

Featured faculty artists will be George Steiner, violinist, and Robert Parris, pianist. They will perform sonatas of Mozart, Prokofiev and Beethoven.

Tickets are general admission, $5; GW faculty, alumni and staff, $3; and students and senior citizens, $1. For information, call 46245.

ELECTRONIC PRINTING AND PUBLISHING WORLD CONFERENCE

A world conference on electronic printing and publishing will be held at the University on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, October 28 through 30. The conference, co-sponsored by the University and Electronet Information Systems, Inc., will be held in Lisner Auditorium.

The full program will include three days of sessions with the presentation of technical papers on state-of-the-art publishing, an electronic imaging art exhibition and a science fair.

The keynote speaker will be Alfred L. Fenaughty, president, Information International Inc. He will speak on "Illustrations in Real World Electronic Publishing" on Thursday, October 29, at 11 am.

Representatives of corporations such as IBM, Xerox and 3M will present papers at the conference.

GW faculty members, staff and students are invited to attend the conference on a complimentary basis. Reservations should be made in advance by calling Electronet at 738-5510.

DAVID EISENHOWER TO SPEAK AT CONSTITUTION DINNER

The General Alumni Association of the University is hosting "An Evening with David Eisenhower" in celebration of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. Eisenhower earned his law degree at George Washington (J.D. 1976). He will speak on "Recent Presidencies and the U.S. Constitution" on Friday, November 6, in the GW Club. Following a 6 pm, reception, dinner will be served at 6:30. Eisenhower will speak at 8 pm. The cost for the evening is $21 per person. All members of the University community are cordially invited to attend. For reservations, call the Alumni Relations Office at 994-6435 before Tuesday, November 3.

COMPUTER SEMINAR EXAMINES PRIVACY, SOCIAL NEED TODAY

Richard P. Kusserow, inspector general, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, and Robert Ellis Smith, editor of Privacy Journal, will discuss government use of computer technology to eliminate fraud and waste, and the effect of that use on individual privacy today, Monday, October 19, from 3 to 4:30 pm, in Marvin Center, Room 407. The open seminar is sponsored by SEAS.

BRIEFLY. . .

Alcohol Awareness Week at GW is October 19 through 23. The week is organized in conjunction with Na5tional Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week. Students will be encouraged to "tap into responsibility" at various campuswide student and staff-run workshops, displays and activities. Highlights of the week include a free aerobic workout, tours of the Metropolitan Police Department's Mobile "Precinct" for a breathlyzer test, healthy beverage bar and an alcohol information booth and video presentations.

The campaign is part of a nationwide effort to promote alcohol education, develop student decision-making skills and positive peer influence. For more information call Gail Short Hanson, 46710 or Richard A. Weitzner, 47211.

Health Care Meetings this week are today, Monday, October 19, from 8 am to noon, and tomorrow, October 20, from 10 am to 4 pm. The location both days is the Marvin Center Ballroom.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

LANCE J. HOFFMAN, professor of engineering and applied science, presented two papers on the security and reliability of computer vote counting, one to the Election Center in Phoenix, September 4, and the other to the Ohio Secretary of State's summer conference in June. The final report of this project will appear this fall. He was also one of a small number of academic consultants at the computer security curricula workshop at the National Computer Security Center in June in Baltimore.

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, associate professor of political science, presented a paper, "The Antarctic as a Zone of Peace," at the Pacem in Maribus XV Conference on the Law of the Sea, held in Rabat, Malta, in September. Joyner also presented a paper on "Antarctic Resources and Remote Sensing by Satellite: The Interplay of Technology, Mission and Law," at the Antarctic Challenge III Symposium, sponsored by the School of Law at the University of Kiel in the Federal Republic of Germany this summer.

MARINA KEET, professorial lecturer in dance, traveled to Great Britian, Malta and Italy this summer to conduct examinations as a senior examiner for the Spanish Dance Society. As a founder of the Spanish Dance Society in Italy and the United States, she holds the title of Lifetime Vice President.

DAVID McALEAVY, associate professor of English, discussed marketing and publishing opportunities for poets and writers of prose fiction at the August meeting of the Writers' Network held in Loudon County, Virginia. McAleavy also read selected poems by many Washington poets at the gathering.

RAYMOND L. PICKHOLTZ, professor of engineering and applied science, has been elected executive vice president of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers (IEEE) Communications Society for 1988. The society is the major professional organization of telecommunications engineering in the world. For the past two years, Pickholtz has served as vice president for Technical Affairs of the society.

CHRISTOPHER STEN, associate professor of English, presented a paper entitled "The Rock Amid the Waters: Edith Wharton's Romanticism in The Spark," at the conference on Edith Wharton held at The Mount, Wharton's Berkshire home in Massachusetts in June.

PUBLICATIONS

ROLF H. CLARK, professor of engineering and applied science, an article, "Defense Budget Instability and Weapon System Acquisition," in Public Budgeting and Finance (Summer 1987), Vol. 7, No. 2, pp. 24-36.

CHRISTIAN GERHARD, associate professorial lecturer in educational leadership, the spring 1987 issue of The Research into Practice Digest: Thinking Skills Series entitled "What every educator should know about reading comprehension: Helping students to be successful beyond the early grades."

JERROLD M. POST, professor of psychiatry and public policy, a chapter, "Group and Organizational Dynamics of Political Terrorism: Implications for Counterterrorist Policy," in Contemporary Research on Terrorism, Paul Wilkinson and A.M. Stewart, eds., (University Press 1987). Also, an article, "'It's Us Against Them:' The Group Dynamics of Political Terrorism" in Terrorism, 1987 Vol. 10, #1, pp. 23-36.

KLAUS THOENELT, professor of German, a chapter, "Innere Emigration: Fiktion oder Wirklichkeit? Literarische Tradition und Nationalismus in den Werken Ernst Wiecherts, Hans Carossas und Hans Falladas (1933-1945)." in Jorg Thunecke, ed. Leid der Worte. Panorama des literarischen Nationalsozialismus, (Bonn: Bouvier, 1987), pp. 300-320.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE, Full-time, The Biostatistics Center. (Individual to assist medical research projects with development of applications systems on IBM or IBM compatible PC's in designing, developing, structuring and maintaining databases, communications and reports. Assist on software and hardware evaluations for microcomputers. Bachelor's degree in related field and one to two years general data processing experience required.) Send resumes to Neo Spyrou, GW Biostatistics Center, 6110 Executive Boulevard, Suite #750, Rockville, MD 20852. No phone calls, please.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

October 26, 1987

GW Report

(488)

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

PARENTS' DAY -- Vice President French, left, talked with James Noonan of Quakertown, New Jersey, and his daughter Suzanne, a second-year student in Columbian College, at the President's Reception on Parents' Day.

FRENCH REASSURES PARENTS

Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French, in brief remarks at Parents' Day, commented on the current book The Closing of the American Mind by University of Chicago Professor of Social Thought Allan Bloom.

"I indeed want to assure you," he said, "that you need have no fear for the closing of your children's minds here. The business that we have in hand at this University is not the closing of any student's mind. I can't imagine a more outrageous kind of misrepresentative assertion than that there is a growing falling off of students' intelligence and a growing deterioration of faculty. . . . The assertion that higher education is slipping just is not so. I do not want you parents to think that you need to worry about things, certainly not here at George Washington."

Dr. French told the parents, "It's easy to see -- when you take into account that we are a Washington university, private, non-sectarian, and comprehensive in terms of the degree programs we offer -- that we are a complex institution. . . . There is an incredible interaction between our University and the city." He went on, "This is not a lovely season in American life. We have confusion and disappointment. We regard it as our unique duty here at George Washington to educate students who will commit themselves to try to make America work as a viable society. The end of innocence does not need to entail the loss of hope."

Nearly 400 families from as far away as California and Hawaii came for Parents' Day.

LAZER TO LECTURE ON ENTREPRENEURSHIP

William Lazer of Florida Atlantic University will speak on "Entrepreneurship in the 21st Century" on Wednesday, October 28, from 6 to 8 pm at the Watergate Hotel. Lazer is Eugene and Christine Lynn Eminent Scholar in Business Administration at Florida Atlantic.

A nationally recognized leader in marketing education and a prolific writer, Lazer has been honored for his lasting contributions to marketing thought and practice in several areas including: developing a framework for managerial approaches to marketing; advancing the use of consumer lifestyles as applied to marketing; developing the interdisciplinary approach to marketing; research breakthroughs on marketing in Japan; and the application of systems thinking to marketing.

Sponsored by the School of Government and Business Administration, Lazer's presentation is part of GW's Howard P. Hoffman Entrepreneurship Lecture Series. Admission is free but tickets are required. For information call 46115.

FACULTY-STAFF GIVING TO CAMPAIGN FOR GEORGE WASHINGTON EXCEEDS GOAL

Individual contributions by members of the University's faculty and staff to the Campaign for George Washington have reached $2.145 in a year's time, exceeding the goal of $2 million set by the campaign's Faculty Staff Committee for a five-year period.

Professor of Public Administration Susan J. Tolchin announced this good news at a meeting of the Board of Trustees Committee on University Development and the campaign's Executive Committee on October 15.

Commenting on this success, Vice President for Development and University Relations Michael J. Worth said, "It is both gratifying and heartening to realize that the members of the faculty and staff are so genuinely in support of our University and its goals."

The campaign has now attained 55.8 percent of its goal of $75 million, he said. As of October 15, the total amount of gifts and pledges had reached $41,884,825.

KAMMEN EXAMINES ORIGINS OF AMERICAN TRADITIONS

"Once we got a sense of national heritage, then, and only then could we add the regional concept of memory," Michael Kammen told his audience in a lecture titled, "The Problem of Tradition and the Role of Democracy in American Culture," October 19 in the Marvin Center.

Kammen, returned to campus as a Distinguished Alumni Scholar. Now Newton C. Farr Professor of American History and Culture at Cornell University, he received his B.A. from George Washington with a major in history in 1958.

Tracing the development in America of what he called a "sense of conscious past," Dr. Kammen began with the period from 1870 to 1910. Then, he said, a key buzz word was "memory". From 1910 to the Second World War, he said the key word becomes "tradition," with a related variable of regionalism. From 1945 to the present, he said, the key word is "heritage -- a word now ubiquitous."

Noting that traditionalism took hold slowly in American culture, he identified the 1920s as a pivotal period in this development. He referred to the concept that the United States was nature's nation. He said that often when Americans were taunted about our lack of structures, they would point to wonders of nature, such as Natural Bridge or Niagara Falls, and say, "These are our cathedrals." Kammen pointed out that when the National Gallery of Art opened in 1941, it had only 11 American paintings and, that by 1981, more than 1,000 had been added.

Dr. Kammen used slides of paintings to show the orientation of Americans toward European tradition and traced the development in the 1920s of what he called "an American aesthetic." He said that at first objects were valued by association, by being linked to some American historical personage, but that in the 1920s there was a shift in emphasis to the intrinsic value of an object itself, to simplicity of line and quality of workmanship. He told his listeners that one popular journal said of collecting, "It's a creed."

By 1937 and 1938, reproductions of American furniture were being enthusiastically produced and bought up, he said, and people demanded to see plans of colonial houses so they could copy them. The American Embassy in Helsinki, Finland, was built in 1939 to resemble an American townhouse, he noted.

"Colonial Williamsburg was immediately perceived as a national icon, a site of touristic importance," Professor Kammen declared, adding that the opening of the American Wing of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York had also given marked impetus to an American interest in the colonial period.

"In the 1930s, we see a big shift to people feeling more secure that we had a national heritage and tradition so that regionalism becomes a strong feeling," he continued. Primitive painting with a historic orientation became very important then, he said, with two "pervasive icons." The elm, perceived as a tree of durability and source of strength, and the old house were constantly depicted.

Among the signs of democratization of tradition in the 1920s, Dr. Kammen said, was the emergence of genealogical societies that would help anyone trace an ancestral line, such societies having been largely elite in the 19th century. As examples of a growing interest in our ethnic traditions, Dr. Kammen mentioned the development of Old Salem Village in Winston Salem, North Carolina, which has special meaning for German Americans, and the attention now paid to marginal groups such as the Quakers.

Dr. Kammen said that in the 1920s, people had a growing sense of confidence that pride in ethnic traditions is fully compatible with pride in national traditions and that this has continued to the present day.

DISTINGUISHED ALUMNI SCHOLAR Michael Kammen, right, talked with Andrea Foster, a doctoral candidate in American Studies, following his October 19 lecture.

GUBERNICK ELECTED ALUMNI TRUSTEE

Ira Gubernick, a 1986 graduate of the School of Government and Business Administration, (Bachelor of Accountancy, with distinction), was elected an Alumni Trustee at the October 22 meeting of the Board of Trustees.

Gubernick, who was the president of the GW Student Association in 1985-86, is now a candidate for the degree of juris doctor at the New York University School of Law in the class of 1989. He was the recipient of the Distinguished Scholar Award in SGBA for 1985-86. A member of the academic honor societies Beta Gamma Sigma, Beta Alpha Psi, and Phi Eta Sigma, he was on the Dean's List for seven consecutive semesters. His memberships also include Omicron Delta Kappa, leadership honorary.

In 1986, he received a George Washington Award for outstanding contributions to the University. In 1983, he served as a congressional intern for U.S. Representative Robert Edgar (D-Pa.). A student member of the Marvin Center Governing Board (1984-85), he was also a participant in intramural athletics. In his fraternity, Zeta Beta Tau, he was 1984 scholarship chairman.

BRIEFLY. . .

Conductor William Wright will lead the GWU Community Orchestra's performance on Sunday, November 1, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. The program, which includes selected works by Mozart, Grieg and von Weber, will feature pianist Chu Young Min. The concert is sponsored by the Department of Music. Admission is free.

GW's annual Halloween ARTBREAK will be Friday, October 30, on the H Street Terrace of the Marvin Center from 11 am to 2 pm. Students, faculty and staff are invited to create a mask with supplied art materials as a Halloween celebration and stress release. The event is sponsored by the Counseling Center and the Residence Task Force on ARTBREAK and Stress Management. For more information, contact Tall Tripp, coordinator of Art Therapy Services, or Irma Marcellino, resident counselor, at the Counseling Center, 46550.

GW Communications announces that long distance dialing instructions will change beginning November 1 to a 1 + long distance direct dialing plan. On-campus users, except those calling from Riverside Towers, should dial 9 + 1 + area code + phone number + authorization code. Off-campus, callers from a Centrex line must dial 16 + 9 + 1 + area code + phone number + authorization code. From other exchanges in area codes 202, 301 and 703, including Riverside Towers, dial 1 + area code + phone number.

The campus Red Cross Blood Drive will be Thursday, October 29, between 11 am and 5 pm, in the Marvin Center Ballroom. To make a donor appointment, call the Student Activities Office at 46555. For answers to questions of donor eligibility, call Stephanie Norrell of the Red Cross Nursing Office at 728-6560.

PROFESSOR M. MELTZER DIES

Professor of Psychology Malcolm L. Meltzer died July 19 of this year. He was 57. Dr. Meltzer was a member of the Department of Psychology form 1967 until his death.

Born in Baltimore, Maryland, he earned a B.A. (1951) from Western Maryland College and an M.A. (1954) and a Ph.D. (1957) both from The Catholic University of America.

He joined the University faculty in 1967 and was promoted to full professor in 1970. From 1967 to 1975, he was director of clinical training in the Department of Psychology. Professor Meltzer founded the Psychological Services Center at GW early in 1980 and served as its director through May, 1987. The center is an integral part of the Psychology Department's Clinical Training Program, providing both a training and supervisory setting and a source of financial support for graduate students. Under Professor Meltzer's leadership, the Psychological Services Center took special interest in the development of innovative assessment and treatment programs designed to meet the mental health needs of disadvantaged populations.

An active member of both the national and local psychological associations, Dr. Meltzer served on many committees and was elected president of Division 13 of the American Psychological Association in 1974. For over 20 years, he was an involved and participating member of the District of Columbia Psychological Association, serving as president in 1967. He was also a contributor to scholarly professional journals.

ARTISTIC UNIVERSITY FAMILY EXHIBIT INVITES SUBMISSIONS

The Governing Board of the Cloyd Heck Marvin Center is planning a juried exhibition of art works by University students, faculty and staff who are not currently enrolled in an art degree program.

To be called "The Artistic University Family," the exhibition will run from November 12 to December 10. All full- or part-time members of the University community are encouraged to submit artworks. The exhibit will be installed in the Colonnade Gallery, third floor, Marvin Center. Works will be accepted according to the stated eligibility criteria for the show.

Entry forms and criteria for eligibility are available from the Administrative Offices of Marvin Center (second floor). Questions? Call the Colonnade Gallery, 49188, Mon, Wed, Thurs, between 10 am and 2 pm. Submission deadline is Friday, November 6.

---

A GALLERY TALK on Dimock Gallery's current exhibition, "Tough Realism," will be given by Curator Lenore Miller and artists whose works are being shown on Saturday, October 31, in the gallery at 1:30 pm. Artists Fred Folsom and Lisa Brotman have been invited to participate. Seasonal refreshments will be served. Admission is free.

DANCER Nancy Sedgwick, a member of the Spanish Dance Society, was one of a 10-member troupe from the society dancing in the Colonnade Gallery on October 15 at a reception held in conjunction with the current exhibition there on Spanish Dance at GW.

ZWERDLING TO SPEAK ON AMERICAN FICTION

University Professor of English Alex Zwerdling, will speak on "Contemporary American Fiction" in the First Wednesday Lecture series, on November 4. Zwerdling will discuss common characterizations of works by American fiction writers and social visions which emerge from a reading of the contemporary American novel. The lecture will be in the Continental Room of the Marvin Center, third floor. Dinner at the University Club will be served at 6:30 pm, for both members and non-members. Call the club directly for dinner reservations at 46610. Call 46435 to reserve space at the lecture.

STATISTICS SPONSORS 50TH ANNIVERSARY SYMPOSIUM

The Department of Statistics/Computer and Information Systems is sponsoring a 50th Anniversary Symposium from 8:15 am to 5:30 pm on Friday, October 30.

Professor Fred Mosteller of Harvard University will give the keynote address at 9:30 am. Professor Herbert Solomon of Stanford University will be the featured luncheon speaker.

Subjects for the symposium sessions will include: Developments in Biostatistics; Computing and Statistics -- The Present and Future; Developments in Time Series; Statistics in Public Policy; and Bayesian Inference and the Future of Statistics. A distinguished roster of speakers has been assembled for the symposium.

All symposium events will take place in the Marvin Center. For information call 46356.

GRADUATE AND PROFESSIONAL SCHOOL FAIR OCTOBER 27-28

Over 150 university representatives will be available to discuss graduate school options at the Graduate and Professional School Fair, Tuesday, October 27, and Wednesday, October 28, from 2 to 7 pm in the third floor of the Marvin Center. Sponsored by 11 area colleges and universities, the fair will concentrate on law schools and legal careers on Tuesday and a variety of graduate study possibilities on Wednesday. For more information, call 41325.

HARDEN M. McCONNEL SPEAKS TODAY

Harden M. McConnell, Robert Eckles Swain Professor of Chemistry at Stanford University, returns to the GW campus today as a Distinguished Alumni Scholar.

Professor McConnell will speak on "Pictures of Chemistry in Two Dimensions" at 3:30 pm in the Naeser Room of Corcoran Hall, 725 - 21st Street, NW. The lecture is open to the entire University community.

GW RADIO-TV STUDIOS CELEBRATE OPENING

Events planned in to highlight the University's new radio-TV studios are scheduled this week and next. All events will be in the studio building, 814 20th Street, NW.

Today, Monday, October 26, from 2 to 4 pm, there will be a communication colloquium, "Between Husbands and Wives: Power, Conflict and Control in Marital Interaction." Admission is free. Another free communication colloquium -- "Ethics: Do They Matter in TV?" -- is set for 7 pm Wednesday, October 28.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony, with President Lloyd H. Elliott officiating, will take place on Thursday, October 29, at 5 pm. The event is open to the public.

Friday and Saturday, October 30 and 31, there will be a Faculty Seminar on International Communication. A registration fee will be required.

For further information, call the Department of Communication, 40021.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITY

ROBERT C. WATERS, professor of engineering administration, attended the Eighth Annual Meeting of the American Society for Engineering Management in St. Louis earlier this month. He chaired a session, "New Enterprise Management," and presented a paper, "Quantifying Project Management Uncertainties," written by PRESSON S. SHANE, professor of engineering administration. At the meeting, MOHAMMED A. MUSTAFA, doctoral candidate in Engineering Administration, presented a paper, "Microcomputer-Based Multicriteria Expert Support System for Engineering Project Selection and Resource Allocation." The paper was co-winner of the Student Paper Competition. Mustafa received an award of $250.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Full-time, The Department of Dermatology. (Individual to perform basic research on the immune system in mice, and culture of immunologic cells in vitro. Successful applicant will be involved in helping to establish new research laboratory and will gain experience in new research area. Bachelor's degree in biology necessary, some experience in research laboratory preferred.) Contact Dr. Frances Noonan, Room 124, Ross Hall, Telephone number, 40408.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

November 2, 1987

GW Report

(489)

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

HARDEN McCONNELL DESCRIBES CHEMICAL RESEARCH

Dr. Harden McConnell, Robert Eckles Swain Professor of Chemistry at Stanford University, came to campus as a Distinguished Alumni Scholar October 26. In the afternoon, he gave a lecture entitled "Pictures of Chemistry in Two Dimensions."

Speaking to an attentive audience representing various disciplines in the humanities and sciences, Dr. McConnell described his current research in physical chemistry, a study of monolayer lipid molecules at an air-water interface. This is a two-dimensional system that is relevant to biological membranes. He traced the sequence of the research he performed and explained that a lipid molecule has one side water-repellant and the other side, water-loving.

IMAGES of lipid molecule crystals were presented on a blackboard by Dr. Harden McConnell during his October 26 lecture.

With a series of slides, he showed the crystals that were produced by the introduction of some cholesterol into a dual-phase system. "Crystals grow in size and become thinner in this circumstance," Dr. McConnell said.

His last slide presented an ancient rock painted with a circular design, thought to have been done by Hopi Indians, bearing a marked resemblance to the shapes of the crystals of the lipid molecules seen through his microscope. "I think we may not have been the first to do research along this line," he commented. "There is just no end of possibilities in the current field of inquiry into lipid molecules."

OPEN HOUSE -- Department of Communication Chairman Robert S. Fortner, seated, showed the audio control board in the Radio Training Control Room of the department's new facilities to Professor of Chinese Chung-Wen Shih during an October 25 open house.

COLUMBIAN COLLEGE ADOPTS NEW CORE CURRICULUM

When the Columbian College faculty voted October 23 to adopt a new modified core curriculum, the action came after almost two years of preparation through discussion and committee work.

"This is a milestone," says Professor of History Peter P. Hill, who served as chairman of the college's Curriculum Committee.

"The basic thrust of the change is to move toward a more focused development of intellectual abilities and competencies in our students," comments Columbian College Dean Clara Lovett.

The report and recommendations of the committee to the faculty, noted two questions the committee had asked itself and was asking the faculty:

1. What are the basic intellectual abilities and skills that all liberally educated men and women should possess and that will be useful to them -- whatever their personal and professional goals may be -- throughout their adult lives?

2. What are the fundamental areas of knowledge that all liberally educated men and women should master, at least to some degree, in order to rise to the challenges of the contemporary world?

A point of departure for the deliberations of the nine-member committee was the currently used system of "meaningful initiation," defined in the early 1970s as an introduction to various disciplines represented in the departments of the college.

The modified core curriculum, to go into effect in the fall of 1988, uses eight categories to organize the general educational requirements of the college.

The categories are:
Literacy, acceptable standards of literacy, reading and writing skills;
Quantitative and/or Logical Reasoning, intended to develop or improve basic

continued on back

FORMER U.S. CONGRESSMAN FISHER TO ADDRESS SEHD CONFERENCE

Former U.S. Congressman Joseph L. Fisher will give the Harry Grubb Detwiler Memorial Address at SEHD's November 7 conference, "New Directions XII." Conference sessions will be held in Funger Hall between 9 am and 12:45 pm.

Fisher, now distinguished visiting professor of political economy and special assistant to the president, George Mason University, will discuss "Education and Economics in Our Nation's Third Century." He will speak at 9 am.

There will be two sets of seminars, the first from 10 to 11:20 am, and the second, from 11:30 to 12:40 pm. Seminar leaders will be members of the SEHD faculty. A sandwich luncheon will be served in Funger Hall lobby at 12:45 pm.

Topics will include: computer databases as sources of solutions for everyday problems; minorities and mathematics; perceptions of empowerment; a school law update; teacher education-alternative training models; multi-dimensional wellness; dual career marriages; and human resource development/adult education.

There is no fee for the conference, which is open to graduates, students, potential students and friends of SEHD. Those planning to attend are asked to call the SEHD Dean's Office, 46160.

COMMUNICATION DEPARTMENT OCCUPIES HISTORIC BUILDINGS

The cornerstone for the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, now the location for our Department of Communication radio and TV teaching studios, was laid on July 1, 1846. United Church records state the lots for the structure had cost $2,000.

In 1984, the University concluded an agreement with the church board, for construction of the studios inside the existing building. Renovation was begun in 1985 and, after some delays because of the age and state of the building, was completed in time for use beginning this semester.

The parsonage next door, built in 1866 at a cost of $3,500, has been renovated for faculty offices and a conference room. The parsonage also houses the department's radio station, WRTV, which expects to be broadcasting into GW dormitories later this semester.

During the Civil War, the church was used as a Union Army surgical hospital. The building was extensively repaired in 1899 and the parsonage was expanded to its current three floors. A bell tower was built around 1904, but was never used. A new city ordinance at that time forbade the ringing of church bells so the tower was never fitted with a bell. In 1910, the stained glass memorial windows were installed and a new pipe organ and a choir balcony were added to the sanctuary. The space occupied by the main body of the church is now the television studio.

In 1932, and again from 1935 to 1937, the church underwent extensive repairs. In the latter period, electricity was installed in both church and parsonage. The University used the church for classes, meetings and music rehearsals and promised the church board that it would never disturb the property.

Major renovations were planned in 1953, including a three-story building at the rear of the church, a kitchen, a redesigned sanctuary and a new pipe organ. The cornerstone was laid in January, 1955, and the newly remodeled facility was opened on September 11 of that year. This time, the repairs cost a total of $180,000 and the church's rose window was moved from the rear to the front of the building. In 1967, more repairs were undertaken and the parsonage, called "a disaster," was thoroughly remodeled.

On December 1, 1974, the Union congregation vacated the building and joined with Concordia Church at the corner of 20th and G Streets, NW, to form the present United Church.

The United Church continued to own the buildings, as it does today, allowing them to be used by various other congregations, social ministries, a Bible college and Hillel, until the agreement was concluded with the University for the leasing of the space and the construction of the studios.

COLUMBIAN COLLEGE continued

ability to reason using abstract symbols or numbers;
Conceptual Foundations and Development of Natural Science, to involve an experience of the natural sciences themselves, with attention to the logical and historic development of the field;
Social and Behavioral Sciences, to give a broad understanding of the effects of personality and social organization on public events and on the behavior of individuals and groups;
Creative and Performing Arts, to encourage direct participation in creative or performing art or the development of a basis for evaluating artistic creativity;
Literature, study of the major works of at least one great literary tradition;
Western Society and Civilization, examination in historical context of forces which have made fundamental contributions to shaping the character and identity of western civilization; and Foreign Language or Culture, demonstrated foreign language competency above the elementary level or a broad study of a single non-English-speaking culture.

DISCUSSION, "PREPARE NOW FOR SUCCESS LATER"

"Prepare Now for Success Later" will be the topic addressed by Anne Marie Alexander (Columbian College '76) on Thursday, November 5, at 7:30 pm in the lounge at Alumni House, 714-21st Street,N.W.

Ms. Alexander is a First Advantage College Relations Coordinator for First American Bankshares. The company's Corporate Professional Development Program trains graduates of arts and sciences programs as well as business schools for management careers.

The program, sponsored by the Student Support Committee of the Columbian College Alumni Association, is designed for undeclared arts and sciences majors. Ms. Alexander will recommend focus on skills that undergraduates should consider acquiring in order to be more competitive in the job market.

Participants must register in advance at the Career Services Center in the Academic Center, room T-509.

BRIEFLY. . .

BETTY, a women's musical ensemble performing original compositions, will appear at Lisner Auditorium on Friday, November 6, and Saturday, November 7, at 8 pm. The concert is sponsored by the Women's Studies Program. Call 46860 for more information.

John Yurechko, senior analyst, Department of Defense, will discuss "Soviet Views on Coaltion Warfare," tomorrow, November 3, from 2 to 4 pm in Lisner Auditorium. The lecture is sponsored by the Security Studies Policy Program and SIA.

James E. Clifford, director of Personnel Services, has announced the appointment of Sue Bilsky as acting manager of Records and Benefits. She replaces Wayne Collins, and will administer the Records and Benefits Division until a new manager is selected.

OKTOBERFEST -- Adele Haddad, left, Foggy Bottom resident and GW master's candidate in art, talked with Anne N. Suydam of University Relations at our neighborhood's October 24 Oktoberfest. Information on winter care of plants, the alumni course-audit program and discount coupons for GW theatre and dance performances were available at the University's table.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEW

DENNIS GALE, associate professor of urban and regional planning, was interviewed for an article which appeared in The Washington Post on September 14. Gale commented on the population changes in the District of Columbia.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JUDY FINDLAY, program coordinator in the Reading Center, and CHRISTIAN GERHARD, associate professorial lecturer in education leadership, both gave papers at the United Kingdom Reading Association Annual Meeting in Edinburgh, Scotland in July. Findlay reported on the 10 years of experience with the Reading Center's after-school gifted program of which she is now the director. Gerhard's paper outlined what research has indicated teachers of younger students can do to improve their chances of success in the upper grades.

DONALD E. HAWKINS, professor of travel and tourism and research professor of medicine, presented papers on "Business Travel Trends" and "Impact of World Events on Tourism in Scandanavia" at the First International Tourism Conference in Scandanavia, September 9 in Copenhagen, Denmark.

PETER F. KLAREN, professor of history, lectured on "The Andean Past" at the Foreign Service Institute of the Department of State on August 27.

DORN McGRATH, professor of urban and regional planning, spoke at the 40th anniversary symposium convened by the National Capital Area Chapter of the American Planning Association on September 30. He discussed the problematic evaluation of planning institutions in government in the Washington metropolitan area during the past two decades. At the annual meeting of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, held October 7-11, in Washington, McGrath gave two presentations. The first dealt with historic preservation planning and action by GW. The second, on urban neighborhood revitalization and historic preservation was based on ongoing projects in planning and development that he has conducted with Old Anacostia community groups during the past 15 years.

RAYMOND L. PICKHOLTZ, professor of engineering and applied science, presented a co-authored paper, "The Performance of a k=4, Rate = 3/4, 16-QAM Trellis Code" at MILCOM '87 in McLean, Virginia, on October 21. He served as chairman of the session on "Spread Spectrum" and was a panelist in the plenary session.

JERROLD POST, professor of psychiatry and public policy, participated in a symposium on "Terrorism: Research and Public Policy" at the School of American Research in Santa Fe, New Mexico, October 11-18. The symposium was jointly sponsored by the Guggenheim Foundation and the School of American Research. Post presented a paper: "Differentiating Terrorist Psychologies: The Basis for a Rational Differentiated Anti-Terrorist Policy." Proceedings of the symposium will be published by Cambridge University Press. Post also presented a paper on "The Captive King and His Captive Court: Psychopolitical Dynamics of the Disabled Leader and his Inner Circle" at the Annual meeting of the American Political Science Association in Chicago in September. In addition, Post was recently appointed to the American Psychiatric Association's Task Force on Terrorism.

LOIS SCHWOERER, professor of history, was installed as president of the North American Conference on British Studies (NACBS) at its annual meeting in Portland, Oregon, October 15-18. NACBS is a scholarly society dedicated to the study of British civilization. It is closely affiliated as a parent organization with seven regional conferences. It sponsors two scholarly journals and a newsletter, publishes a bibliographical handbook and a monograph series, holds scholarly meetings, awards three annual prizes and promotes visits by foreign scholars. Professor Schwoerer has been appointed a Fellow of the Freedom Institute at Washington University in St. Louis. She delivered a paper on "Liberty of the Press in the Context of the Glorious Revolution: The Retrospective View" at a meeting of the Institute October 21-24.

DAVID E. SILBER, professor of psychology, chaired a presentation on psychology and the Secret Service at the May meeting of the District of Columbia Psychological Association. He is quoted in the association's October-November newsletter as saying that the mark of success for the Secret Service is for nothing to happen.

ROBERT W. SWEZEY, profes - sorial lecturer in the departments of Engineering Administration and Psychology, was elected to the status of Fellow in the American Psychological Association (APA) by its Division 21 (the Society of Engineering and Applied Experimental Psychologists) at the APA's recent annual meeting in New York. He was one of three such honorees. Swezey is director of the Behavioral Sciences Division at Science Applications International Corporation in McLean, Va. He is the co-author (with Siegfried Streufert of the Pennsylvania State University) of a book entitled Complexity, Managers, and Organizations (Academic Press, 1986).

PUBLICATIONS

PETER CAWS, university professor of philosophy, an article, "The Humanities in a Technological Age," in Societal Issues, Scientific Viewpoints, Margaret A. Strom, ed.

ANTHONY COATES, professor of geology, a chapter, Cnidaria, co-authored with Dr. William Oliver of the U.S. Geological Survey, in a new textbook, Fossil Invertebrates, published by Blackwell Scientific Pulications, Palo Alto, Oxford and London, 713 pages, 1987. The book is the result of the cooperation of 27 authors; all roylaties have been donated to the Paleontological Society of America to support research in the science of paleontology.

PERSONNEL NOTICE

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, Full-time, the Department of Radiology. (Individual to research and evaluate teaching methodologies and student assessment methods. Individual must hold a master's degree or equivalent in education or science related to medical education.) Send resume to Dr. Robert Allman, professor and chairman, Department of Radiology.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

November 9, 1987

GW Report

(490)

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

GENERAL COLIN POWELL OF NSC SPEAKS AT GW

Lt. Gen. Colin L. Powell, U.S.A., deputy assistant to the president for National Security Affairs (NSC), and a George Washington alumnus, was honored at SGBA's annual Statesman Luncheon November 2. He spoke on "The NSC Process." The event was jointly sponsored with the National Law Center.

General Powell, who received a Master of Business Administration from GW in 1971, spoke highly of his two years as an SGBA graduate student. "The great lesson I took away from that experience and that I've applied through the years, is that management always comes down to helping people to achieve organizational goals that they believe in," he said.

Describing his experience in his present post, Powell said, "When Mr. Carlucci and I arrived (at the White House) January 2 of this year, we had an organizational problem. The National Security Council staff and process had been dealt a very severe blow by the events of last November and December. The goals were still there -- to push forward the president's agenda in international affairs and national security.

"Frank's mission," Powell continued, "was to reaffirm those goals and to work with the people he had brought in with him as well as most of the people still on the National Security Council staff -- as dedicated a group of professionals as you could ever wish to work with --to take this human talent and help them achieve the goals of the president and the goals of the administration. It was a fundamentally sound organization. Our task was to tune it up a little bit, to restore some confidence and credibility in it and to allow those human beings to work to achieve the organizational goals."

The general said, in their efforts to put the NSC working process back together, the recommendations of the Tower Commission, appointed by President Reagan to "look into the so-called Irangate matter," were the fundamental model. "Essentially what we have now is a very disciplined interagency process," he stated. Powell said a three-month's review of all the covert action programs in the United States government resulted in the elimination of some programs that did not satisfy a specific policy objective and that no programs were eliminated because they were illegal or had not been properly reported to the Congress. He also noted that a conscious decision was made not to run any operations out of the NSC, that "all of that now belongs to the proper line organizations of government.

"I think I can report to you the actions that have been taken under Frank Carlucci's direction over the past 10 months have put the process back in place and restored credibility back to the interagency process and I think you'd be pleased at the manner in which the NSC is doing business for the United States," he told his listeners.

Commenting on the events leading up to the announcement of the upcoming December 7 summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet General Secretary Gorbachev, he said the prior week (October 26) had been "fascinating." The rapid change from no to yes on the part of the Soviet Union with regard to plans for arms talks and the summit showed, he felt, "a very confident Secretary Gorbachev." He noted the Soviet ability to use the media "in a way that is rather unusual, almost unprecedented." Powell observed, "Last Tuesday (October 27), while the Soviets were sending us secret transmissions that they were about to make a change, Tass and Izvestia were already out in Moscow backgrounding and sending signals of the nature of the change that was coming."

Of the approaching arms talks, Powell said, "I think we will be able to come to closure on an INF agreement and we should be able to see our way toward another summit meeting in Moscow in the spring." In answer to a question on verification of arms inspection, the general answered, "We have included one of the most intrusive programs that's ever been put down on paper for the upcoming negotiations."

GRADUATE AND PROFESSIONAL SCHOOL FAIR -- Simmons College representative Jim Matarazzo, left, discussed graduate programs with an attentive visitor at the fair on Wednesday, October 28. A record number of 1,828 individuals came to the two-day event in the Marvin Center (Oct. 27, 28) sponsored by 11 area colleges and universities.

GW DANCE COMPANY CONCERTS, NOVEMBER 12, 13, 14

The GW Dance Company will present its fall dance concerts Thursday through Saturday, November 12-14, at 8 pm, in the Marvin Theatre.

The performances will feature guest artist Greg Simeone. Lighting design will be by William DeMull of New York City.

Associate Professors of Dance Maida R. Withers and Nancy D. Johnson are co-directing the performances, which will present works choreographed by dance students Allison Ball, Laurie Dickmann, Barbara Evans, John Lancaster and Regina Ward. For more information, call 48072.

GRAND OPENING OF COMMUNICATIONS DEPARTMENT

In a ceremony marking the grand opening of the radio and television facility of the Department of Communication, Columbian College Dean Clara Lovett officially cut the ribbon, having been handed the scissors a moment before by President Lloyd H. Elliott. A brief interlude of rock music and psychedelic lights followed.

The October 29 event in the facility's large television studio began with an invocation by University Marshal Robert G. Jones and a welcome by Communication Chairman Robert S. Fortner. He presented a framed certificate to Associate Professor of Communication Joan Thiel in recognition of her "perseverance and conscientious dedication" representing the faculty and students in working out the design and construction of the facility.

"What marvelous things may happen here?" asked President Elliott, in informal remarks. "The University has crossed a threshold into a new area," he said. "We needed to do so, particularly this University in this city. The media have become too powerful not to make them the subjects of careful, reflective study," he continued. "If the power of the media is to be used for good ends, it must be directed by men and women who have been educated in the best traditions of our civilization. The study of communications has always been one of the liberal arts. It remains so today. The Columbian College of Arts and Sciences is to be commended for maintaining this tradition in the modern context."

A tribute to the late Professor Emeritus of Speech Edwin L. Stevens was given by DePew Professor of Speech William Reynolds, who said it was largely through Stevens' "persuasion and buttonholing" in the late 1960s that the department added TV courses and created a small studio in the basement of Lisner Auditorium. "This magnificent facility," Reynolds said, "began with his dream."

The Reverend M. Michael Morse of the United Church, in a prayer of dedication, asked that the facility "be a place in which people will learn and grow in human understanding, a place where differences might enrich rather than divide, a place to enhance work and labor not only at George Washington but a place to be a credit to the whole Foggy Bottom community, its churches, its businesses and, most of all, its people."

"STOP SMOKING" WORKSHOP

Is it time to call it quits? The Wellness Resource Center will sponsor a free "Stop Smoking" Workshop for all University faculty, staff and students beginning Monday, November 16. The five-session workshop will be held on November 16, 18, 23, 30 and December 2 from 12 noon to 1 pm in Building K, Room 105.

Based on the Freshstart program of the American Cancer Society, the workshops are taught by trained facilitators. Pre-registration is required. Contact the Wellness Resource Center for more information.

SEAS COLLOQUIUM: PRODUCTION AND INVENTORY MANAGEMENT

"Some New Directions in Production and Inventory Management" will be discussed by Dr. Victoria Mabin of the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, Wellington, New Zealand, at an SEAS colloquium, Wednesday, November 11, from 6 to 7 pm, in Room 414, Marvin Center.

Dr. Mabin will examine issues surrounding two concepts which may be revolutionizing production and inventory management in the U.S. and Japan. Admission is free. Call 46084 for more information.

RED CROSS BLOOD DRIVE -- Eleanor Nelson of the Red Cross, left, stayed by Laura Weisbart, SGBA junior in finance, one of 68 donors in our October 29 blood drive. The donor goal was 60 so with 68, 108 percent of GW's goal was achieved.

JOYCE KORNBLATT TO PRESENT READINGS NOVEMBER 12

Joyce Kornblatt, author of two novels, Breaking Bread and White Water, and a collection of stories, Nothing To Do With Love, will read from her works on Thursday, November 12, at 8 pm in the Academic Center, B-120. A reception will follow.

She is a teacher of English and writing at the University of Maryland. The readings are open without charge. For more information, contact the Department of English, 46180.

HANDBOOK FOR SPONSORED PROGRAMS AVAILABLE

The Office of Sponsored Research recently mailed copies of "The Handbook for Sponsored Programs" to all faculty members. The handbook contains University policies and procedures concerning the administration of sponsored programs. Additional copies can be obtained from Helen Spencer at extension 46255.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

WILLIAM C. ADAMS, professor of public administration, was interviewed for an article which appeared in The New York Times on August 13 about his essay, "As New Hampshire Goes...," which stresses the significance of the Iowa caucuses, to be held on February 6, 1988, and the New Hampshire primary, scheduled for February 16. The essay is part of a new book, Media and Momentum: The New Hampshire Primary and Nomination Politics, edited by Gary R. Orren and Nelson W. Polsby, published by Chatham House Publishers, Chatham, N.J.

HERBERT J. DAVIS, professor of business administration, was interviewed on August 10 by the Voice of America. The subject was the recent World Bank-sponsored Bangladesh Management Education and Training project organized and conducted for 12 faculty members from the faculties of commerce throughout Bangladesh. The program was carried out in SGBA May 16 to August 13.

CHRISTOPHER J. DEERING, associate professor of political science, was interviewed by WGCH radio of Greenwich, Connecticut, after President Reagan's nationally televised address on the Iran-Contra affair, August 12.

CHARLES F. ELLIOT, associate professor of political science and international affairs, appeared on a nationally broadcast round-table discussion on C-Span cable television on August 27. Dr. Elliot was one of three panelists on the two-hour broadcast which dealt with Gorbachev's policy of glasnost. Callers' questions were answered on the air by the panelists. Elliot was also interviewed on NBC's Channel 4 News.

PHILLIP D. GRUB, Aryamehr professor of Multinational Management, was interviewed by CBS News regarding President Reagan's trade sanctions against Iran. The segment was broadcast on CBS Radio October 28 and 29 as well as WTOP Radio and National Public Radio on October 29

MASK MAKING was serious business at the October 30 Artbreak, sponsored by the Counseling Center and the Residence Life Task Force on Art Therapy.

DORN C. McGRATH JR., professor of urban and regional planning, in his capacity as Chairman of the Committee of 100 on the Federal City, appeared on the Channel 7 news program, "22:26", on Sunday, October 18, to discuss problems of metropolitan growth and planning in the Washington area. The program, moderated by Maureen Bunyan, addressed controversial issues of development affecting all of the suburban counties and the District of Columbia. Other discussants were Edward Cronin, president of the Washington Board of Trade, and Jay Langford (MURP '75), chief of planning and analysis with the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

EDWARD D. BERKOWITZ, associate professor of history, has been awarded a Robert Wood Johnson Foundation fellowship in health care finance for 1987-88. He will study current social welfare issues and problems in the health care finance field. Berkowitz will spend four months at Johns Hopkins University conferring with medical doctors and health care economists. He will then spend eight months completing his research in a major private or public health care financing organization, health maintenance organization, or medical center.

SHERWIN GREEN, professor of urban and regional planning, spoke at a multidisciplinary workshop on October 10 at the Urban Land Institute's (ULI) annual conference in Los Angeles. Based on a study undertaken last summer under a grant from the ULI, his presentation focused on opportunities for improving the physical design aspects of Bethesda, Maryland's central area. The project helped initiate ULI's pilot studey of Suburban Activity Centers which included both Bethesda and Tysons Corner as case studies.

PETER F. KLAREN, professor of history, lectured on "The Andean Past" at the Foreign Service Institute of the Department of State on August 27.

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history, delivered two lectures on architecture as an emblem of change and conservatism in late 19th century Kansas on September 18 and 19. The program was jointly sponsored by the Americab Institute of Architects and the Wichita-Sedgwick County Historical Museum, Wichita, Kansas. Longstreth spoke at a session on design and preservation in Washington, D.C., at the 41st National Preservation Conference in Washington on October 9. He presented a critical analysis of preservation education in the U.S. at the eighth General Assembly of the International Council on Monuments and Sites in Washington on October 11; gave a lecture on "J.C. Nichols: The Patron as Community Builder," at the School of Architecture, University of North Carolina, Charlotte, on October 21; and moderated a session and delivered the concluding paper at a symposium on "The Washington Mall, 1791-1991" at the National Gallery of Art, October 30-31.

DORN C. McGRATH JR., professor of urban and regional planning, was a panel leader September 19 at the Fifth Annual Conference on Waterfronts, "Urban Waterfronts '87 --Water: The Ultimate Amenity." The panel addressed the theme, "The Value of Hindsight--Lessons We Have Learned." McGrath's presentation, "The Legacy of the 'Quick Fix'," reviewed waterfront development experience in Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, New York and Washington. The same day, McGrath served as design critic for schemes submitted by four teams of architects, planners, landscape architects and artists to improve downtown Washington's Convention Center, arts district and retail core. The competition was sponsored by the Downtown Partnership and the District Government.

JONATHAN D. MORENO, associate professor of philosophy and health care sciences, participated in a panel discussion on "Artificial Reproductive Technologies" at the meetings of the American Public Health Association in New Orleans, Louisiana on October 20.

LEONARD NADLER, professor of human resource developement and adult education, was one of four facilitators at the first National Congress for Adults with Special Learning Needs which culminated in a call for action by educators who serve adults and by organizations which serve the disabled. The congress was held at Gallaudet University in Washington, D.C., on October 19 and 20.

PHYLLIS PALMER, assistant professor of women's studies and of American civilization, spoke on a panel on "The Politics of Women's History: Feminist Advocacy and the Meaning of Difference" at the seventh Berkshire Conference on the History of Women at Wellesley College, June 19.

RAYMOND L. PICKHOLTZ, professor of engineering and applied science, presented a co-authored paper, "The Performance of a k=4, Rate = 3/4, 16-QAM Trellis Code" at MILCOM '87 in McLean, Virginia on October 21. He served as chairman of the session on "Spread Spectrum" and was a panelist in the plenary session.

JERROLD POST, professor of psychiatry and public policy, participated in the 10th annual meeting of the International Society of Political Psychology in San Francisco in July. Post directed a workshop on "The Psychology of Conflict Resolution," chaired a symposium on "Terrorism and the Media," and participated in roundtables on "The Relationship between the Leader and the Led," "The Effects of Age on Political Leadership" and on "The Relationship Between Psychoanalysis and Political Science." Post was also invited to participate in the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association (APA) in New York in August. He lectured on "The Psychology of Terrorism" in a special one-day program on "Terrorism, Torture, and Espionage: Psychological Perspectives," sponsored by the Division of Military Psychology of the APA.

LOIS G. SCHWOERER, professor of history, has won the prize offered by the Carolinas Symposium on British Studies for the best paper presented at its 1986 annual meeting for her paper, "Concept and Image of Queenship: Queen Mary II."

ROBERT T. SMYTHE, professor of statistics, was elected Fellow of the Institute of Mathematical Statistics at the institute's annual meeting held in San Francisco in August 1987.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Full-time, Department of Dermatology. (Individual to conduct research on the immune system in mice, culture of immunologic cells in vitro, and assist with establishing a new research laboratory. Minimum requirements are a bachelor's degree in biology with some experience in a research laboratory preferred.) Contact: Dr. Francis Noonan, Room 124, Ross Hall, 994-0408.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Full-time, Department of Biochemistry. (Individual to order supplies, maintain laboratory organization and perform a variety of experiments on normal and cancerous liver cells and subcellular components. A B.S. degree and at least one year of experience in a biochemical research laboratory is required.) Contact Dr. Gary Fiskum at 994-8819.

SENIOR RESEARCH SCIENTIST, Full-time, Science Communication Studies, Division of Continuing Education. (Individual to conduct literature research, write research reports and carry out a variety of related tasks in the space medicine field, independent of supervision. Ph.D. in the biological or medical sciences and minimum of three years experience in space medicine of aerospace physiology is required.) Send resume to F. Ronald Dutcher, 515 22nd Street, Suite 402, Washington, D.C. 20037.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

November 16, 1987

GW Report

(491)

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

PRESIDENT ELLIOTT COMMENTS ON BUDGET AT SPECIAL FACULTY SENATE MEETING

In remarks at a special meeting of the Faculty Senate November 6, President Lloyd H. Elliott reported that a previously announced two percent reduction in the University's 1987-88 operating budget "is not a reasonable solution, at least in some areas." According to Dr. Elliott, a budget imbalance has resulted due to income from investment property not meeting projections and to the bankruptcy of a major tenant in one of the University's properties -- a development that "was outside of the control of anyone here at the University."

President Elliott acknowledged that one budget policy that may have been detrimental to the University's financial position is that of estimating annual revenues generously and allocating all revenues for expenditure. He noted that little centralized control has been exercised over budgets or programs and that deans and others have had "a great deal of freedom in program and faculty development, faculty replacement, tenure decisions, teaching loads and budget administration." These practices, he told Senate members and observers, cannot continue in the same way, and "our first priority must be to stabilize the current budget and ensure a balanced budget for 1988-89."

It is unfortunate, the president noted, to encounter the current budgeting imbalance "just as we are initiating a long-range planning cycle." Expectations generated by asking divisions to "think about program developments" may also be "the source of much of the current frustration," he said. Although the timetable for the planning process called for recommendations by the Committee on Coordinated Planning (CCP) for resource allocations for 1988-89, this step will not be implemented. The "first priority is to stabilize the budget," the president affirmed.

Commenting that the current budgetary situation further reinforces the need for systematic planning, the president said he expects "choices concerning the allocation of scarce resources" will be more difficult in the future. He believes the five-year plans submitted by the vice presidents and those expected from the deans will be of great value to his successor in clarifying the strengths and weaknesses of the University. The CCP will be asked to make recommendations "concerning which plans should have priority in the next five-year period," and the Budget Committee will be asked to direct the development of a long-range financial plan "which will point the way for converting program plans into realities."

While "there is a compelling need for some centralization, particularly in areas such as class scheduling, enrollment planning and management, space utilization and establishing program priorities," the president assured the Senate that "there is nothing in the process which circumvents the appropriate role of the deans as academic managers or the role of the faculty in the governance of the institution."

In summary, President Elliott stressed that the budget is out of balance and must be corrected. Nevertheless, a two percent across-the-board adjustment is not the remedy. ". . .Commitments have been made in this year's budget which cannot be rescinded at this date," and "the budgets of some units simply do not have sufficient flexibility to enable them to meet [this type of] adjustment," he said. Instead, "the University will seek to find resources previously projected for other purposes to help reduce the budget deficit."

In addition, Elliott said, "We will initiate immediately controls to prevent over-spending in all budgets," and "we will continue to review all current budgets seeking reductions which will help eliminate the budget deficit for 1987-88, but which do not unduly impact academic programs." The vice president for academic affairs and the provost will be meeting with all deans and administrative officers to review this year's commitments and to project next year's requirements.

"The University remains in a fundamentally strong position," Elliott pointed out. "However, the imbalance is real and must be brought under control if we are not to jeopardize the academic aspirations which we all share. We have met problems before and, working together, we have resolved them. I am confident we can do the same now."

Following President Elliott's remarks, various members of the Faculty Senate expressed their concerns regarding the impact of budget cuts on academic programs and faculty morale as well as their wishes to participate in the budgeting and planning process and to continue the University's ongoing momentum.

BRIEFLY. . .

Health Awareness Week, sponsored by the Wellness Resource Center, the Program Board and Alpha Epsilon runs today, November 16, through November 20. Highlights include a free fitness screening, a relaxation workshop and a health food bar. For more information, contact the Wellness Resource Center at 676-6927.

Marylin Mangold Garst, harpsichord and piano soloist, will perform selections from Jean-Philippe Rameau, J.S. Bach, Luigi Dallapiccola and Franz Schubert in a faculty recital sponsored by the Department of Music on Monday, November 23, in the Marvin Theatre at 8 pm. Tickets will be available at the door. For more information, call 46245.

DAVID EISENHOWER, right, visited with Gerald J. Laporte, a fellow student in the class of 1976 at the GW National Law Center, following his November 6 talk to alumni.

DAVID EISENHOWER DISCUSSES THE MODERN PRESIDENCY

It was while he was a student at the GW National Law Center that he began to think about writing a biography of his grandfather, the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, David Eisenhower (J.D. 1976) told his listeners at a November 6 dinner sponsored by the General Alumni Association in celebration of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. He is the author of the first volume of a proposed trilogy covering President Eisenhower's career. The volume is titled Eisenhower at War 1943-1945.

Speaking on the topic, "Recent Presidencies and the U.S. Constitution," he gave his views on the American presidency in a constitutional context and his observations on the office as seen at close range during two administrations, those of Eisenhower and Nixon.

"What is unique about the United States is that America is laws or a way of life," he said. The Constitution is one of the few legal documents establishing a system of government that accompanied the birth of a nation instead of the overthrow of a domestic ruling group, Eisenhower noted. "I think the presidency, as devised in 1787, is probably less defined than the other two pillars of our government," he observed, "as I see it, the presidency of 1787 was an institution devised to become more or less what it is today."

Eisenhower discussed the presidency as a "mission-oriented branch of the federal government." He advanced the view that presidencies arise in response to a need and circumstance and that, as a consequence, presidents often have large but informal powers in the area for which they are selected to function. As examples, he gave Franklin D. Roosevelt's powers over the economy in 1932; Richard M. Nixon's powers in international affairs in 1969 when he was elected to end the war in Vietnam; and Dwight D. Eisenhower's reach in 1953 when he was elected to solve the atomic scare and the domestic and international "unsettledness" left as a result of World War II. He cited the three presidents' lack of powers in other areas during their administrations and presented what he called "a personal corollary." He stated, "Upon completion of the mission that a president undertakes, his powers immediately begin to fade and this is usually and typically signalled by an event which is a test of that president's effectiveness and signals the end of an era." This was true of both Eisenhower and Nixon, he declared, commenting, "At the very moment a president has succeeded, it all begins to flow away."

Eisenhower's remarks were highlighted by his personal reminiscences as a presidential grandson and son-in-law. He thought of the 1950s as "the good old days" and was later aware of a somber character during the Nixon administrations. Eisenhower said his three years at the University were "very formative" ones and he recalled the encouragement he received from former Professor of Law Reid Hambrick to pursue his plan of becoming a writer.

In conclusion, he observed that the question of the presidency is bound to grow in intensity. "We are going to be adjusting to a new face. America is not a people, not strictly a territory, but a way of life," he stated. "I think we can face the future with confidence that our way of life is going to be an ever-expanding one for us and for citizens around the globe."

SENATOR BIDEN SPEAKS TONIGHT

Senator Joseph R. Biden (D-Delaware), Chairman of the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee and ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will discuss "New Directions in Foreign Policy: The Reagan/Gorbachev Summit," tonight at 8 pm in Funger Hall, Room 103. His speech is sponsored by the Program Board and is free and open to the public.

JO ANNE CARON of Belgium, international award-winning ceramic artist, left, talked with graduate student in ceramics Lucrecia Palza during a workshop Caron conducted November 9.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

PETER CAWS, university professor of philosophy, lectured on "Structuralism: Is it Philosophically Significant?" at the Philosophy Colloquium of the University of Colorado, Boulder, on October 29. He gave a panel presentation on "The Philosophy of Psychology," as part of the D.C. Psychological Association's annual conference in Washington, D.C., on November 6.

R. PAUL CHURCHILL, professor of philosophy, presented a paper to the Institute for Advanced Philosophic Research in Estes Park, Colorado, August 10-14, on "Human Evil: A Philosophical Inquiry." He read a paper on "Democracy and the Threat of Nuclear Weapons," at the first national conference of Concerned Philosophers for Peace in Dayton, Ohio, October 15-17.

MEMBERS OF THE OPERATIONS RESEARCH FACULTY attended the Joint National Meeting of the Operations Research Society of America and The Institute of Management Sciences in St.Louis, Missouri, October 25-28. In addition to DONALD GROSS' tutorial on "Numerical Problems in Queueing Modeling," papers were presented by other professors of operations research, including ANTHONY V. FIACCO on, "Computer Method for Calculating Optimal Value Bounds of Nonconvex Programs," NOZER D. SINGPURWALLA on "Control Theory Methods for Product Quality Assurance," and RICHARD M. SOLAND on, "Optimal Attack Against an Area Defense with Impact Point Prediction." SOLAND also chaired a session on "Interactive Multiple Criteria Decision Making." Visiting assistant professor of operations research THOMAS A. MAZZUCHI presented, "Use of Proportional Hazards Models for Machine Tool Reliability Assessment," which he wrote with assistant professor of management science, REFIK SOYER. Distinguished visiting professor of operations research, MATTHEW ROSENSHINE, presented "Control Theory Methods for Product Quality Assurance."

ALF HILTEBEITEL, professor of religion, presented a paper on "Attending South Indian Folk Dramas of the Mahabharata," at two symposia on Peter Brook's dramatization of the Mahabharata. The first symposium, "The Mahabharata: Interpretation and Performance," was held in Los Angeles on October 4. The second, organized by the Asia Society, was held in New York on October 31. His presentation included portions of a film on South Indian festival dramatizations of the Mahabharata that he is now editing. He has also been named as one of four consultants to Peter Brook to transform the nine-hour drama into a six-hour video.

JAMES C. KING, professor of German, chaired the nominating committee of the Early German Literature section at the annual meeting of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association in Atlanta, November 6. He spoke on "Hans Sachs, the Man and His Works as Viewed by Goethe," at the meeting.

BERNARD MERGEN, professor of American civilization, participated in a symposium on "The Superhero in America" at the Smithsonian Institution, October 31 and November 1. He presented a paper on "Children's Play in American Autobiographies, 1820-1914" at a symposium on "American Play, 1820-1914" sponsored by The Margaret Woodbury Strong Museum in Rochester, New York, November 7.

SONYA A. QUITSLUND, assistant professor of religion, delivered a paper on "Sources of Anger and Frustration for Women in the Catholic Church" at the annual meeting of the Society for the Scientific Study of Religion in Louisville, Kentucky, October 30.

RESIDENCE HALL ASSOCIATION (RHA) MEMBERS attended the Regional North Atlantic Association of College and University Residence Halls yearly convention at Syracuse University in Syracuse, New York, on Oct. 31. R. GUMBY ELIN, GW RHA Communications Coordinator, was elected to the post of Regional Communications Coordinator for the association, and KAREN SCHEIBEL was awarded a Silver Pin Award for outstanding service. GW received a Regional Programming Award for Mitchell Hall's program on Drug and Alcohol Awareness.

WALTER F. ROWE, associate professor of forensic sciences, presented a paper on "Forensic Serology: A Guide for the Perplexed," at the annual meeting of the National Defense Investigators Association in Baltimore, on October 16.

FREDERIC R. SIEGEL, professor of geochemistry, presented a paper with colleagues on "Facies Analysis and Late Quaternary Paleogeography of the Eastern Nile Delta, Egypt," at the annual meeting of the Geological Society of America in Phoenix, in October.

NEIL TILKENS, associate professor of music, lectured on "Motzart's Stylistic Evolution: Implications for the Teacher and Performer," at the annual convention of the Maryland State Music Teachers Association in Westminster, Maryland, on October 31.

RUTH A. WALLACE, professor of sociology, gave a speech on "Sociological Perspectives on Sexism in the Church," at a conference on "Women in the Church," in Washington, D.C., on October 31.

PUBLICATIONS

PETER CAWS, university professor of philosophy, an article, "The Humanities in a Technological Age," in Societal Issues, Scientific Viewpoints, Margaret A. Strom, ed.

ANTHONY COATES, professor of geology, a chapter, Cnidaria, co-authored with Dr. William Oliver of the U.S. Geological Survey, in a new textbook, Fossil Invertebrates, published by Blackwell Scientific Pulications, Palo Alto, Oxford and London, 713 pages, 1987. The book is the result of the cooperation of 27 authors; all roylaties have been donated to the Paleontological Society of America to support research in the science of paleontology.

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, editor and contributor to the revised and enlarged edition of American Literature since 1900, (Sphere History of Literature, first published in 1975; London, Sphere Books) New York, Peter Bedrick, 1987. An article, "The Invention of the Presidency," in Great Ideas Today: 1987, Chicago, Enclyclopedia Britannica, 1987, pp. 156-221.

HARVEY B. FEIGENBAUM, associate professor of political science, an article, "States, Markets and the Politics of Energy," in Polity, Fall 1987.

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, associate professor of political science, four articles, "Conflicting Jurisdictions in the Southern Ocean: The Case of an Antarctic Minerals Regime," in the Virginia Journal of International Law, Vol. 27 (Fall 1986), pp. 1-38, (with Peter Lipperman); "The United States and Antarctica: The Interplay of Law and National Interests," in the Cornell Journal of International Law, Vol. 20 (Winter 1987), pp. 65-102, (with Ethel Theis); "The ICJ Case on the Merits: Legal and Moral Implications of U.S. Aid to the Contras: The Nicaraguan Side," in the St. Louis University Public Law Review, Vol. 6 (1987), pp. 41-48; and "Remarks on Antarctica and the Common Heritage of Mankind," in Proceedings of the 79th Annual Meeting of the American Society of International Law 1985, (1987), pp. 62-67.

EUGENE W. KELLY JR., professor of counseling and human services, an article, "Private Prayer in the Schools," reprinted in the September 1987 issue of The Education Digest.

ROY C. LINDHOLD, professor of geology, a book, Sedimentology: A Practical Approach, London and Boston, Allen and Unwin, 1987.

FREDERIC R. SIEGEL, professor of geochemistry, two articles: "Prospecting with Plants," in Earth Science, Vol. 40, (Fall 1987), pp. 18-19; and "Exploration for Mississippi-Valley Type Stratabound Zn-Pb Ores with Stream Suspensates and Associated Sediments," in Journal of Geochemical Exploration, Vol. 29, 1987, pp. 432-433.

WALTER F. ROWE, associate professor of forensic sciences, a chapter, "Firearms Identification," in Forensic Science Handbook, Vol. II, Richard Saferstein, ed., Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey, Prentice Hall, 1988.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, part time, School of International Affairs. (Individual to assist Diplomat in Residence in library and archive research in connection with writing a book on Austria's relations with the Allies after the Second World War. Applicant should be Ph.D. or M.A. candidate in diplomatic history with fluent German.) Send resume to Walter R. Roberts, School of International Affairs, George Washington University, 2013 G Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20052.

RESEARCH ASSISTANTS/ASSOCIATES, Department of Biochemistry. (Individuals with skills in molecular biology, tissue culture, virology, or enzyme assays using radioisotopes for work with a group developing antiviral drugs based upon new biochemical and enzymological principles. The positions carry a generous salary, including tuition benefits, hospitalization, and other fringe benefits. The work is carried out in a congenial academic environment. A B.S. degree is required for employment at the research assistant level, and an M.S. degree is required for employment at the research associate level.) Send application together with details of experience to Dr. J.M. Bailey, Department of Biochemistry, George Washington University School of Medicine, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20037, or call Dr. Bailey at (202) 994-3518 or (202) 994-2951.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE/ASSISTANT, full-time, the Biostatistics Center. (Individual with master's in biostatistics or statistics to work on clinical trials. Assist in study design, management, data management and analysis for multi-center studies. Two or more years experience in biomedical research. Good writing skills and experience using SAS required. Salary commensurate with experience.) Send resume to Charles Harris, Biostatistics Center, 6110 Executive Boulevard, Suite 705, Rockville, Maryland 20852. No phone calls.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

November 23, 1987

GW Report

(492)

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

SENATOR BIDEN KEYNOTES POLITICAL AWARENESS WEEK

SENATOR JOSEPH R. BIDEN, (D-Del.) seated, smiled at members of his large audience while waiting to be introduced November 16. Standing, immediately behind him is Michael J. Troy, 1987 Truman Scholar from Delaware.

"I think it's pretty important not to miss the shot," said Senator Joseph R. Biden Jr.(D-Del.) of the upcoming arms talks scheduled for the December 7 summit between President Reagan and Soviet General Secretary Gorbachev. The senator spoke on campus November 16.

"There are times you have to take risks for peace. I think we can truly lead the world in a way that no one else can," he continued in a discussion with a large student audience following his speech on the topic "New Directions in American Foreign Policy." The speech and discussion were the first of four events for Political Awareness Week, sponsored by the GWU College Democrats, the Program Board and the Zionist Alliance.

Emphasizing the magnitude of the opportunity, the senator said we have "the glimmering of a chance to change the way in which we, the United States, view and think about the Soviets and they about us." He observed that Gorbachev's policy of glasnost, or openness, has provided far-reaching challenges to many ingrained practices and attitudes in Soviet society, bringing a new level of sophistication and pragmatism. "The United States has to change a few things," Biden commented, "to abandon rigid ideological foreign policy that up until the recent past has characterized this administration and, some of my Democratic party, for too long."

The senator presented the view that the current glasnost has a strong economic motivation, that the Soviet Union is hardly out of the 19th century and now needs to enter the 21st and that Gorbachev must look to the West for his nation's economic salvation.

To the students, Biden said, "As you debate this subject of how and why of an arms treaty, please don't let yourselves get mired down in the old rhetoric of the left and the right in this town. It matters little whether or not Gorbachev is moving out of altruism, which I doubt, or out of necessity, when he attempts to reshape the relationship as long as we know in what way he is attempting to reshape it and what interest the United States has in such a reshaped relationship."

In a discussion of European reaction to a treaty, he outlined possible arguments and commented, "Whether or not we have nuclear weapons in Europe is not the issue. The issue is its impact upon the psychology of Europeans, the Soviets and the United States. That is the important question when we discuss the theatre of nuclear force modernization." Senator Biden said he feels it is important to look at the further progress that could come from a treaty at this time. He noted that all discussion now is speculation, since "we do not yet have a treaty."

The senator answered questions on a wide range of subjects from students. He commented early in the evening, which lasted until 11 pm, that he perhaps learned more from student audiences than they did from him. Speaking of the American political scene, he said, "I think all of the Democratic candidates are superior to the opposition. . . . We have to have the system of the primaries so that those who are not well known can become known and I do not think the convention (Democratic) will reach out to candidates other than ones who have gone the distance in the primaries."

ABC NEWS Correspondent Jeanne Meserve, right, interviewed Professor of Management Science Stuart A. Umpleby November 17, for a network segment on his computer program, "Ethics," designed to help people practice thinking like a Russian (or an American) in connection with the upcoming Reagan-Gorbachev summit.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS RECEIVES TWO GRANTS

The Gelman Library's Department of Special Collections has been awarded grant funding to plan and implement two projects designed to enhance the library's ability to support research.

"Collections DC," funded through Title II-C of the Higher Education Act, will create a multi-institutional bibliographic database of research resources in the greater Washington area. "Collections: DC" is an outgrowth of a 1985 study commissioned by the District of Columbia Historical Records Advisory Board, which found that improved control of collections was needed to facilitate the study of the District's history and culture. The content of the database will be obtained through on-site surveys of institutional collections.

The establishment of a University Archives and Records Management program, funded by the National Historical Publications and Records Commission of the National Archives, will provide for a greater effort by private organizations and government to preserve and make available for research use those records that further an understanding and appreciation of American history. The official records of the University begin in the first quarter of the 19th century. They chronicle the growth and development of the largest private university in the national capital. A major activity of the project will be the identification, through a university-wide records survey, of all historically valuable institutional records. The activities of both of these grants will be based in the Department of Special Collections.

"MESSIAH" SING ALONG

The GW University Singers will host their annual "Messiah" Sing-Along on Friday, December 4 at 8 pm in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre. The performance is free and open to the public. For more information, call 46245.

GEORGIA O'KEEFFE LECTURE

The American artist, Georgia O'Keeffe, will be the subject of December's First Wednesday Lecture, to be given by Diane Apostolos-Cappadona, a GW doctoral candidate in American Civilization, and professorial lecturer in religion and art at Georgetown University. She will speak at 8 pm, in the Marvin Center, Rooms 410-415, on December 2. Admission to the lecture is free. Those planning to attend should call 46435 for seating. Dinner for both members and nonmembers of the GW Club will be served before the lecture beginning at 6:30 pm. Call 45510 for dinner reservations.

SOME PEOPLE HAD FUN in the November 11 snowstorm, including these three who built a snowperson on a terrace of the Robert H. and Clarice Smith Hall of art.

IT'S ID VALIDATION TIME

The Department of Personnel Services has announced the annual Employee ID Card Validation Period for 1988. All blue or pink photo identification cards currently held by eligible faculty and staff will become invalid on January 1, 1988. Individuals are asked to bring their current blue or pink University photo ID cards to the desinated locations where Department of Personnel Services staff members will verify eligibility and affix a 1988 validation sticker.

At this time, the only part-time on-campus faculty for whom 1988 validation stickers will be issued are those who have been appointed through the 1988 spring semester. Others should wait until they receive a spring semester letter of appointment from the Vice President for Academic Affairs before requesting 1988 stickers.

In the event that the current photo ID card has been lost, please contact the Records and Benefits Office in Personnel at 44480 for assistance.

The validation process will involve a large number of people. Personnel Services advises that every effort will be made to ensure a smooth process and that everyone's cooperations will be appreciated.

The following is a schedule of times and locations for ID card validation:

BUILDING GG, LOBBY

| | |
|---|---|
| Mon., Nov. 30 | 9am - 4pm |
| Tue., Dec. 1 | 7:30am - 3pm |
| Wed., Dec. 2 | 9am - 4pm |
| Thu., Dec. 3 | 7:30am - 3pm |
| Fri., Dec. 4 | 9am - 4pm |

HOSPITAL CAFETERIA LOBBY

| | |
|---|---|
| Mon., Dec. 7 | 7am - 3pm |
| Tue., Dec. 8 | 9am - 4pm |
| Wed., Dec. 9 | 7am - 3pm |
| Thu., Dec. 10 | 9am - 4pm |
| Fri., Dec. 11 | 7am - 3pm |

KING MEDAL NOMINATIONS DUE

Nominations for the Martin Luther King Jr. Medal, the University's highest honor for meritorious service in the field of human rights, are being accepted by the University Marshal's Office. The medal will be conferred on an outstanding student whose life reflects the dream and vision of the late Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. at a special convocation January 18, 1988.

Nominees for the Martin Luther King Jr. Medal must be GW students in any division or phase of degree work, full-time or part-time, whose personal attributes and contributions to the life of the campus and or the community reflect a number of characteristics, among them courage, creative leadership, and a proven ability to motivate people to improve conditions for themselves and others. Special attention will be given to service in areas supported by the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change, such as: voter education and registration; literacy and basic skills training; nonviolent social activism; and assistance for single parents.

The Martin Luther King Jr. Medal recipient will be selected by an award panel comprised of student, faculty and staff representatives. Nominations must be submitted by letter of recommendation to the Office of the University Marshal, Building O, no later than Tuesday, December 1, 1987. For more information, contact Gil McBride at 48716.

"MADONNA AND CHILD," ceramic sculpture by Leslie B. Burka, is one of 86 art works by GW students in Dimock Gallery's Annual Student Show which continues through December 3.

GW

ARTISTIC UNIVERSITY FAMILY EXHIBITION OPENS TODAY

The Colonnade Gallery's annual Artistic University Family Exhibition opens today to continue through Sunday, December 20. The works shown are by those not enrolled in any art course offered by the Art Department. Everyone is invited to a 5 to 7 pm reception this afternoon, held to mark the opening. The gallery is located on the third floor of Marvin Center. Exhibition hours are 10 am to 7 pm daily.

AT HOUSEKEEPING PRIDE DAY EIGHT RECEIVE AWARDS

At the Housekeeping Department's Annual Pride Day ceremony, eight individuals received plaques. They are the winners of the department's Clean Equipment Contest.

The winners are: Nannie Brooks of Residence Halls; Carrie Morris of Main Campus; Reginald Battles and Wardell Freeman, both of Marvin Center; Robert Barnes of East Campus; James Nock of North Campus; and Willie Radcliffe and Donald Hutchins, both of the Medical Center.

1987 VIRGINIA TAX EXEMPT STATUS EXPIRES DEC. 31

All 1987 tax exemptions from withholding authorized by Virginia tax forms VA-4a, currently on file in the University Payroll Office, will expire on December 31 of this year. This form states, "I certify that I have incurred no Virginia State income tax liability for taxable year _____, and anticipate that I will incur no liability for Virginia State income tax for taxable year ____."

If you live in Virginia and form VA-4a will apply to your tax status for 1988, you must submit a new form. Forms VA-4a are available in the University Payroll Services Office, 1st floor, Academic Center, Rome Hall, and in the Records and Benefits Office of Personnel Services, Building GG, 2125 G Street, NW.

Please note that this form is used primarily by students. It is not the standard form, used for claiming dependents, which remains in effect until changed by the employee.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS NOTE

The GW Telecommunications Systems Department is replacing all C&P telephone credit cards with AT&T credit cards. All C&P cards will be cancelled as of November 30, 1987. Departments currently using the C&P cards should bring them to Room T-105 in the Academic Center for replacement. The new AT&T credit cards will be issued on a one-for-one exchange basis. Please call 46521 for more information.

USA TODAY PUBLISHER CATHLEEN BLACK TO SPEAK

Wednesday, December 2, USA Today publisher Cathleen Black will speak at a Washington VIP luncheon sponsored by the SGBA Alumni Association. Her topic will be "The Making of McPaper." The noon to 1:30 pm event is scheduled for the President's Room in the GW Club. For more information, call 48157.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR PRE-AWARD REVIEW

The Department of Labor's Office of Federal Contract Compliance is currently conducting a pre-award review of the University's Affirmative Action Program. The Equal Opportunity Specialists performing the review are Joyce Barritt and Irene Smith. Anyone wishing to speak with Ms. Barritt and Ms. Smith may do so by calling them on extension 47402, or by visiting them in Rice Hall, 2121 I Street, NW, Room 603.

GW

STUDENTS SEEK TOYS FOR CENTRAL AMERICAN ORPHANS

GW Students will collect Christmas toys for orphans in war-torn Central America at two campus locations on Wednesday, December 2. New or used toys can be donated to volunteers from 8 am to 8 pm in the lobby of Lerner Hall at GW's National Law Center and from 10 am to 4 pm on the ground floor of the Marvin Center. The campaign is sponsored by students from the National Law Center, the Community Action Network, the Progressive Student Union and the College Democrats. For more information, call Chris Hyun at (202) 966-4126.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

JERROLD POST, professor of psychiatry and public policy, was asked to comment on the psychology of political terrorists for an article in "The Week in Review" section of The New York Times of Sunday, November 15. Dr. Post was interviewed by the Associated Press on the effects of age on political attitudes in connection with the nomination of Judge Ginsburg to the Supreme Court. The article appeared nationally on Monday, November 2.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITY

SHERWIN GREENE, professor of urban and regional planning, presented a paper, "Teaching Urban Design in Graduate Planning Programs: Should We? Can We?," at the 29th annual conference of the American Collegiate Schools of Planning in Los Angeles, November 5-8. He participated recently in three charrettes (intensive planning sessions): as a team leader for the Takoma Metro Arts Center Design Charrette sponsored by the D.C. Commission on the Arts and Humanities; as part of a multidisciplinary team of design professionals in the Downtown Charrette sponsored by the D.C. Downtown Partnership; and as a reviewer for a charrette undertaken by the National Capital Planning Commission.

NADINE NATOV, professor of Russian, presented a paper, "Music in the Works of Mikhail Bulgakov," at the 19th National Convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies (AAASS) in Boston, November 5-8. She also chaired a panel on "The Idea of the Outer (Other) World in Russian Literature -- From Dostoevsky to the Present" and participated in the discussion of four papers presented by the panelists.

ANN ROMINES, assistant professor of English, participated in the third national Willa Cather Reunion in Red Cloud, Nebraska, with a paper, "Entering the Parish of Women: Shadows on the Rock," on June 15. She presented a paper, "How Not to Tell a Story: Eudora Welty's First Person Tales," at a national conference on "Eudora Welty: The Eye of the Storyteller" at the University of Akron on September 19. On October 15, she presented a paper, "It Can Never Be a Long Time Ago: Cather, Wilder, and Prairie Time,"for the Western Literature Association's annual meeting at the University of Nebraska.

RICHARD H. SCHLAGEL, Elton Professor of Philosophy, lectured on "Contextual Realism as a Framework for Modern Science" for the Graduate Colloquium Series of the American University Philosophy Club on November 10.

DANIEL ULLMAN, assistant professor of mathematics, gave a lecture on "Two Marriage Problems in Mathematics" for the Washington Operations Research/Management Science Council in Arlington, Virginia, on November 18.

PUBLICATIONS

PETER CAWS, university professor of philosophy, an op-ed piece, "Reagan's One-liners Make a Mockery of Complex U.S.-Soviet Relations," in The Atlanta Constitution, on October 22.

JERROLD POST, professor of psychiatry and public policy, an article, "Prospects for Nuclear Terrorism: Psychological Motivations and Constraints," in Conflict Quarterly, summer 1987.

STUART A. UMPLEBY, professor of management science, an article, "World Population: Still Ahead of Schedule," in Science, September 25. A reference to the article appeared in The Washington Post on October 5.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

December 7, 1987

GW Report

(493)

for the George Washington University community
Office of University Relations

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 994-6460
Amy Sandberg-Pickell, assistant editor

OPEN MEETING WITH MIDDLE STATES TEAM SCHEDULED FOR DECEMBER 9

An open meeting for faculty and students with members of a team appointed by the Commission on Higher Education of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools has been scheduled for 4:30 pm on Wednesday, December 9, in Room 403 of the Marvin Center.

This will be on the first day of the team's December 9 to 11 visit to campus as part of the Commission's examination of the University for re-accreditation, which is done on a 10-year cycle.

In preparation for the re-accreditation visit, an institutional self-study, titled, "A Private University with a Public Mandate," has been prepared. The preparation was overseen by a Steering Committee, chaired by Professor of Chemistry and Associate Dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences Edward A. Caress.

While the team is on campus, members will meet with representatives of many units of the University. No topic will be off-base and all information requested will be provided to the best of the University's ability. In addition to the open meeting, if a member of the GW community wishes to meet privately with a member of the team, he or she should call Ms. Margaret Lilly at 46511 and she will try to arrange an appointment.

Any questions about the team visit may be directed to Professor Caress at 48096.

The members of the team will be:

Wesley W. Posvar, President, University of Pittsburgh, Chair
Robert J. Nossen, Associate Provost Emeritus, Professor of Higher Education, University of Pittsburgh, Assistant Chair
Harold E. Cheatham, Coordinator, Student Personnel Program, Associate Professor of Education, Pennsylvania State University
Allen E. Claxton, Senior Vice President for Finance, New York University
Glyn T. Evans, Director of Library Services, State University of New York
June M. Fessenden-Raden, Chair, Biology and Society Program, Cornell University
Marilyn Gittell, Professor of Political Science, the Graduate School and University Center, City University of New York
Manuel Gomez, Director of the Resource Center for Science and Engineering, Professor of Physics, University of Puerto Rico, College of Natural Sciences
James H. Haynes, Acting Vice President for Planning and Operations Analysis, Morgan State University
Barbara L. Morris, Academic Vice President, St. John's University, Jamaica, New York
Constantine Stefanu, Director of Planning and Institutional Studies, Professor of Preventive Medicine and Family Practice, State University of New York Health Science Center at Syracuse and Gilbert Ware, Associate Professor, Political Science Department, Drexel University.

HOROWITZ MEMORIAL LECTURE

Virginia V. Weldon, M.D., will discuss "Why the Dinasaurs Died: Extinction or Evolution?" in the 9th Annual Horowitz Memorial Lecture on Wednesday, December 9.

Dr. Weldon's topic will lead to a discussion on the state of medical care today and the problems of hospitals, medical schools and medical care. She is currently the Deputy Vice Chancellor for Medical Affairs at the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, Missouri.

The lecture will begin at 5:30 pm in Ross Hall, Room 101 and will be followed by a buffet reception in the GW Club. The event is free and open to the public.

R.G. JONES TO LECTURE ON HALPERIN EXHIBITION

Professor of Religion Robert G. Jones will give a lecture on Wednesday, December 9, at 5:30 pm in the Dimock Gallery in conjunction with the opening of the gallery's exhibition of engravings and maps from the Halperin Collection.

The exhibition of antiquarian engravings on historical Biblical subjects and views of the Holy Land will be on view through Thursday, January 9. The Halperin Collection, now part of the University's Permanent Collection, was acquired in 1986. The collection's engravings date from the 18th and 19th centuries.

The lecture is open without charge. Gallery hours are 10 am to 5 pm, Tuesday through Friday, and noon to 5 pm on Saturday.

PRESIDENT ELLIOTT HONORED BY CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY

President Lloyd H. Elliott was honored by The Catholic University of America with a 1987 Thanksgiving Tuesday President's Medal for Distinguished Community Service on November 24. The medal was presented to Dr. Elliott by Catholic University President William J. Byron, S.J., in a ceremony in the university's Hartke Theatre. President Elliott was one of six individuals honored.

The program for the occasion called Dr. Elliott "a national educational leader who has invested himself generously in the local community" and continued, "His vision has helped revitalize downtown Washington. His sensitivity to the needs of people has improved the quality of life for thousands of Washingtonians."

President Lloyd H. Elliott, second from left, with former Board of Trade Presidents, L to R, Joseph H. Riley, Thomas M. Walsh and Julia Montgomery Walsh (Mrs. Thomas M. Walsh) at the November 18 opening

BOARD OF TRADE ARCHIVES NOW LOCATED IN SPECIAL COLLECTIONS, GELMAN LIBRARY

In remarks at the November 18 opening of the exhibition from the archives of the Board of Trade of the Greater Washington Area which have been given to the University, President Lloyd H. Elliott, conveyed the thanks of the University to the Board.

"It is indeed a multi-faceted history of Washington and the region," he stated. Noting that the collection will grow year by year and serve scholars from all parts of the country and the world, Dr. Elliott said, "We believe this a role which this University can appropriately play in making these records available as part of our Washingtoniana Collection." To the Board of Trade members present he said, "We thank you in the sense that this is a beginning and that we shall continue to see the rewards from the archives in the years ahead."

Speaking for the senior council of the Board of Trade, Joseph H. Riley, a former president said, "We can think of no finer place that the records of the Board of Trade should be lodged than right here at George Washington University." He observed that both the Board of Trade and the city have grown tremendously over the years and noted, "It is due in large measure to the presence of this university because we found that with the companies that relocate their offices here, some of the main reasons are the educational opportunities we have. . . .Some 98 years ago, the board was concerned with sewer capacity and the quality of public education. We are still fighting the same battles. We are also involved with transportation, governance, the quality of life and much more. . . .Today, I think the board is called upon early on in the formation of policies and it has grown into a very vital force of this area."

Riley expressed appreciation to Ruth Ann Becker of the board's staff for organizing and cataloging the records of the past 98 years; to Professor of American Civilization and Director of the American Studies Program Howard F. Gillette Jr., Associate Professor of History William R. Johnson, and Jessica Elfenbein, Center for Washington Area Studies fellow, for their work on a history of the first 100 years of the Board of Trade to be published next year; and to William Keller of Special Collections, who becomes the "keeper" of the archives. Calling the occasion a "hallmark event," he concluded by saying, "We look forward to many joint projects with this fine university."

Professor Gillette praised the board's foresight in recognizing the needs of the city and the region over the years and in preserving the records -- administrative and committee minutes, official correspondence, fiscal reports, documentation of bureau activities, publications and audio tapes etc. He said the records would be "invaluable in tracing the transition of Washington from a relatively secondary level city to one of the most important cities in the country."

He continued, "We do hope that having the archives will be a hinge, not only closing the records up to now, but also an opening to new records management and building so that the future of our city will be both understood and recorded as you, the Board of Trade, and your allies around the city contribute to the shaping of the city. We want to be there to record it, to pass it on to the next generation and we thank you for making this first step possible."

University Librarian Sharon J. Rogers welcomed those attending the opening. Among those who came were U.S. Representative Corinne L. Boggs of Louisiana, a member of the National Historical Publications and Records Commission, one of the sources of funding for the project, and William H. Press, for many years executive director of the Board of Trade.

ENVIRONMENTAL IMPROVEMENT AWARD FOR THE UNIVERSITY

In a ceremony November 19 in the Washington Convention Center, the University received an Environmental Improvement Award from the District of Columbia. The award was in recognition of the redone University Yard. Accepting the award for the University was Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl.

POTTS RECEIVES AWARD AS DISTINGUISHED ALUMNUS

Associate Dean of the National Law Center and Professor of Law Edward A. Potts received the Distinguished Alumnus Award of the GW Law Alumni Association at the group's 122nd Founders Day on November 14. President Lloyd H. Elliott presented the award to Dean Potts at a dinner in the Capital Hilton Hotel. Potts' association with the law school spans four decades. A 1952 law graduate, he has served as associate dean since 1966.

HEALTH POLICY PROJECT REPORTS ON AIDS

The University's Interdepartmental Health Policy Project (IHPP), November 25, issued a three-volume report, AIDS: A Public Health Challenge (State Issues, Policies and Programs).

Prepared in part under contract with the U.S. Public Health Service, the report is one of the first comprehensive reviews of the complex issues arising from the AIDS epidemic and addresses the way that public officials, particularly at the state level, are responding to the crisis.

"States are on the front line in the battle against AIDS," says IHPP Director Richard Merritt. "This report will give decision-makers and the public a tool to identify and better understand the broad range of questions surrounding AIDS."

The report is designed to help policymakers weigh various considerations, ask critical follow-up questions and develop solutions that are best suited to meet the needs of specific populations.

After reporting the medical facts of AIDS, the report discusses the major policy questions and management issues that state governments will face over the next decade. The report evaluates the advantages and disadvantages of different policy solutions, highlights some of the innovative programs and policies which states are using to address AIDS-related problems and presents alternative strategies that governments may want to consider.

ID VALIDATION -- Ronnie Patton, right, of Housekeeping (Crawford Hall) had his ID validated for 1988 by LaVon Brown of Personnel Services, Records and Benefits Division, on November 30. The validation period runs through Friday, December 11.

BRIEFLY. . .

A Holiday Sing-Along with Ron Howard is scheduled at the GW Club on Thursday, December 10, from 5:30 to 7:30 pm. A holiday buffet will be served. For reservations, call 46610.

Voices of faculty members, staff and students are needed to form a community choir for GW's Martin Luther King Celebration, Friday, January 15, at noon in the Marvin Theatre. Rehearsals will begin in January. Anyone interested should contact Michelle Brown at 47402.

The Library of Congress has begun an extensive renovation program. The Main Reading Room will close on Wednesday, December 9, to remain closed for about a year. However, the library will remain open throughout the renovation. To determine availability of materials and space for general research, write or call before visiting -- General Reading Rooms Division, Library of Congress, Washington, DC, 20450 (202) 287-5522.

Copies of the telephone directory of The George Washington University and Medical Center are available from Telecommunications Services, Academic Center, Phillips Hall, Room T-105.

Kennedy Center parkers-- during winter break, December 18-January 3, on-campus parking will be available at Student Lot D, 23rd and G Streets, (enter on 23rd Street). Those using the lot must display Kennedy Center decal and have a staff KC ticket to use as payment. Shuttle service and KC parking will resume January 4. Questions? Call the Parking Office, 47275.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This will be the last GW Report until January.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITY

PETER CAWS, university professor of philosophy, hosted a luncheon/discussion for a visiting scholar, Draglojub Micunovic, Director of the Center for Philosophy and Social Theories at the Institute of Social Sciences, University of Belgrade. R. PAUL CHURCHILL, professor of philosophy, JONATHAN MORENO, professor of philosophy and health care sciences, ANDREW ALTMAN, professor of philosophy and MARTHA BOHACHEVSKY-CHOMIAK, adjunct professor of history, also participated in the luncheon/discussion on November 13.

CHARLES E. DIEHL, vice president and treasurer, was re-elected for a three-year term on the Board of Directors of The Greater Washington Board of Trade at its 98th annual meeting, held in Washington, D.C., on November 24. Diehl, who has completed 10 years of service as a director, will begin his latest term January 1.

LEO P. RIBUFFO, professor of history, chaired and commented on a session, "Sources of Political Support for Twentieth Century Rightwing Movements," at the Social Science History convention in New Orleans, on November 1.

CHUNG-WEN SHIH, professor of Chinese, gave a lecture on "China's Writers of the May Fourth Tradition" at Princeton University on November 16.

FREDERIC R. SIEGEL, professor of geochemistry, presented a paper on "The Environmental Generalist and Discipline Experts in LDC Economic Development Planning" at the International Geographic Information Systems meeting, November 16-18.

MYRNA SISLEN, adjunct assistant professor of music, is a member of The Washington Guitar Quintet. The group gave its debut performance in the Kennedy Center's Terrace Theater on November 18. The Washington Post, in a November 20 review, called the quintet "one-of-a-kind" and said, "Setting themselves a tough challenge--preserving the intimate subtle tone color of the guitar in an ensemble setting--the members succeeded impressively."

KLAUS THOENELT, professor of German, presented a paper on "'Lebendige' und 'gemachte Zeit': Goethes dialektisches Amerika-Bild in den Wilhelm Meister-Romanen" at the 1987 SAMLA Convention in Atlanta, November 5-7.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Department of Anatomy. (Position available for two years on a National Institutes of Health grant dealing with nerve regeneration in the central nervous system. Duties include animal care, preparation of chemicals, preparation, staining, examination and photography of microscope slides, and sectioning of tissues for light and electron microscopy. A bachelor's degree in a biologically related field and experience in general laboratory procedures required. Experience in electron microscopy desirable. Salary commensurate with experience.) Mail resume to: Dr. R.C. Bohn, Department of Anatomy, The George Washington University Medical Center, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20037.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE/ASSISTANT, full-time, the Biostatistics Center. (Individual needed with master's in biostatistics or statistics for work in clinical trials. Will assist in study design, management, data management and analysis for multi-center studies. Must have two or more years experience in biomedical research, good writing skills and experience in using SAS. Salary commensurate with experience. Tuition benefits.) Send resumes to: S. Tidwell, The George Washington University, Biostatistics Center, 6110 Executive Blvd., Suite 750, Rockville, MD, 20852. No phone calls please.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

DECEMBER 15 DEADLINE FOR NEW SALARY REDUCTION AGREEMENTS

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) requires participants and employers to sign a salary reduction agreement if the participant elects to make tax-deferred contributions to a retirement plan. The percent of salary stated in the salary reduction agreement is binding for the calendar year. Only one salary reduction agreement may be maintained during a calander year. The IRS has ruled that the voluntary continuation of a salary reduction agreement from one year to the next constitutes the making of a new agreement at the beginning of each year. Therefore, a participant who has an agreement in effect and does not sign a new agreement for the beginning of the new calendar year may not change the agreement until the start of the next calendar year. A participant may, however, terminate a salary reduction agreement at any time by visiting the Records and Benefits Office and completing the appropriate form. If an agreement is terminated, a participant must wait until the start of the next calendar year to sign a new salary reduction agreement.

If you have any questions regarding your current agreement or plan to increase or decrease your contribution percentage for 1988, please contact the Records and Benefits Office at 44480 for an appointment as soon as possible. Please be reminded, new agreements must take effect as of the start of the new calendar year. Therefore, in order to meet the IRS deadline as well as the University's, all new agreements must be completed and received by the Records and Benefits Office no later than December 15, 1987.